

Date aired: ____4/26____ Time Aired:

Weekly Public Affairs Program

Show # 2020-17

Total running time: 29:30 (with optional exit at 24:00)

1. Amy David, PhD, Clinical Assistant Professor of Supply Chain and Operations Management at Purdue University

As store shelves emptied and consumers became frustrated at being unable to get basic supplies during the coronavirus pandemic, many blamed hoarders. Dr. David explained the real reasons behind the shortages, and how the supply chain for food and most other products is much more complex and brittle than most people realize. She talked about ways to build flexibility and redundancies into a supply chain.

Issues covered:
Consumer Matters
Coronavirus

Length: 10:03

2. Brian Walsh, Certified Financial Planner at SoFi, a personal finance company

Mr. Walsh outlined prudent financial steps Americans should take to protect themselves during the COVID-19 economic tailspin. He discussed scenarios for those who are unemployed, those who are worried about their jobs and those who have received stimulus checks.

Issues covered:
Personal Finance
Government Stimulus
Consumer Matters
Coronavirus

Length: 7:17

3. Richard Winchester, JD, Visiting Professor at Seton Hall University School of Law, national authority on small business and federal employment tax policy

Many Americans have received their stimulus payments from the federal government, but millions of others are still waiting. Prof. Winchester offered advice and web site locations for people to check on the payments and to provide information to the government to expedite the process. He also outlined the numerous aspects of economic aid built into the stimulus bill passed by Congress.

Issues covered:
Government Stimulus
Consumer Matters
Unemployment
Coronavirus

Length: 4:56

