LOCAL ISSUES ADDRESSED DURNING THE QUARTER

The following are local issues of concern to the community. Programs that addressed these issues during this reporting period are listed on the following pages.

Local Issue/Concern	Brief description of local issue or concern
Government	Political news in July was dominated by the presidential election, along with a push to legalize medicinal marijuana in Arkansas and political turmoil in Pine Bluff. Debate over whether several Pine Bluff Police Officers should return medals of valor they received after a shootout with a 107-year-old man, was a hot topic among civic leaders in that area for the month of August. In the end, several officers did return their medals. Several stories in September focused on proposals in Little Rock and Pine Bluff, requiring some city workers to live within the city limits. A closer look at the debate surrounding several proposed ballot issues were also frequently reported.
Health	For the month of July, THV11 continued to address the problem of opioid addiction in Arkansas in a 2-part series. The dangerous heat and continued concerns over the zika virus also topped health news. The spread of the Zika virus, and efforts to contain it, continued to make headlines in health news for the month of August. In September, the spread of the mumps virus continued to dominate much of health news. Multiple stories were aired regarding vaccinations, how the virus is spread and the possibility of more people being exposed.
Crime and Public Safety	Several police shootings around the country made news throughout the month of July, along with associated rallies, protests and town hall meetings here in Arkansas. The shooting of a carhop at a Little Rock Sonic also dominated crime news. The trial of Garland Co. Judge Wade Naramore topped crime news a good part of August. He was accused of leaving his toddler in a hot car, where he died. Naramore was acquitted after a week-long trial. The shooting of a law enforcement officer in Northwest Arkansas and the robbery of a North Little Rock Chuck E. Cheese were also big stories this month. The big story in September was the arrest of a North Little Rock man who can be seen in a social media video apparently smoking marijuana with his 3-year-old nephew. Several stories also focused on various shootings over the Month of September. In some cases, police have no suspects. The arrest of civil rights attorney John Walker also made headlines late in the month.

Education	With summer vacation nearing an end, Little Rock’s new superintendent launches an effort to connect with residents, going door-to-door to meet people for the month of July. This, as a Little Rock Montessori school was forced to close its doors. Students headed back to school in August. Ahead of class, the Little Rock superintendent began an effort to meet the community, the new Jacksonville North Pulaski School District geared up for their first year, and consumers were busy buying and donating school supplies. The coming together of the Little Rock School District was among several headlines in education news for September. The district’s new superintendent is making an effort to connect with the community. The closing of ITT Technical College also made local and national news, leaving students with few alternatives.
Consumer/Economy	The consumer story topping headlines in Arkansas and throughout the nation was PokemonGo in July. The game has taken the gaming world by storm. The return of the school year and back-to-school shopping were hot topics in consumer news in August. Large amounts of rainfall also made headlines, as they caused problems for farmers and damaged some businesses. Another recall in September by Ford and a vehicle/boat auction held by Arkansas Game and Fish were very popular among consumers.
Environment	Environmental concerns regarding the destroyed Majestic hotel remained in the news in July, as did proposed development in West Pulaski County. The heat and large amounts of rain in August were the focus of several stories. It increased the risk of Zika and prompted an infestation of army worms. The headline in environmental news for September, the demolition of the Big Dam Bridge, how it would be brought down and the traffic implications.
