Through practical insights and powerful stories, this powerful Bible teacher and pastor will inspire and instruct so couples will discover the hope, challenge, and guidance God's Word provides for their journey together.

Date: 10/3/2020

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: Politics, 2020 Presidential Debate

Time Aired: 11:30 AM

Duration: 30:00

Description: The morning after John Stonestreet and Shane Morris recorded this episode of “BreakPoint This Week,” the nation learned that President Trump and the First Lady had tested positive for COVID. All of us at the Colson Center are praying for their health and speedy recovery.

John and Shane discuss the presidential debate: It says more about the state of our nation than it does about the individual candidates. Also, a new survey reveals that 20-some percent of self-identified evangelicals do not hold to a biblical understanding of sex and gender. How is this, and what are the implications?

They also discuss the stunning pro-China propaganda puff piece published this week by the New York Times, which asserts that Communist China’s crackdown on protesters for freedom was good and necessary. Really? This is the same New York Times, you may remember, that forced an editor to resign because he ran an op ed by Sen. Tom Cotton discussing the use of military force to quell violent protesters here at home.

October 13, 2020

America's Judeo-Christian founding institutionalized our freedom of religion, which extends to people of all beliefs. Dr. James Dobson and Rabbi Daniel Lapin discuss Judaism's and Christianity's shared view of biblical morality, and how secular society has destroyed God's conceptions of marriage, gender identity, and government.

Date: 10/13/2020

Program Name: Moneywise Live

Issue: Secured Credit Cards

Time Aired: 3:00 PM

Duration: 60:00

Description:

If your credit's a bit sketchy or maybe you just don't trust yourself with a credit card and all its temptations, fear not! There's a great alternative just for you and it's called a secured credit card.

A secured card might be just the ticket to stay out of debt and improve your credit score along the way.

What's the differences/similarities amongst prepaid cards and secured credit cards?

What does Nerdwallet mean when it describes to the two as "a secured card is buy now, pay later" and a prepaid card is "pay now, buy later"?

With a secured credit card, you're required to put down a cash security deposit - say from $200 to $500. That becomes your spending limit.

With a prepaid card, you still have to deposit cash but when you buy something the issuer pays for it with your money. Of course, you're limited to the amount you've already loaded onto the card.

How should you use a secured card to do the best at improving your score?

Is there anything else we need to know? Any other ways to make the most of a secured credit card?

Make sure the card is one where the issuer reports your transactions to the credit bureaus.

Never attempt to spend more than your security deposit.

Any downside at all to a secured credit card?

Program Name: Moneywise Live

Issue: Donor Advised Funds

Time Aired: 3:00 PM

Duration: 60:00

Description: 2 Corinthians 9:7 reads, “Each one must give as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver.” God’s Word is clear that Christians should be generous but it leaves room for how we practice that generosity. Host Rob West chats with Valerie Hogan of the National Christian Foundation about a way to make your giving more efficient and effective.

Valerie Hogan, is an attorney, a Certified Financial Planner and relationship manager at the National Christian Foundation. But most of all, she has a passion for helping people overcome financial obstacles so they can give more generously. Rob covers these topics and questions with Valerie:

Your mission is helping people be wise stewards of what God’s entrusted them for giving and a 'donor advised fund' is a great way to do that. Folks may not be familiar with this concept so give us a definition?

Listeners may be thinking, “I don’t have enough to give through a donor advised fund” but often that’s not the case. Who can benefit from what you call a “Giving Fund” administered through the National Christian Foundation?

Let’s drill down a little farther in your view who should open a Giving Fund?

Some folks might think this is a complicated process but that’s not the case. How does one go about opening a Giving Fund?

What are the tax advantages to using a Giving Fund?

You can open a donor advised fund almost anywhere. What makes NCF different?

How can an NCF Giving Fund help with year-end giving?

We’ve really just scratched the surface talking about the benefits of an NCF Giving Fund. How can folks get more information?

with David Murray | October 28, 2020

Are Christians exempt from anxiety and depression? Pastor and author David Murray experienced a couple of burnouts firsthand and talks about his faithful wife's bout with depression that left her incapacitated and unable to sleep or pray. Murray reminds us we are not disembodied spirits. When our soul goes wrong, our bodies follow; and when our bodies go wrong, our souls often go wrong, too. This goes for teens as well. Find out how teen anxiety differs from an adults.

Date: 10/31/2020

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: Religion and Society, Politics, Government

Time Aired: 11:30 AM

Duration: 30:00

Description:

Amy Coney Barrett receives praise from the Girl Scouts. The group subsequently received a backlash from culture after the positive tweet. John Stonestreet and Shane Morris provide clarity on constitutional originalism, what it means for the Supreme Court, and the challenge of being pro-woman in opposition to pro-women groups.

John and Shane then discuss a new finding from Bradford Wilcox that praises a drop in divorce rates during the Coronavirus. The pair highlight the leading measure, that more couples are reporting happiness in their marriage since the start of COVID-19.

John talks about the culture's pressure to make marriage a transactional organization. He notes the adjustment in focus of marriage to working towards the completion of a project. The analysis provides hope as COVID-19 continues to rage in the current culture.

Shifting to recommendations, Shane offered theologian Alister Roberts Youtube channel. He notes that Alister loves the Bible as he pulls literature components from Scripture and shows the interconnectedness of Scripture. He is currently going through the entire Bible, passage-by-passage to highlight the theme and cross references in Scripture.

John shifted the recommendations to athletics, highlight the story of Kenny Sailors. Sailors developed the jump shot for Basketball. John notes that Sailors lived a well lived life as a girls Basketball coach in Alaska. Sailors' story was made into a movie thanks to the financing of Stephan Curry, the famous Golden State Warriors player who many claim has perfected the jump shot. John is recommending the movie documenting Sailors' life.

Date: 11/3/2020

Program Name: Moneywise Live

Issue: Finances

Time Aired: 3:00 PM

Duration: 60:00

Description: In Luke 21:15 Jesus says, “For I will give you words and wisdom that none of your adversaries will be able to resist or contradict.” We’re now seeing this more than ever with faith-based investing. Christian shareholders are making their voices heard in some of the world’s biggest companies ... changing policies that oppose biblical principles. Rob West talks about this and more with investing expert Robert Netzly.

Robert Netzly is CEO of Inspire Investing, an underwriter of MoneyWise Live, where they’ve taken the battle for biblical principles right into the boardroom. Rob and Robert cover these topics and questions:

Concerned Christian investors often take the approach of avoiding so-called “sin stocks,” and that’s perfectly fine if that’s where your conscience leads you but shareholder engagement is a much different approach - almost radical you could say?

What are some examples of how companies typically “go off the rails” with their corporate policies and help us understand why they do it?

Let’s examine the specifics of some of your success stories using shareholder engagement - actively challenging policies that go against God’s Word starting with Chevron, one of the world’s biggest oil companies.

Costco is another huge company that has riled Christian investors in recent years. What success have you had there?

Amazon has used the extremist Southern Poverty Law Center to determine which nonprofits can benefit from its AmazonSmiles program that’s resulted in many faith-based charities being denied access.

But you’re seeing signs that Amazon is willing to change that policy. Its founder, Jeff Bezos, said as much in a recent appearance before Congress when questioned by Congressman Matt Gaetz (Gates) about the SPLC’s treatment of Dr. Ben Carson, the former HUD secretary. We have a clip of that:

GAETZ: Mr. Bezos, we were cut short in our last discussion. I just wanted to give you a chance to clear this up. You don’t believe Dr. Ben Carson is an extremist, do you?

BEZOS: No, sir. I don’t.

GAETZ: So help me understand why you would partner with a group that labels him as someone worthy of an extremist watchlist?

BEZOS: Well, uh, uh, I want you to hopefully appreciate what, we’re trying to make it possible for people to donate to any number of, from, millions of different charities and we need to have some source of data to, uh, use and I accept what you’re saying that the Southern Poverty Law Center and the U.S. Foreign Assets Office are not perfect are not perfect and I would like a better source if we could get it ...

How significant is that that comment by Bezos?

It’s clear that shareholder engagement is having an impact on some very big companies. But that’s only one approach to faith-based investing. Another is identifying and supporting companies that are actually making a positive impact in the world. Can you share some of those with us?

November 05, 2020

Turning the other cheek, as Jesus commands in Scripture, is especially difficult after we are hurt by a loved one. Dr. James Dobson discusses the topic of forgiveness with the president of Proverbs 31 Ministries, Lysa TerKeurst. She opens up about the painful discovery of her husband's infidelity, and describes how Dr. Dobson's book, Love Must Be Tough, helped heal her marriage.

Description: Grandparenting On Purpose
with Josh and Jen Mulvihill | November 6, 2020

What can you do to intentionally encourage your grandchildren? Pastor Josh Mulvihill and his wife, Jen, remind grandparents that they can be a powerful force for good in their grandchildren's lives, but only if they spend time with them. Remember, kids spell love T-I-M-E. Holidays are great times to interact, but let's not limit our time to holidays. Technology offers many ways to connect. Also, go where they are since families with young children often find travel difficult. Grandparent, you have so much to offer, from your wisdom and guidance, to your presence.

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: Politics, Freedom of Religion, Crime & Justice

Time Aired: 11:30 Am

Duration: 30:00

Description:

John Stonestreet and Shane Morris wrap up a tumultuous election week from a Christian worldview perspective. With the outcome of the election still not entirely clear, we find our nation more divided than at any time since the Civil War. How did the pollsters get this election so wrong? What do the President's gains among minority groups say about the prevailing cultural view of race and politics in America?

John and Shane also discuss the numerous and critical ballot initiatives in various states—and what those results have to say about our nation, from late-term abortion, to protecting life, to gambling, drug legalization, and sex-education for kindergarteners.

And tune in for John's fierce conviction about the absolute necessity for pastors to summon the courage to speak out on behalf of the unborn from their pulpits. As John says, those pastors who think that it's too political to say that we shouldn't be dismembering viable babies are dead wrong.

John and Shane wrap up the show with their recommendations of the week and with an in-depth discussion of a crucial religious freedom case argued before the Supreme Court: Fulton v. City of Philadelphia, in which Catholic Social Services (CSS) is suing Philadelphia over the city's decision to disallow CSS from placing foster children—simply because the Catholic organization follows Catholic teaching and won't place children with same-sex couples.

with Bob Lepine | November 9, 2020

Our views about love have gotten twisted over time. Most people think of love as a strong feeling, but according to Bob Lepine, that is far from how the Scriptures define love. It's hard work to love someone, says Lepine. Love isn't a benefit you get, but pouring out your life for the good of another. There is something that happens in our hearts when we start viewing love correctly, as God defines it. God enlarges our hearts. Lepine, married for 41 years, tells what he has learned about love over the years with his wife, Mary Ann.

Issue: Refinancing mortgage

Time Aired: 3:00 PM

Duration: 60:00

Description: If you've been sitting on the fence wondering whether it's finally time to refinance your house, the low interest rates these days could help you make up your mind. It's true mortgage rates have never been lower but is that the only thing to consider when deciding to refinance? Rob West talks with mortgage expert Dale Vermillion about the current real estate climate.

What drives mortgage interest rates, and why are we seeing record lows these days?

What happens to the real estate market when interest rates are so low?

Where are we seeing the biggest spikes in home values, and where are values more "reasonable?"

How do these conditions affect first time home buyers?

Is renting a bad thing, if condition's aren't right to buy a home?

How long will it be before the construction industry catches up with demand - or is that already happening in some places?

Other than interest rates, has the pandemic had an impact on the real estate market?

Do these record low interest rates affect any of the normal rules for refinancing? For instance, should folks still try to get at least a 1-point reduction? Do they still try to have 20% for a down payment?

Next, Rob and Steve answer these questions at 800-525-7000 or via email at Questions@MoneyWiseLive.org:

What are some traps to keep an eye out for when looking to refinance?

Is a bi-weekly payment to reduce the principal a good idea and how much can it reduce the amount by?

Is it a good idea to invest in gold and silver and if you do invest, how do you deal with owning the physical item?

If you have $100,000 in savings that's not earning much right now, should you put it toward your mortgage or one of your vehicles?

Can you pay off an auto loan early as you would with a mortgage?

If you've sold a house this year that is not your primary residence to your daughter for $165,000 for which you originally paid $80,000, should you report the capital gains on the current year's tax form?

If a neighbor has been trying to sell you a life insurance policy for your children and you already have a 529 plan initiated for them, should you invest a surplus in the insurance policy or just devote more to the 529?

If you bought a house from a private individual who provided a 0% loan that has not allowed for the title transfer and the individual doesn't want you to build a barn on the property, what should you do?

They then waded into the deep waters of the ethics surrounding the upcoming COVID vaccines, whether they use fetal stem cells and whether it is ever ethically acceptable to take an innocent life, even for a so-called greater good. The good news is, major Christian organizations and ethicists have given the green light to two of the upcoming vaccines . . . but not a third.

Also in this week's episode, a federal circuit court has enjoined local ordinances that forbid so-called gay "conversion therapy." Clearly, the law is not settled, and John urges Christian counselors, churches, and institutions not to cave into the cultural narrative that our urges and desires define who we are.

They wrap up the show encouraging Christians to observe the season of Advent—and have some recommendations to make to bless you and your family.

Everyone knows that saving money is good. It gives you peace of mind and prepares you for what lies ahead. But there's another thing about saving - sometimes, it's just not fun. To save, you have to deny yourself. You put off buying something until later or maybe never. But what if you could make saving more enjoyable? Financial planner and teacher Rob has ways you can do that.

Some people do find saving enjoyable. What's their secret?

How do we make saving fun?

Let's say we have a fresh perspective on saving and we're doing it for the right reasons. Does that make it more enjoyable?

Where does the "reward" part come in?

Any practical suggestions to make saving easier?

Next, Rob and Steve answer these questions at 800-525-7000 or via email at Questions@MoneyWiseLive.org:

If you purchased a car a few months ago and you're already getting notices that you could save money by refinancing the loan, how do you know if you should consider them?

What are the advantages and disadvantages of investing in gold?

If someone does want to invest in gold, is it usually in the physical thing?

If your husband has $400,000 in a 401(k) and you have $7,000 and you have about $30,000 of credit card debt for a failed business, should you pull money from the 401(k) to pay off the debt?

If you'll be 64 in May, your full retirement age is 66 1/2, you were furloughed in March and have been drawing unemployment since, how do you know the optimum time to apply for Social Security benefits?

If you're 70 years old, would like to retire and you just sold your principal residence $170,000 and moved into your rental property that you plan to sell after doing some repairs then move into your condo which would leave $150,000 after paying off the condo, how should you navigate selling these properties and where should you put the money?

If a person in your church was saved and turned away from drug addiction and now works at the church, what would be a creative way for your congregation to support him in the future as he'll soon not be physically able to continue his church job.

If you're 80 years old and concerned about the price of things rising, how can you quell your concerns?

Program Name: Moneywise Live

Issue: Social Security Changes

Time Aired: 3:00 PM

Duration: 60:00

Description: It's probably no surprise that nearly 70 million Americans receive Social Security benefits but what you may not realize is that millions of them are still working. It's true; you can receive retirement benefits without actually retiring. And for those people big changes may be coming. Kingdom Advisors President Rob West has the details.

So this show is mainly for folks receiving Social Security benefits but who are still working and folks who expect to do so in the near future?

First one is a change in what's called Retirement Earnings Test Exemption Limits - how much you can earn without having your Social Security benefits reduced.

Why do you suppose the Social Security Administration penalizes you for continuing to work?

What about folks who wait until full retirement age?

Any changes if you wait until full retirement age before receiving benefits?

This is all good news so far. Is there a flip-side?

Workers can expect their take home pay to actually be reduced in 2021?

What advice do you have to compensate?

Description:

John Stonestreet and Shane Morris talk about the turmoil of 2020 and how politics, the election, COVID, economic stress, and even face masks have caused division within families, the nation, and even the body of Christ. How do we reconcile with one another? After all, Jesus wasn't merely suggesting we leave our "gift at the altar" and be reconciled with our brother. It was a command.

Also on today's episode, two interesting reports: Pew Research shows that restrictions on religion across the globe are at an all-time high. Meanwhile, Gallup released a survey that show while Americans' mental health ratings have "sunk to a new low," on group of Americans is doing much better than others: frequent churchgoers.

Time Aired: 3:00 PM

Duration: 60:00

Description: Hebrews 13 has a great reminder for us this time of year ... "Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God." Christmas is almost upon us a time when we naturally feel more generous. So why not strike while the iron's hot? Host Rob West chats with Laurie Farquhar of the National Christian Foundation to explore how to do that. Laurie Farquhar is Chief Strategy Officer in the South Florida office of the National Christian Foundation. She and her team help families and individuals with creative giving solutions to experience more joy in their generosity. Rob and Laurie cover these topics and questions:

We want folks to be aware of end-of-the-year giving opportunities but the creative giving solutions you provide are really for any time of the year, correct?

Last month, we learned about giving stock with NCF but on this episode, as we head into the Christmas season, we'll talk about how to start giving conversations with our kids and grandkids – even if some families aren't able to be together in person this year.

You have 5 questions at NCF that you ask everyone you meet with ... to help guide them about sharing generosity with their loved ones. And the first one is - "Who really owns the things we have?"

Why is it important to start there?

The next question is "What resources has God given us?"

The next question families should ask themselves is ... How do we view our resources?

And now for an especially exciting question families should ask "Where should our money go, and when?"

Our last question for families who want to share an adventure in giving is "How much is enough?"

You began today with a great story about a woman sharing a rich giving experience with her grandchildren but there's more to the story. Share that with us.

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: 2020 review, Covid, Freedom of Religion

Time Aired: 11:30 AM

Duration: 30:00

Description: Shane Morris and Maria Baer join John Stonestreet to talk about the year 2020, and the numerous pre-existing conditions exposed by the pandemic and other trials that will remain critically important in 2021.

Societal trust has been eroding for a long time, but this year invaded our closest relationships, like churches and families. We saw just how many politicians and, for that matter Christians, consider church to be "non-essential." It isn't. And speaking of the Church, John, Shane, and Maria discuss the factors behind last year's scandals involving prominent Christian leaders.

And, of course, issues of race and justice, will re-emerge. The question is whether they'll be hijacked by wokeness, or actually addressed within a framework of human dignity and morality.

Description: One of the public policy discussions right now is the idea of expanding the US Supreme Court. How might that impact our efforts to secure the right to life for unborn babies? It depends if the additional justices support Roe v Wade that legalized abortion throughout pregnancy. Pro-abortion justices would be devastating to our four-decade-long effort to get a pro-life majority on the Court, which we expect is finally there. Added pro-life justices would solidify our goal. We must protect the Supreme Court from being packed with pro-abortion justices that'd ravage our efforts to end abortion.
