Topic: REPORT ABOUT DHS AND FEDERA AUTHORITIES SHARING INFO WITH RACIST GROUPS

Time 11:26pm

Synopsis:

One year ago, activists obstructed the path of federal buses that brought hundreds of undocumented Central American children to a center in Murrieta, California. How did extremist and anti-immigrant groups know the logistics of the transfer? According to a report by the "CENTRO PARA UNA NUEVA COMUNIDAD" (CNC) anti-immigrant and extremist groups were tipped off by DHS. Buses were blocked, and there were instances of aggressions against present pro-immigrant demonstrators. CNC is calling for an investigation against DHS agents who may have provided information to anti-immigrant groups that were present in the 2014 demonstrations. The border patrol denies knowledge about the accusations.

Topic: 4TH OF JULY NATIONAL TERRORISM ALERT

Time: 6:13pm

Synopsis:

Law enforcement often issue warnings over holidays and major national events in an abundance of caution knowing that, from a terrorist's point of view, the timing of an attack can determine how much coverage it gets. For this holiday, though, there are additional concerns, including the recruiting ISIS has done in the United States and the potential for relatively small-scale, but still dangerous, "lone wolf" attacks. Following overseas attacks in June, Department of Homeland Security Jeb Johnson said law enforcement was being encouraged to be "vigilant and prepared" for Independence Day celebrations. "We will also adjust security measures, seen and unseen, as necessary to protect the American people," Johnson said. "We continue to encourage all Americans to attend public events and celebrate this country during this summer season, but always remain vigilant."

Time 6:13pm

Synopsis:

The state of Louisiana, along with four other Gulf States and the Federal Government have reached this agreement in principle with BP to finally and fairly resolve all issues associated with the 2010 deep-water horizon disaster. The agreement, in total, is for 18.7 billion dollars in economic and natural resource damages. The deep-water horizon oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico in April of 2010; the blast killed eleven people and belched millions of gallons of crude into the gulf. BP has already paid billions to clean up the spill.

Topic: VIOLENT WEEKEND IN CHICAGO

Time: 6:11pm

Synopsis:

When a city has seven killings in two days, including the death of a 7-year-old boy, something is systemically wrong. That's what Chicago's police chief said after a spate of bloodshed that tormented the city over the weekend. "We need to repair a broken system," Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy told reporters Sunday. "Criminals don't feel the repercussions of the justice system." Take, for example, the death of 7-year-old Amari Brown. McCarthy said the boy was the unintended victim of a bullet meant for his father, a ranking gang member. The system failed Amari, the police chief said. Amari's father, who has been arrested 45 times and has a lengthy criminal record, should not have been on the streets, McCarthy said. "If Mr. Brown is in custody, his son is alive," McCarthy said. At a vigil Sunday for Amari, family friend Michael Singleton told the media that unless real changes are made, the cycle of violence will continue. Even with a 30% increase in the number of police on the streets over the holiday weekend, seven people were killed between Friday morning and Sunday afternoon, the superintendent said. Another 40 people were wounded in weekend shootings, McCarthy said. And since Friday morning, Chicago police have recovered one illegal gun per hour across the city, McCarthy said.

Topic: MIGRANT TRUMP WORKERS

TIME 6:00PM

Synopsis:

Immigrant workers at Donald Trump's new hotel site were worried. Workers leave the site of the future Trump International Hotel, which is at the site of the Old Post Office Pavilion in Washington D.C. For weeks, dozens of construction workers from Latin America have streamed onto the site of the Old Post Office Pavilion in downtown Washington and taken pride in their work building one of the city's newest luxury hotels. But that job site is now laden with tension after the man behind the project - billionaire developer Donald Trump - put himself at the center of the nation's debate over illegal immigration. Trump garnered headlines - and prompted several business associates to sever relations with him - when he launched his bid for the Republican presidential nomination last month with a controversial description of drug dealers and "rapists" crossing the border each day into the United States from Mexico. But a Trump company may be relying on some undocumented workers to finish the $200 million hotel, which will sit five blocks from the White House on Pennsylvania Avenue, according to several who work there. A Trump spokeswoman said the company and its contractors follow all applicable laws. But in light of Trump's comments, some of the workers at the site said they are now worried about their jobs - while others simply expressed disgust over the opinions of the man ultimately responsible for the creation of those jobs. Trump: Immigrants bring 'drugs ... crime' to U.S. from Mexico Real estate mogul Donald Trump said during his presidential announcement that many Mexicans crossing into the United States are drug traffickers and rapists, though he said he assumes some are "good people." All of them said they have been talking about Trump ever since his inflammatory remarks dominated coverage of his presidential announcement on June 16.

Topic: "COME OUT" CAMPAIGN FOR UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS

TIME 11:26PM

Synopsis:

Undocumented immigrants are going Hollywood. In an effort to get more Americans to understand their stories and push Washington to pass an immigration law, advocates kick off a campaign Tuesday to get undocumented immigrants to "come out." Rather than conceal their identities and hide from law enforcement officials, those who came to the U.S. illegally are being asked to share their stories through videos on a website to help show what they do for the country. And the campaign is getting help from some heavy hitters in Hollywood. "The biggest risk already happened when you crossed the border," said Cesar Millan, who illegally entered from Mexico long before he became known as the "Dog Whisperer" on the National Geographic Channel. "You might not have any papers yet, but you're already a member of this pack, you're already a person who produces and helps the economy of America." The push is the latest step in a slowly developing strategy by undocumented immigrants to go public as a way to push for action from Washington and to use the publicity to protect themselves from deportation.

TIME 2:15PM

Synopsis:

Technical glitches brought 3 major institutions to their knees today, although none of the issues appear to be connected. The New York Stock Exchange suspended trading at 11:32 a.m. today because of an internal technical issue. The exchange says the problem is not the result of a cyber-breach. The Wall Street Journal's homepage stopped functioning around the same time. Earlier in the day United Airlines' computer system malfunctioned, but it was back up by the time NYSE had problems. Trading has been halted since 11:32 a.m. on the exchange because of a technical problem, the NYSE has said. Officials and the exchange have said that there is no indication that the problem is the result of a cyber-attack.

Officials have also said there is no sign that it is related to a computer outage that grounded United Airlines flights Wednesday morning.

Topic: REPORT ON IMMIGRANTS

TIME 5:23PM

Synopsis:

When it comes to understanding the relationship between immigration and crime, anecdotes are no substitute for evidence. And, as a new report from the American Immigration Council explains, the evidence has been clear for more than a century: high rates of immigration are associated with lower crime rates, and immigrants are less likely to commit serious crimes or be behind bars than the native-born. This holds true for both legal immigrants and the unauthorized, regardless of their country of origin or level of education. In other words, the overwhelming majority of immigrants are not "criminals" by any commonly accepted definition of the term. Consider the following data presented in the report: Higher Immigration is Associated with Lower Crime Rates Between 1990 and 2013, the foreign-born share of the U.S. population grew from 7.9 percent to 13.1 percent and the number of unauthorized immigrants more than tripled from 3.5 million to 11.2 million. During the same period, FBI data indicate that the violent crime rate declined 48 percent-which included falling rates of aggravated assault, robbery, rape, and murder. Likewise, the property crime rate fell 41 percent, including declining rates of motor vehicle theft, larceny/robbery, and burglary. Immigrants are Less Likely than the Native-Born to Be Behind Bars According to an original analysis of data from the 2010 American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the authors of this report, roughly 1.6 percent of immigrant males age 18-39 are incarcerated, compared to 3.3 percent of the native-born. This disparity in incarceration rates has existed for decades, as evidenced by data from the 1980, 1990, and 2000 decennial censuses. In each of those years, the incarceration rates of the native-born were anywhere from two to five times higher than that of immigrants. The 2010 Census data reveals that incarceration rates among the young, less-educated Mexican, Salvadoran, and Guatemalan men who make up the bulk of the unauthorized population are significantly lower than the incarceration rate among native-born young men without a high-school diploma.

Time: 6:12pm

Synopsis:

South Carolina Governor Nikki Haley signed legislation on Thursday to permanently remove the Confederate battle flag from the state capitol grounds, following an emotional debate spurred by the massacre of nine black churchgoers last month. Haley signed the bill into law in the State House Rotunda before an audience of legislators and dignitaries shortly after 4 p.m. ET The flag will go to the "relic room" of a military museum in Columbia, the state capital. The rebel banner, carried by Confederate troops in the 1861-1865 Civil War, is seen as a symbol of racism and slavery by many, while others proudly hail it as an emblem of Southern heritage. It has flown at the state capitol for 54 years. South Carolina was planning to keep the flag relocation "as low-key as the national media will let us," said Haley spokeswoman Chaney Adams.

Topic: 21 MILLION HACKED AT SOCIAL SECURITY

Time: 11:26pm

Synopsis:

Two major breaches last year of U.S. government databases holding personnel records and security-clearance files exposed sensitive information on at least 22.1 million people, including not only federal employees and contractors but their families and friends. US officials said the total vastly exceeds all previous estimates, and marks the most detailed accounting by the Office of Personnel Management of how many people were affected by cyber intrusions that U.S. officials have privately said were traced to the Chinese government. But even beyond the rising number of apparent victims, U.S. officials said the breaches rank among the most potentially damaging cyber heists in U.S. government history because of the abundant detail in the files. Officials said hackers accessed not only personnel records of current and former employees but also extensive information about friends, relatives and others listed as references in applications for security clearances for some of the most sensitive jobs in government.

Topic: TRUMP CONTROVERSIAL DECLARATIONS IN PHOENIX, ARIZONA

Time: 6:22pm

Synopsis:

It wasn't quite the 9,000 people Donald Trump had said would show up to his rally in Phoenix. The number, in fact, was less than half of that. But around 4,000 people still gathered to hear the real estate mogul, reality star, and presidential contender spout xenophobic words. "I love the Mexican people ... I respect Mexico ... but the problem we have is that their leaders are much sharper, smarter and more cunning than our leaders, and they're killing us at the border," said Trump, according to Politico. "They're taking our jobs. They're taking our manufacturing jobs. They're taking our money. They're killing us." No one should interpret his words as anti-immigrant, Trump insisted, noting he's a fan of those who enter the country legally. "They flow in like water, and I love legal immigration. I love it," he said. "We should make it easier, and faster." Ever the showman, Trump made fun of his rivals for the White House and mocked the companies that have cut ties with him over his recent comments. "Thousands and thousands of people are cutting up their Macy's credit card. I love it," he said. Trump also called Hillary Clinton "the worst secretary of State in the history of our country." He also expressed surprise at a poll that showed him tied with former Florida Governor Jeb Bush for the Republican vote. "How could I be tied with this guy? He's terrible!" Trump said. What qualifies Trump to be president? "I'm really smart," he said. In fact, he's so smart that as soon as he was to move in to the White House he could solve problems in no time at all. He told the crowd he would be able to get hostages returned "in an hour" and would tax Mexico each time someone crossed the border illegally. He said he could convince the head of Ford Motor Co to move a plant back to the United States from Mexico overnight, with a couple of phone calls. About 20 minutes into the speech a group of protesters interrupted the real estate mogul but were immediately drowned out by supporters shouting "U-S-A! U-S-A!" ... "I wonder if the Mexican government sent them over here. I think so," Trump said. "Don't worry; we'll take out country back."

Topic: RICARDO DIAZ-ZEFERINO KILLING RESULTS IN SETTLEMENT

Time 6:08pm

Synopsis:

A shocking video showing three police officers gun down an unarmed 34-year-old man two years ago has been made public after a federal judge ordered its release. the officers said they opened fire on Ricardo Diaz-Zeferino because he lowered his hands to his waist and they thought he was reaching for a gun. officers Christopher Mendez, Christopher Sanderson and Matthew Toda were not charged in the June 2, 2013, shooting, but the City of Gardena settled a $4.7 million lawsuit with Diaz-Zeferino's family and another man who was wounded. According to family attorney Samuel Paz, the videos show the cold-blooded shooting of clearly unarmed men. The officers were back on full duty within a month of the shooting and were not disciplined. judge Stephen V. Wilson said in his decision that "the fact that they spent the city's money, presumably derived from taxes, only strengthens the public's interest in seeing the videos" and that "moreover, defendants cannot assert a valid compelling interest in sealing the videos to cover up any wrongdoing on their part or to shield themselves from embarrassment." Gardena police chief Ed Medrano said in a statement, "the events that night in 2013 were tragic for all involved. we continue to sympathize with the families and regret their loss.

Time: 6:11pm

Synopsis:

Mohammad Youssuf Abdulazeez was carrying 30-round magazines when he opened fire, according to a source briefed by law enforcement. Abdulazeez kept police at bay for some time with the amount of ammunition he had, according to the source. The shooting suspect was armed with an AK-47 style weapon at the time of the attack according to two law enforcement officials briefed on the investigation. Witnesses saw Abdulazeez spray a hail of bullets at the glass doors of a military recruiting center in a strip mall. Then the gunman, who according to a law enforcement official was driving in a rented silver Ford Mustang convertible, moved on to his next target more than seven miles away: a Naval reserve center. There, he rammed into a gate at some point during his shooting rampage and was eventually killed by police, a U.S. official said.

Time: 6:14pm

Synopsis:

Four Marines were killed Thursday in shootings at a pair of military facilities in Tennessee by a gunman who is being investigated for possible ties to Islamist terrorist groups, U.S. law enforcement officials said. The shooter, identified by the FBI as Mohammad Youssef Abdul-azeez, 24, of Hixson, Tenn., was killed, apparently by police, at the end of a rampage that also wounded a Chattanooga police officer and a member of the U.S. military. The assault marks the latest eruption of gun violence in the United States. It comes amid a flurry of recent arrests, disrupted plots and warnings from U.S. counterterrorism officials that the Islamic State terrorist group has called on its followers to mount attacks against U.S. targets, including military installations. In brief remarks Thursday evening at the White House, President Obama described the Marines' deaths as a "heartbreaking circumstance for these individuals who have served our country with great valor."

Time: 5:22pm ET

Synopsis:

Florida Sen. Marco Rubio says Donald Trump's comment that Sen. John McCain is not a war hero should disqualify him from the 2016 presidential race. "It's not just absurd, it's offensive. It's ridiculous. And I do think it's a disqualifier as commander-in-chief," Rubio said in an interview Sunday on CNN. The Florida senator was the latest Republican White House contender to hit Trump after the real estate mogul said Saturday that McCain "is not a war hero" because he was captured and held prisoner in Vietnam. "He is a war hero because he was captured," Trump said. "I like people that weren't captured, OK?" He took back those comments on Twitter later, saying that "captured or not, all our soldiers are heroes!" But opponents who'd been looking for openings to criticize Trump were already piling on. Rubio defended Republicans who were slow to criticize Trump over his controversial comments about undocumented Mexican immigrants a week ago, too, saying that it's been Trump's rise in the polls that has "required people to be more forceful on some of these offensive things he is saying." Trump defended himself Sunday, issuing a statement touting his financial contributions to veterans' causes and criticizing Veterans Affairs hospitals with long waits for military veterans to receive medical care.

Time: 2:17pm ET

Synopsis:

Republican lawmakers expressed their discontent on Monday after the US and Cuba formally ended more than a half-century of estrangement, formally re-establishing diplomatic relations severed at the height of the Cold War. Speaking in Miami, two Republican lawmakers representing the Miami area, home to more than a million Cuban immigrants who are traditionally staunchly opposed to the Castro regime, voiced their concerns that a new Cuban embassy on US soil could be used as a hub for espionage. Some US lawmakers, including several prominent Republican presidential candidates, have vowed not to repeal the trade embargo and have pledged to roll back US President Barack Obama's moves to normalize relations with its island neighbor. On Monday, Cuban Foreign Minister Bruno Rodriguez presided over the flag-raising ceremony at the new Cuban embassy in Washington, DC, just hours after an agreement to restore diplomatic ties broken in 1961 took effect at the stroke of midnight. He later met with US Secretary of State John Kerry, becoming the first Cuban foreign minister to set foot in the State Department since 1958.

Time: 3:22pm ET

Synopsis:

New York moved on Wednesday to raise the minimum wage for fast-food workers to $15 an hour by the end of 2018 in New York City and by mid-2021 in the rest of the state. The New York Wage Board voted unanimously for the increase, which would cover some 180,000 workers statewide and affect fast-food chains with 30 locations or more in the United States. The three-member board was formed at the behest of Governor Andrew Cuomo in May after the state legislature turned down his proposals for minimum wage increases for most workers. With the federal minimum wage at $7.25 an hour since 2009, labor and religious groups have pressed state and local governments to enact pay raises as their hopes dim for an increase by the Republican-controlled U.S. Congress. Last month, Los Angeles set its minimum wage to rise from $9 an hour to $15 by 2020, affecting some 600,000 workers. Seattle and San Francisco also have increased minimum wages in recent years. A statewide wage increase for fast-food workers as opposed to city-based would be a first, said the National Employment Law Project, a nonprofit advocacy group. The rise to $15 an hour marks a major step from New York's current minimum wage of $8.75.

Synopsis:

The 11 million Americans who receive Social Security disability face steep benefit cuts next year. The trustees who oversee Social Security and Medicare said the disability trust fund will run out of money in late 2016. That would trigger an automatic 19 percent cut in benefits, unless Congress acts. The average monthly benefit for disabled workers and their families is $1,017. The typical beneficiary would see a reduction of $193 a month. In more bad news for beneficiaries, the trustee's report there will be no cost-of-living increase in benefits at the end of the year. It would mark only the third year without an increase since automatic adjustments were adopted in 1975. Separately, about 7 million Medicare beneficiaries could face a monthly premium increase of at least $54 for outpatient coverage. That works out to an increase of more than 50 percent. The annual report card on the financial health of Social Security and Medicare shows that the federal government's largest benefit programs are feeling the strain of aging baby boomers as they both approach milestone anniversaries.

Time: 3:37am ET

Synopsis:

In an angry rebuke, a judge on Friday ordered the U.S. Marshals Service to seize a collection of records from Sheriff Joe Arpaio's office and leveled harsh criticism at the sheriff's lawyers for failing to turn over documents that had been requested months ago in a racial profiling case. U.S. District Judge Murray Snow's criticism centered on the agency's failure to hand over more than 1,400 identification documents in a related investigation into allegations that deputies pocketed items during busts. The judge also focused on the agency's refusal to turn over 50 hard drives from Arpaio's secret investigation involving the judge. Arpaio attorney John Masterson said an official who is monitoring the sheriff's office on behalf of Snow had resorted to threatening to have a court hearing called in a bid to get the records turned over. "I am sorry your feelings are hurt, but we need to resolve this matter," Snow told Masterson at an emergency hearing Friday. Robert Warshaw, the official monitoring the sheriff's office for the judge, said he learned the ID documents were slated for destruction and that there was an order at the sheriff's office that the existence of the ID records shouldn't be voluntarily revealed. The court monitor said the unit of the sheriff's office that stores evidence is a lockbox for keeping unflattering documents from public or court scrutiny. Arpaio didn't attend the hearing. The sheriff's office declined to comment on Warshaw's comments, saying only that the truth of the matter will be revealed in the future.

Time 6:21pm ET

Synopsis:

In the first national telephone poll since Donald Trump earned rebukes from Republican leaders over his comments about Senator John McCain's military service, the real estate mogul has increased his support among GOP voters and now stands atop the race for the party's nomination. The new CNN/ORC Poll finds Trump at 18% support among Republicans, with former Florida governor Jeb Bush just behind at 15%, within the poll's margin of error. They are joined at the top of the pack by Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker, with 10% support among Republicans and Republican-leaning independents that are registered to vote. Trump's backing has climbed 6 points since a late-June poll, while support for Bush and Walker has not changed significantly. None of the other 14 candidates tested in the new CNN/ORC survey earned double-digit support. Though Trump currently tops the race for the nomination, his advantage is by no means firm. A majority of Republican voters, 51%, say they see the field as wide open, and that it's too soon to say which candidate they will ultimately get behind. Among that group that sees the contest as wide open, Bush has 14% support, while Trump has the backing of 13% and Walker stands at 9%. Trump does much better among those Republicans who say they've narrowed it down to one or two candidates, 24% of that group backs him, 16% Bush and 12% Walker. Trump's popularity among Republican voters does not translate to the broader pool of registered voters. When tested in hypothetical general election matchups against top Democrats, he trails both frontrunner Hillary Clinton and upstart Senator Bernie Sanders by wide margins. Bush and Walker run just behind Clinton and about even with Sanders. Trump's un-favorability rating is sky high. Overall, 59% of all registered voters have an unfavorable opinion of Trump, though that dips to 42% among GOP voters. None of the other Republicans landing near the top of the field have such a negative image nationwide, though many remain little known. Clinton is the only candidate who is about as well-known as Trump, and while she is more well-liked than the developer, her favorability rating is negative among registered voters nationally: 49% have an unfavorable view while 44% have a positive impression.

Topic: JUDGE ORDERS RELEASE OF IMMIGRANT CHILDREN DETAINED BY U.S

Time: 6:13pm ET

Synopsis:

A federal ruling criticized the conditions in which children who crossed the border from Mexico are held. A federal judge in California has ruled that the Obama administration's detention of children and their mothers who were caught crossing the border illegally is a serious violation of a longstanding court settlement, and that the families should be released as quickly as possible. In a decision late Friday roundly rejecting the administration's arguments for holding the families, Judge Dolly M. Gee of Federal District Court for the Central District of California found that two detention centers in Texas that the administration opened last summer fail to meet minimum legal requirements of the 1997 settlement for facilities housing children. Judge Gee also found that migrant children had been held in "widespread deplorable conditions" in Border Patrol stations after they were first caught, and she said the authorities had "wholly failed" to provide the "safe and sanitary" conditions required for children even in temporary cells. The opinion was a significant legal blow to detention policies ordered by Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson in response to an influx of children and parents, mostly from Central America, across the border in South Texas last summer. In her 25-page ruling, Judge Gee gave a withering critique of the administration's positions, declaring them "unpersuasive" and "dubious" and saying officials had ignored "unambiguous" terms of the settlement.

Republican White House hopeful Jeb Bush vows to launch comprehensive immigration reform, including stronger borders and finding a way for the 11 million undocumented people in the country to make their status legal. Back in 2008, then-candidate Barack Obama pledged to seek a major immigration policy reform that would let the undocumented stay indefinitely. But his efforts hit a wall in the Republican-run Congress. According to former Florida governor Bush, a president is only going to be able to carry off the sometimes controversial issue if the new leader "is committed to protecting the border" and to building people's trust. "That is the way it is. I am making the commitment, and I know that we can get it done," Bush said in an interview with Telemundo network, the first he has done completely in Spanish since throwing his hat in the ring. The son of ex-president George H.W. Bush and brother to former president George W. Bush explained his plan would see 11 million people come out of the shadows, get a legal work permit, pay taxes and a fine, as well as learn English without getting federal benefits but while eventually obtaining permanent legal status. Jeb Bush's take on immigration -- far more liberal than most Republicans' stands -- could help him get more support from Hispanics, the United States fastest-growing minority group.

Police say an escort in West Virginia shot and killed a client in self-defense. Now, authorities are investigating the possibility that the man was a serial killer. A West Virginia woman says she narrowly escaped with her life after meeting 45-year-old Neal Falls. The woman known as Heather met Falls after he answered her escort ad on the backpage.com. She says he became aggressive within minutes -- wrapping his hands around her throat. Moments later, she was running from her Charleston home -- chasing down a neighbor, who called 9-1-1. Investigators say Falls may be a serial killer after finding an arsenal of weapons described as a "kill kit" in his Subaru. He also had a list of ten women with names, ages, and contact information -- all of them escorts, at least nine of them in West Virginia. None appear to have met the suspect. Investigators are now looking at Falls' past and possible connections to cases in Nevada, Oregon, and Illinois. Authorities say an item found in his car is believed to be linked to evidence discovered on several dismembered bodies in Las Vegas back in 2005, where Falls lived at the time. Their remains found in trash bags... all of them escorts. One of the cases under scrutiny: Lindsay Marie Harris, whose dismembered legs were recovered in Illinois three weeks after she went missing. Falls former landlord says she had him evicted a year after he moved in and describes his behavior as odd. While sources say that no evidence has yet pointed to a direct link, Heather believes she stopped Falls from hurting others. Police say the victim, "Heather," suffered a broken vertebra and a separated shoulder during her struggle with Neal Falls. Detectives say she will not face charges in the shooting.

Topic: HILLARY CLINTON ON CUBA

Time: 4:35am ET

Synopsis:

Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton said the Cuban embargo must be lifted in an address made Friday from Miami, the heart of the Cuban exile community. The speech was rife with symbolism. Clinton's husband, former President Bill Clinton, signed the embargo into law in 1996 as he faced re-election. Clinton made the Friday speech from Florida International University, where Sen. Marco Rubio (R-Fla.), who is vying for the Republican presidential nomination, has served as an adjunct professor. Rubio opposes an end to the embargo, as does one of his main primary opponents, former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush (R), whose campaign headquarters are based in Miami. "America's approach to Cuba is at a crossroads," Clinton noted as she traced a gradual normalizing of relations with the country that began in 2009, when President Barack Obama made it easier for Cubans to visit and send money to their relatives on the island. Though Obama's administration began to restore diplomatic and economic ties with Cuba starting in December and dropped it from its list of state sponsors of terror this year, only Congress can vote to end the restrictions and sanctions that make up the embargo. "We must decide between engagement and embargo, between embracing fresh thinking and returning to Cold War deadlock," Clinton continued. "And the choices we make will have lasting consequences, not just for 11 million Cubans but also for American leadership across our hemisphere and around the world." Polling has shown that a majority of Americans support ending the embargo. A poll of Cuban-Americans conducted by Bendixen & Amadi International in March found 51 percent favored normalizing relations with the island.

Time: 6:10pm ET

Synopsis:

According to Republican presidential hopeful Jeb Bush, border security and the interior enforcement of immigration laws is possible. It includes cracking down on sanctuary cities that undermine efforts to enforce immigration laws. "When Clint Bolick and I published Immigration Wars in 2013, we presented a number of proposals to strengthen America's immigration policy. The Border security and the interior enforcement of immigration laws, including a greater role for states, formed key parts of this package of reforms. We emphasized that finding a practical solution to the status of the people who are here illegally today is a nonstarter if our borders are not secure against future illegal immigration". Bush believes that for those already in the country, "we need to put in place a rigorous path that requires individuals to pass a thorough criminal background check, pay fines, pay taxes, learn English, obtain a provisional work permit and work, not receive federal government assistance, and over an extended period of time earn legal status. But any plan to address the status of illegal immigrants must be accompanied by a robust strategy to improve border security." According to Bush "...securing the border is possible, but it will require Washington to move beyond divisive rhetoric. The following six proposals offer concrete steps that the federal government should take to help secure the border and enforce our immigration laws. We must transform immigration from a broken system into one that benefits every American."

Topic: LOUISIANA GOVERNOR AND PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFUL BOBBY JINDAL AND SANCTUARY CITIES

Time: 4:35am ET

Synopsis:

If it were up to GOP presidential candidate Bobby Jindal, mayors of "sanctuary cities" would all be arrested and sued. In an interview with Boston Herald Radio on Monday, the Louisiana governor took a firm stance against those cities and counties that refuse to fully cooperate with Immigration and Customs Enforcement. "I would hold them as an accomplice, make them criminally culpable. I'd also make them civilly liable so that families -- victims' families -- could sue," Jindal said, alluding to a previously deported felon who was charged with the murder of Kathryn Steinle in San Francisco last month. The incident has been a major talking point among Republicans targeting immigration policy. "Especially if the prosecutors aren't taking action or the mayor's not changing their ways, I'd allow the families to go to court to sue them civilly as well to recover damages," he continued. There are a wide range of ways in which jurisdictions deal with ICE, ranging from those that comply completely to those where city employees are barred from questioning people about their immigration status and where the use of municipal resources cannot be used to enforce immigration law. When HuffPost asked Jindal's campaign which definition the candidate is using when he refers to sanctuary cities, it directed us to this map. Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush also spoke out against sanctuary cities on Monday and called for police to become more involved in enforcing immigration laws. Joseph Curtatone, mayor of the sanctuary city Somerville, Massachusetts, joined Boston Herald Radio after Jindal's segment and brushed off the comments as an attention-seeking tactic. "You say something absurd, you fear monger, you play to the crowd, you try to create the crowd and the mob -- and we're smarter than that," Curtatone said. "We're better than that. To say a blanket statement that sanctuary cities in and of itself spur someone to commit a heinous crime is really offensive."

Time: 2:27am ET

Synopsis:

The death toll from New York City's outbreak of Legionnaires' disease has climbed to seven as city health officials continue to claim they have the health crisis under control. So far, 81 people have been infected, including 28 who've been treated and discharged. The NYC Health Department says all of the victims who died from the severe form of pneumonia were older and had other underlying ailments. Officials believe the outbreak is tied to bacteria in large cooling systems. Nationwide, there have been 2,400 cases of Legionnaires' disease this year. NYC Mayor Bill de Blasio will be speaking about the crisis later today.

Topic: TEXAS VOTER ID

Time: 6:10pm ET

Synopsis:

A federal appeals court declared that Texas' strict 2011 voter ID law has a "discriminatory effect" on minorities and violates the Voting Rights Act. But the three-judge panel's unanimous, 49-page decision also overturned a lower court's previous assertion that the law amounted to an unconstitutional "poll tax." Here's a closer look at the Wednesday ruling, the law and where the case stands now. The U.S. 5th Circuit Court in New Orleans found that Texas' law requiring residents to show state-approved IDs in order to cast ballots violated Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, a 50-year old federal statute prohibiting discrimination against minorities. Its ruling followed a decision last year by the lower, Corpus-Christi-based U.S. District Court that likened the law to an unconstitutional "poll tax" that could require some poor

Texans to pay to vote because of fees associated with obtaining necessary IDs. The ruling Wednesday rejected the "poll tax" finding since Texas has taken steps to allow residents to receive IDs for free. But it upheld the lower court's assertion that the effect of the law was nonetheless discriminatory. The case returns to the U.S. District Court, which will have to decide whether the Texas Legislature intended to discriminate against minority voters when it drafted and passed the law. Opponents of voter ID cheered Wednesday's ruling as a victory -- albeit a narrow one. Republican Gov. Greg Abbott, who defended the law in court as state attorney general before becoming governor in January, vowed that "Texas will continue to fight for its voter ID requirement to ensure the integrity of elections."

Topic: US OFFICIALS ASK JUDGE NOT TO END IMMIGRANT FAMILY DETENTION

Time: 6:30pm ET

Synopsis:

The U.S. government has asked a federal judge to reconsider her ruling calling for the immediate release of children and their mothers caught entering the U.S. illegally from Mexico, saying recent changes mean federal authorities are no longer violating a ban on holding immigrant children in secure facilities. In late July, U.S. District Judge Dolly Gee ordered the release of all children from immigrant family detention centers "without unnecessary delay," along with any mothers not deemed a flight or national security risk. Justice Department lawyers late Thursday filed documents at the California Central District Court urging Gee to not implement her decision, saying the Department of Homeland Security intends to turn the centers into short-term processing facilities that her ruling "addressed practices and policies that no longer exist." The government says detention time has been reduced to only a few weeks for most families, and that reducing it further would hinder processing asylum claims and could force the separation of mothers from their children in the event of another wave of migration. Moreover, further limits on detention "would heighten the risk of another surge in illegal migration," the filing said, "by incentivizing adults to bring children with them on their dangerous journey as a means to avoid detention and gain access to the interior of the United States." The government asked for another chance to argue its case before the judge, citing the "potentially far-reaching scope of the remedies proposed," and the short time -- 90 days -- it would have to put them in place. Homeland Security spokeswoman Marsha Catron said the agency has asked to the judge to reconsider, "taking into account the current legal landscape and considerable changes we have already made to address the situation."

Topic: DONALD TRUMP REMARKS IN REPUBLICAN DEBATE GET HIM BOOTED FROM ATLANTA EVENT

Time: 5:10pm ET

Synopsis:

Donald Trump is not coming to Atlanta this weekend after all. The organizer of the RedState Gathering has rescinded the Republican presidential candidate's invitation to speak at a Saturday evening rally at the College Football Hall of Fame. Erick Erickson said the billionaire's comments about Fox News anchor Megyn Kelly were "a bridge too far." Trump told CNN on Friday that "you could see there was blood coming out of her eyes. Blood coming out of her wherever" as she questioned him during Thursday's Republican presidential debate. Here's precisely what Trump said: Erickson took issue with Trump's comments - particularly the "wherever" part - in a post to his blog overnight. A taste: "While Mr. Trump resonates with a lot of people with his bluntness, including me to a degree, there are just real lines of decency a person running for President should not cross. "His comment was inappropriate. It is unfortunate to have to disinvite him. But I just don't want someone on stage who gets a hostile question from a lady and his first inclination is to imply it was hormonal. It just was wrong." Erickson elaborated on Saturday morning, telling the event's hundreds of attendees that he thought it was "weak and pathetic to take a tough question from a journalist and assume she's on her period and that's why she asked a tough question." "I have said some really unfortunate things in my life, and I've apologized for them. It is not political correctness, it's common decency," said Erickson, an occasional paid analyst for Fox News. "If you don't have a little voice in your head saying, 'No you actually screwed up,' it's going to end badly for you." He added: "I don't want Donald Trump in the room with my daughter tonight so that's why he was disinvited." In an interview with The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, Erickson said he called and emailed the Trump campaign late Friday night in search of clarification or an apology. Neither came. "They were immediately hostile and refused to even admit he said it," Erickson said. Trump on Saturday took to Twitter to defend himself and said the "wherever" part of his comments to CNN referred to Kelly's "nose."

Synopsis:

The average price of gasoline has dropped 11 cents over the past two weeks to $2.71 a gallon. Industry analyst Trilby Lundberg said Sunday that the current average sits 81 cents below the year-ago price. The cheapest price recorded in the continental United States was $2.19 a gallon in Charleston, South Carolina. The highest was $3.80 a gallon in Los Angeles. California saw a 21-cent price drop over the past two weeks -- following a huge spike caused by a brief supply shortage. Lundberg says supplies are flowing again and pump prices are poised to drop further in the Golden State. The national average price of diesel was down 8 cents over the same period to $2.78 a gallon.

About 50 protesters have been arrested after blocking the entrance to a St. Louis federal courthouse while calling for more aggressive U.S. government response to what they call racist law enforcement practices. The arrests of scholar and civil rights activist Cornel West and the few dozen others were part of what's been billed as a national day of civil disobedience. They come a day after the one-year observance of the Ferguson police shooting death of Michael Brown, and police shooting there Sunday night that wounded another black 18-year-old, who police say fired on officers during nighttime protests. Monday's arrests came after a roughly mile-long march from a St. Louis church to the Eagleton courthouse. That's where marchers demanded federal action to stop what policing they say targets minorities. The protesters then scaled a waist-high barricade, staging a sit-in before advancing past police to the entrances

Synopsis:

"Alien is now commonly considered a derogatory term for a foreign-born person and has very negative connotations," "The word 'alien,' and any law prescribing an order for the issuance of employment to 'aliens,' have no place in the laws of our state and more importantly, should never be the basis for any employment hiring." The new measure amends a law enacted in 1937 that said "aliens" should be hired on public works contracts only after citizens of the United States. Part of that law creating an order of hiring was repealed in 1970, but the term "alien" remains in the labor code. Brown also approved a new law allowing high school students who are legal permanent residents to serve as poll workers in California elections to help with the growing language issue of a more diverse voting population. And he signed a bill barring the consideration of a child's immigration status in civil actions involving liability. That measure, AB 560 by Assemblyman Jimmy Gomez (D-Los Angeles), is in response to a lawsuit by more than 80 elementary school children against the Los Angeles Unified School District over alleged sexual misconduct by a former teacher at Miramonte Elementary School.

Topic: BRIBES PAID TO CALIFORNIA DMV EMPLOYEES FOR ILLEGAL COMERCIAL DRIVERS LICENSES

Time: 11:37pm ET

Synopsis:

At least 100 commercial truck drivers paid up to $5,000 each to bribe California Department of Motor Vehicles employees for illegal licenses, federal authorities said on Tuesday. Officials said up to 23 traffic accidents could be related to the fraud, though there were no fatalities. Emma Klem, a 45-year-old Salinas DMV employee, and trucking school owner Kulwidner Dosanjh Singh, 58, both pleaded guilty Tuesday to commit bribery and identity fraud, U.S. Attorney Benjamin Wagner said. Two other DMV employees in Salinas and Sacramento and two other Central Valley trucking school operators have been arrested on similar charges. The employees changed computer records to falsely show that drivers had passed written and behind-the-wheel tests after they were bribed by the owners of three truck-driving schools between June 2011 and March 2015, according to court documents. "Individuals who use their positions to obtain commercial drivers' licenses for unskilled and untested drivers jeopardize our nation's security and safety. Allowing unqualified drivers to operate heavy commercial trucks on our highways is honestly quite chilling," said Carol Webster, acting assistant special agent in charge of the U.S. Homeland Security Investigations office in Sacramento. DMV examiners Andrew Kimura, 30, of Sacramento and Robert Turchin, 65, of Salinas were indicted last week on charges of conspiracy, bribery and fraud in connection with identification documents, along with trucking school owners Pavitar Dosangh Singh, 55, of Sacramento, and Mangal Gill, 55, of San Ramon. Class A commercial drivers' licenses are required to operate trucks, including 18-wheel cargo semitrailers. They are tougher to obtain than regular driver licenses. Applicants must pass both a written test and a behind-the-wheel test that is offered at a limited number of DMV locations, including Salinas. The DMV has canceled or revoked more than 600 licenses that are potentially linked to fraud, including 100 that were pinpointed by investigators, DMV chief investigator Frank Alvarez said. Drivers can retake the tests, sometimes after a hearing, and Wagner said none are likely to be prosecuted during the ongoing probe because investigators are targeting the organizers.

Topic: NEW GALLUP POLL REGARDING US CITIZENS IN FAVOR OF IMMIGRATION REFORM TO ALLOW UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS TO STAY IN THIS COUNTRY

Time: 6:09pm ET

Synopsis:

Two in three U.S. adults favor a plan to allow immigrants who are living illegally in the U.S. to remain in the country and become citizens if they meet certain requirements over time. Far fewer support allowing those immigrants to remain in the U.S. to work for a limited period of time (14%), or to deport all of these immigrants back to their home countries (19%). U.S. adults' views have been largely stable over the past decade. The latest update comes from Gallup's 2015 Minority Rights and Relations poll, conducted June 15-July 10. The poll included larger samples of blacks and Hispanics. Immigration is of special significance to Hispanics, about half of whom are immigrants themselves, according to the poll. Hispanics (77%) are more likely than non-Hispanic whites (62%) or non-Hispanic blacks (70%) to favor a path to citizenship for immigrants who are in the U.S. illegally. One in five whites, compared with 14% of blacks and 8% of Hispanics, prefer deporting undocumented immigrants back to their home countries. Hispanics are slightly less likely now than in 2006 (86%) to favor a path to citizenship for immigrants. The 2006 survey was the last time Gallup asked the question in a poll that included an expanded sample of Hispanics. Whites' and blacks' views are largely unchanged since then.

In an open letter on Thursday, former Cuban leader Fidel Castro said the US owed Cuba millions of dollars because of its 53-year-long embargo. Mr. Kerry described the hoisting of the flag as a "historic moment" speaking during the ceremony on Friday. But he also warned that the US would not stop pressing for political change in Cuba. "The people of Cuba would be best served by a genuine democracy, where people are free to choose their leaders," he told a crowd of hundreds gathered outside the embassy building. Mr. Kerry said Congress will not lift the economic embargo if there is no movement on issues of freedom of conscience.

Topic: GOP CANDIDATES VISIT IOWA STATE FAIR

Time: 5:37pm ET

Synopsis:

Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Rodham Clinton is standing firm that she never sent or received emails on her homebrew email server that were marked classified. Clinton tells reporters at the Iowa State Fair on Saturday she was going to let the inquiry into her email use go forward. Clinton turned the server over to the FBI recently to investigate the security of her email setup. Thousands of pages of her emails publicly released in recent months show Clinton did receive messages later marked classified, including some that contained material regarding the production and dissemination of U.S. intelligence. Clinton's use of a homemade server during her time as secretary of state has dogged her campaign. She blamed her Republican challengers and GOP House members on Saturday for turning the affair into a partisan issue. Republican presidential front-runner Donald Trump is set for a rock-star's entrance to the fair, landing in a helicopter in athletic fields just over a mile from the fairgrounds. He plans to visit the famed butter cow, but the Des Moines Register's political soapbox isn't on his itinerary. Trump is feuding with the newspaper after it published an editorial last month calling for the real estate mogul to end his bid for the White House. The Trump campaign, in turn, denied credentials to the newspaper's reporter to cover his campaign. Trump descends on the Iowa summer festival as the leading Republican candidate. His standing in the leadoff caucus state has remained strong despite a recent dust-up with Fox News host Megyn Kelly and ongoing criticism over his comments about Mexican immigrants. Trump has drawn enthusiastic response for promising to be a smart president who makes great deals. So far he has not released any specific policy proposals. The Democratic and Republican front-runners are among the presidential candidates courting voters Saturday at the Iowa State Fair, but Hillary Rodham Clinton and Donald Trump are unlikely to cross paths. The early arrival at the fairgrounds was Democrat Lincoln Chafee, who strolled the main pathway greeting voters before 9 a.m. The former Rhode Island governor says when he takes the soapbox in the afternoon he'll extoll his executive experience and his plans for the future. He also says he hopes to check out some of the livestock. But when asked what fair food he may try, he hedged.

Many legal scholars believe the issue was settled by an 1898 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court involving a man born in the United States to Chinese parents who lived here legally. After a trip abroad, Wong Kim Ark was blocked from re-entering the country on the grounds that he was not a citizen. He fought back and won. By a 6-2 vote, the court said the 14th Amendment applied to virtually everyone born here, except for children of enemies of the U.S. or of foreign diplomats, or children born on Native American reservations, which were considered sovereign entities. Nearly 100 years later, in 1982, the Supreme Court used language that seemed to indicate the protection applied to children of illegal immigrants as well. In ruling that Texas must provide a free public education to undocumented children, the court said in a footnote that "no plausible distinction with respect to Fourteenth Amendment 'jurisdiction' can be drawn between resident aliens whose entry into the United States was lawful, and resident aliens whose entry was unlawful."

Time: 6:10pm ET

Synopsis:

Donald Trump on Friday denounced a violent attack against a homeless Hispanic man in Boston whose attacker told police he was inspired, in part, by Trump's rhetoric that people in the country illegally should be deported. It was a change in tone for the Republican presidential candidate, who's known for his incendiary remarks. "Boston incident is terrible. We need energy and passion, but we must treat each other with respect," Trump tweeted after coming under criticism for failing to condemn the attack more strongly. "I would never condone violence." Scott and Steve Leader were arrested early Wednesday on charges they beat a 58-year-old Hispanic man while he slept near a Boston train station. One of the brothers later told police Trump "was right" about deporting "all these illegals," according to a police report. The comments marked a change in tone for Trump, who on Wednesday appeared far less troubled by it. After being told about the attack at a press conference ahead of New Hampshire town hall on Wednesday evening, Trump said it was the first he'd heard of it. "I think that would be a shame," he said, before adding: "I will say, the people that are following me are very passionate. They love this country. They want this country to be great again. And they are very passionate." Trump has inflamed Latinos by describing Mexican immigrants as "criminals" and "rapists" and saying he would build a wall between the United States and Mexico to crack down on illegal immigration.

Topic: CALIFORNIA JUDGE ORDERS RELEASE OF DETAINED UNDOCUMENTED CHILDREN HELD AT DETENTION CENTERS

Time: 5:33pm ET

Synopsis:

In a filing late on Friday, US district judge Dolly Gee refused the government's request to reconsider her ruling in late July that children held in family detention centers after crossing the US-Mexico border illegally must be released rapidly. Calling the government's latest arguments "repackaged and reheated", she found the US Department of Homeland Security (DHS) in breach of a longstanding legal agreement stipulating that immigrant children cannot be held in unlicensed secured facilities, and gave agency officials until 23 October to comply. DHS lawyers had asked the judge to reconsider her ruling, arguing that the agency was already doing its best to move families through detention quickly and that the facilities had been converted into short-term processing centers. Attorneys for the government are reviewing the order, said Nicole Navas, a DHS spokeswoman, on Friday night. This is the second time Gee has ruled that detaining children violates parts of a 1997 settlement from an earlier case. The settlement requires minors to be placed with a relative or in appropriate non-secure custody within five days. If there is a large influx of minors times may be longer, but children still must be released as expeditiously as possible, under the terms of the law. In her order, Gee countered that immigration officials "routinely failed to proceed as expeditiously as possible to place accompanied minors, and in some instances, may still be unnecessarily dragging their feet now". Peter Schey, executive director of the Center for Human Rights and Constitutional Law, said that the court's order "will protect refugee children and their mothers from lengthy and entirely senseless detention". The government poured millions of dollars into two large detention centers in Texas after tens of thousands of immigrant families, mostly mothers with children from Central America, crossed the Rio Grande into the US last summer. Many have petitioned for asylum after fleeing gang and domestic violence back home.

Time: 10:37pm ET

Synopsis:

US department of Homeland Security (DHS) announced that is considering options to respond to a federal judicial order to free immigrant children held at various detention centers. Judge Dolly Gee, said that DHS could not detain immigrant minors for longer than 72 hours unless they represent a flight risk or a danger to national security of the United States. The magistrate designated by president Obama, gave until October 23 to have DHS comply with her order. In a written statement, (DHS) said it will continue to review cases of detained undocumented immigrants as expeditiously as possible, while at the same time respecting the rights of detainees. Once more, DHS rejected a July 24 finding by Judge Gee, before a Los Angeles (California) tribunal, saying that the government had violated the 1997 "Acuerdo Flores" (Flores Agreement) which prohibits detention of minors and established the regulations of housing those who request asylum in the United States. In a 15 page document, the magistrate rejected the argument by the government that restricting detentions would fuel a new wave of illegal immigration from Central America, the judged called it a strategy to cause "fears".

Topic: HISPANIC STUDENTS LESS PREPARED TO MOVE ON TO COLLEGE IN CALIFORNIA

Time 10:45pm ET

Synopsis:

A performance gap on the ACT college entrance exam persisted this year between California's Latino and white high school students, according to new test results Readiness for College...Latinos struggle to close gap with whites in California ACT scores...A performance gap on the ACT college entrance exam persisted this year between California's Latino and white high school students, according to new test results. Educators and experts find this trend particularly concerning. They had hoped for better results from the relatively small segment of test takers who are largely a self-selected group of students who are motivated to get to college. "I find it really disturbing," said Mark Schneider, a vice president at American Institutes for Research who previously directed the federal government's education research arm. Across the country, the class of 2015 stagnated, with 40% of the 1.9 million test takers showing what the organization calls "strong readiness," according to results released Wednesday. In California, 30% of the class of 2015 took the test. California students overall outperformed their peers nationally. While 28% of students across the country met all four ACT targets, intended to represent college success, 37% of California's test takers did so. California's test takers had an average overall score of 22.5, compared to 21 nationally. A maximum score is 36. The gap between Latino and white students has remained since at least 2011. In 2011, 25% of Latino students met three or more ACT targets, compared to 69% of white students. In 2015, 28% of Latino students met three or more, compared to 70% of whites - representing a continuous gap of more than 40 percentage points. The ethnic breakdown of test takers is not precisely the same as the state's: nearly 28% of test takers were white, and about 38% were Latino. According to census data, California's population between the ages of 18 and 24 is 31% white and 47% Latino.

Topic: NEW POLL OVER DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS

Time: 5:30 pm

Synopsis:

A new poll shows Joe Biden performing a little better than Hillary Clinton against the leading GOP candidates in a general election matchup, and his favorability is higher than that of any candidate -- Democrat or Republican. Quinnipiac University's national poll, released Thursday, finds that Clinton remains the Democratic frontrunner with 45 percent, but her lead over Bernie Sanders has slipped by 10 percentage points. Sanders has 22 percent, and Biden comes in third with 18 percent. On the Republican side, Donald Trump broadened his lead -- he's now at 28 percent, with Ben Carson trailing at 12 percent and Jeb Bush slipping back into a three-way tie for third with Ted Cruz and Marco Rubio (they each have 7 percent). But Trump is also the candidate with the highest percentage of GOP voters (26 percent) who say there's "no way" they would support him. Eleven percent of Democrats would say "no way" to Clinton.

Time: 11:30 pm

Synopsis:

Though they blended in with the vibrant crowd circulating through the San Ysidro Port of Entry on Tuesday, the six people wearing wide grins weren't tourists or daytime shoppers. They were crossing the border with hopes of gaining the right to live in the United States. The six were the first members of a class-action lawsuit eligible to return to the U.S. under the provisions of a settlement reached between the American Civil Liberties Union and the Department of Homeland Security earlier this year. There are likely hundreds of unauthorized immigrants like them. The lawsuit was filed by the ACLU in 2013 accusing U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement and the Border Patrol in Southern California of using coercive tactics to pressure unauthorized immigrants into voluntarily leaving the United States. The suit, filed on behalf of nine Mexican nationals and three immigrant advocacy organizations, said the immigrants were deprived of their right to be heard by an immigration judge, who might have granted them legal status under certain programs.

That's especially true, considering that senator Bernie Sanders was going up against the New York Yankees of Democratic politics - the Clintons. But now Sanders is gaining in the polls, including in the gold-standard poll in Iowa - out Saturday night. The Iowa Poll, paid for by Des Moines Register and conducted by the reputable J. Time: 3:30 pm

Synopsis:

Relax, it's FedEx. That's a slogan associated with one of the world's largest express transportation companies. It is also the latest policy proposal put forth by 2016 GOP presidential hopeful Chris Christie. Christie said that he wants FedEx founder Fred Smith to come and work for the government to show U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) how to set up a system for tracking people. Christie's idea would be laughable were he not serious. The idea of tracking people like packages would likely be both impossible and inhumane. Moreover, it would do nothing toward solving the problem of what to do with the majority of the 11 million undocumented immigrants who are already here. The jumping off point for Christie's bizarre proposal seems to be the fact that roughly 40% of undocumented immigrants do not sneak across the border. They enter the country legally and then simply overstay their visas. Although he did not offer details, implementing Christie's idea would presumably involve some sort of device by which the government could monitor the movements of all those who enter legally on visas.

Time: 4:30 pm

Synopsis:

Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders and businessman Donald Trump - the two biggest anti-establishment candidates in the Democratic and Republican presidential primary fields, respectively - have seen their support surge, according to a new survey of voters likely to participate in the Iowa caucuses. In the Des Moines Register/Bloomberg Politics poll, Sanders is now polling just seven points behind Democratic front runner Hillary Clinton, nearly doubling his share of the vote since the last survey was conducted in May. Sanders takes 30 percent support, while Clinton draws 37 percent, marking the first time she's dropped below 50 percent in the poll. Trump, meanwhile, has seen a remarkable reversal in both his support and popularity in the state since May. Back then, he was polling at just 4 percent support and his favorability was at -36 points; now, he leads the pack with 23 percent support and his favorability is at +26 points. Retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson has also seen significant gains in the Hawkeye state, surging from 10 percent support in May to 18 percent now, and improving an already strong favorability rating of +41 points to +71 points.

Time: 5:22pm ET

Synopsis:

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement officers (ICE) arrested 244 immigrants from across the Southland, who have previous criminal records and pose a threat to public safety, during a four-day raid. All 244 immigrants taken into custody had criminal records, with 56 percent involved in felony convictions for serious or violent offenses such as weapons charges, drug violations and child sex crimes. The remaining 44 percent had previous convictions for significant or multiple misdemeanors, according to ICE. Four of those detained were previously removed from the states and are currently being prosecuted by the U.S. Attorney's office for felony re-entry after removal. Two of the men, a 46-year-old Guatemalan from Upland and a 50-year-old Salvadoran man from Sunland, were involved in child sex abuse cases. The Guatemalan man had served 10 years in prison for sexually abusing two children. The remaining immigrants who are not being criminally prosecuted are being processed for removal from the U.S. The immigrants came from 21 different countries including Mexico, Peru, Thailand, France and Ghana. The majority of those arrested, 99, were from Los Angeles County, with 55 coming from Orange County, 43 from San Bernardino County, 24 from Riverside County, 20 from Santa Barbara County, and three from San Luis Obispo County.

"I will be totally pledging my allegiance to the Republican Party and the conservative principles for which it stands," he said on Thursday. He had earlier refused to rule it out. The billionaire business mogul, who has been soaring in the polls, has come under pressure in recent weeks from the Republican Party to sign the pledge. His announcement on Thursday will be seen as a victory for the party, who may have seen a split in its support and given the Democrats a boost had Donald Trump pressed ahead as an independent candidate. He said he had received nothing for signing the loyalty pledge, aside from the assurance that he would be treated fairly in the race. 'Won't tear it up' Mr. Trump was booed by audience members during the Republican presidential debate earlier this month after he refused to rule out a third-party run. He was the only candidate not to commit to back the winner of the party's primaries. The Republican Party National Committee has since sought a loyalty pledge from each of its presidential hopefuls, in what is believed to be a first for the party.

Time: 11:2pm ET

Synopsis:

The Assembly passed a bill today by Senate President pro Tempore Kevin de León and Speaker Toni G. Atkins to reduce the threat of deportation of immigrant crime victims and foster their trust and cooperation with law enforcement. SB 674, the Immigrant Victims of Crime Equity Act, requires local and state law enforcement agencies to sign certifications for qualified immigrant crime victims when they have been helpful to the investigation of crimes like sexual assault and domestic violence. These certifications are prerequisites to an application for a Victim of Crime "U-Visa." U-Visas are issued by the federal government and prevent deportation of victims of specific crimes who have been helpful to the investigation or prosecution. Pro Tem De León and Speaker Atkins say that SB 674 is necessary because some local law enforcement officials deny certification based on their political views on immigration and not the criteria established by the U-Visa process. Michelle Carey, Senior Attorney, Los Angeles Center for Law and Justice, agrees.

Synopsis:

The U.S. Border Patrol arrested nearly 10,000 unaccompanied immigrant children and families caught illegally crossing the border with Mexico in August, a 52 percent jump from August 2014, according to statistics published by the agency Monday afternoon. Since the start of the fiscal year in October, border agents have arrested more than 35,000 children traveling alone and more than 34,500 people traveling as families, mostly mothers and children. The total number of arrests for the year is down nearly 50 percent compared with a year ago, but border agents have reported a jump in arrests since July. The Border Patrol reported arresting 6,424 unaccompanied immigrant children and families in August 2014, compared to 9,790 this year. The August increase comes a year after a surge of more than 68,000 unaccompanied children at the U.S.-Mexico border. Many were trying to escape violence in Honduras, El Salvador or Guatemala. For much of the year, the number of illegal border crossings by families and children has been far lower than last year, before increasing in July and August. It's unclear exactly what has led to the overall decrease in border arrests of families and children, but Mexico has stepped up enforcement along its southern border.

Time: 4:43pm ET

Synopsis:

California has issued more than half a million driver's licenses to immigrants in the country illegally under a program that began nine months ago. Armando Botello, a spokesman for the state's Department of Motor Vehicles, said Friday that the milestone was reached last week. "For us, the DMV, it is a source of great pride to have reached half a million this soon. We thought we would issue half a million applications per year and we did it in 9 months. This means the DMV work is paying off and that all drivers will be safer now," said Botello. The state started providing special permits in January, when a law took effect allowing unauthorized immigrants to obtain it with an identification document, proof of residence, and after passing a written and a driving exam. Because the agency does not ask about race or ethnicity, it is not known how many of the five hundred thousand applicants are Latino. However, Botello said most are Hispanic. The record number of licenses issued came as a surprise to the agency, which expected to reach the half a million mark by the end of the year, said Botello. According to DMV estimates, there are a total of 1.4 million potential applicants in the state of California. The new licenses initially generated huge interest, with long lines at DMV offices in January and February.

VO :30 secsTopic: DONALD TRUMP / TAX PLAN*Time: 5:25am ET*Synopsis:

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump unveiled an ambitious tax plan Monday that he says would eliminate income taxes for millions of households, lower the tax rate on all businesses to 15% and change tax treatment of companies' overseas earnings. Under the Trump plan, no federal income tax would be levied against individuals earning less than $25,000 and married couples earning less than $50,000. The Trump campaign estimates that would reduce taxes to zero for 31 million households that currently pay at least some income tax. The highest individual income-tax rate would be 25%, compared with the current 39.6% rate. Many middle-income households would have a lower tax rate under Mr. Trump's proposal, but because high-income households generally pay income tax at much higher rates, his proposed across-the-board rate cut could have a positive impact on them, too. For example, an analysis of Jeb Bush's plan-taxing individuals' incomes at no more than 28%-by the business-backed Tax Foundation found that the biggest percentage winners in after-tax income would be the top 1% of earners. Mr. Trump's plan appears designed to help him, as the GOP front-runner, cement his standing as a populist-though that message is complicated by the fact that the billionaire, like other Republican leaders, would eliminate the estate tax.

Topic: ARIZONA (TUCSON SECTOR) US BORDER PATROL ACUSED OF DESTROYING EVIDENCE REGARDING DETAINED UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS

Time 11:26pm ET

Synopsis:

A federal judge in Arizona has slapped the U.S. Border Patrol with sanctions after he found that agents had "negligently" or "willfully" destroyed evidence of alleged inhumane treatment of immigrants in Tucson detention centers. Videotapes from Tucson sector stations were erased or recorded over in the midst of an ongoing civil rights lawsuit filed against the Border Patrol by a coalition of human rights groups who say agents routinely hold immigrants in cold, dirty, and inhumane cells. The suit was filed in June on behalf of three plaintiffs who said detainees are denied food, water, and medical treatment, and held for extended periods of time in facilities which the Border Patrol claims are designed for short term detention. Judge David C. Bury, who issued the sanctions Monday, in August had ordered the Border Patrol not to destroy footage of detainee holding areas-but agents did not comply. "The Court concludes the destruction of the video-tape recordings made prior to this Court's August 14, 2015, Order was, at best, negligent and was certainly willful. Agents will now have to produce all remaining videos from the past several months within two weeks. James Lyall, an attorney with the ACLU, one of the groups which filed the lawsuit, told the Associated Press that a judge issuing sanctions against a government agency is a rare move.

Topic: CALCIUM DOES NOT STRENGTHEN THE BONES

Time: 3:30 pm

Synopsis:

A new study should put the final nail in the coffin for any lingering beliefs that calcium supplements are good for you. The new study finds that people over 50 don't get stronger bones either by taking supplements or from eating extra servings of calcium-rich foods such as dairy products. The findings, reported in the British Medical Journal's online publication BMJ.com, support what U.S. health officials have been telling Americans for a few years now - taking calcium supplements is not just a waste of time, but it could be harmful. The extra calcium doesn't go to strengthen bones but instead can build up in the arteries, causing heart disease, or in the kidneys, causing kidney stones. Most of the studies showed people over 50 get no benefit at all from taking either calcium supplements or from eating calcium in food. People were just as likely to have a fracture. A few studies showed that people who took calcium supplements might have a lower risk, but they were not very clear.
