Topic: USA-OBAMA-JOBS

Time Aired: 2:30 pm

Synopsis:

President Barack Obama urged Republican lawmakers on Saturday, October 1, to spell out exactly what they can and cannot support in his 447 billion U.S. dollar plan to create jobs, saying it was "time for Congress to get its act together." Obama, whose re-election chances in November 2012 are clouded by high unemployment and a sluggish economy, has said his jobs bill should be funded mainly by ending tax breaks for corporations and limiting deductions for the rich. Republicans oppose those ideas, along with some of Obama's fellow Democrats. But Republican leaders, wary of being cast as foes of job creation during tough economic times, have said there are some elements of the plan worth considering. "Some Republicans in Congress have said that they agree with certain parts of this jobs bill. If so, it's time for them to tell me what those proposals are," Obama said in his weekly radio address.

Synopsis:

California-based Manning Beef is recalling 80,000 pounds of beef products over possible E. coli contamination, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. "The establishment is recalling a variety of beef primal and sub primal cuts ... and manufacturing trimmings due, in part, to insanitary conditions as reflected by an unusually high number of confirmed positive E. coli test results, the USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service said Friday. The beef products were produced on Sept. 23 and shipped from the Pico Rivera, California, operation to retail establishments and food service centers in Arizona and California and to another federally regulated establishment in Nebraska, the USDA statement said.

Topic: USA-TRAVEL/WARNING

Time Aired: 3:36 pm

Synopsis:

The State Department issued a worldwide travel alert on Saturday warning of the possibility of anti-American attacks in response to the killing of two top al Qaeda members. The warning came a day after U.S. officials said Anwar al-Awlaki, identified as "chief of external operations" for al Qaeda's Yemen branch, was killed in an attack by missiles fired from multiple CIA drones in Yemen. "The death of Awlaki, in the near term, could provide motivation for anti-American attacks worldwide from individuals or groups seeking to retaliate against U.S. citizens or interests because of this action," the State Department said. The drone strike also killed Samir Khan, an American who served as editor of a glossy magazine used as a propoganda and recruitment tool by al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula.

Time Aired: 3:36 pm

Synopsis:

For people trying to quit smoking, the drug cytisine works better than a placebo, and its comparatively low cost makes it an appealing alternative to newer stop-smoking medications, researchers say. Over the course of a year, researchers found cytisine, a nicotine substitute, more effective than a placebo in helping smokers stop the habit, and the researchers said its affordability could be an advantage in poorer countries.

Topic: NEW YORK DEPORTATIONS

Time Aired: 6:30 pm

Synopsis:

"My wife, my son - I have to get back to them," Daniel kept telling himself, from the moment he was arrested in Seattle for driving with an expired license, all the way through the deportation proceeding that delivered him to Mexico in June. Nothing would deter him from crossing the border again. He had left his hometown at 24, he said. Twelve years later, he had an American son, a wife, near-fluency in English and three brothers in the United States. "I'll keep trying," he said, "until I'll get there." This is increasingly the profile of illegal immigration today. Migrant shelters along the Mexican border are filled not with newcomers looking for a better life but with seasoned crossers: older men and women, often deportees, braving ever-greater risks to get back to their families in the United States - the country they consider home. They present a challenge to American policymakers because they continue to head north despite obstacles more severe than at any time in recent history. It is not just that the American economy has little to offer; the border itself is far more threatening. On one side, fences have grown and American agents have multiplied.

Topic: PRISON OVERCROWDING IN CALIFORNIA

Time Aired: 2:30pm

Synopsis:

California's prisons are too full. Indeed, federal courts have found them to be illegally, unconstitutionally overcrowded and have repeatedly ordered the state to address the problem. But even if the courts had not done so, hard economic times and empty state coffers all but demand it. As the largest single consumer of state prison services, Los Angeles County has at least a moral obligation to help come up with solutions. According to the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, about 54,000 offenders, or a third of all state prison inmates, are from Los Angeles County. Last year, about 19,000 offenders from the county were newly admitted to state prison

Topic: DELAYS IN TAG RENEWAL BECAUSE OF AN IMMIGRATION LAW

Time Aired: 3:30pm

Synopsis:

Among the key parts of Alabama's immigration law that went into effect Thursday morning is a mandate that anyone trying to register a motor vehicle must prove U.S. citizenship. The department now uses a program called AL Verify, a system that uses driver's license numbers and expiration dates to verify the legal status of people renewing or purchasing vehicle tags. One effect of the new system and its requirements could be longer lines and delays. Some people have had to go back home to get documentation before they could purchase a tag.

Pancreatic cancer is notoriously lethal -- there are almost as many deaths from it each year as there are new cases. The deaths this week of Apple founder Steve Jobs and Novelist Ralph Steinman bring unusual attention to this less-well-known type of cancer that has actually been declining despite no big advances in treatment or finding it early. A decline in smoking, one of the top risk factors for the disease, may be behind the drop in cases.

10/8/11Duration: 30*Topic: CALIFORNIA MEDICAL MARIJUANA*Time Aired: 2:23 pm*Synopsis:

Federal authorities in California are cracking down on the state's medical marijuana industry, four U.S. attorneys in the state announced. Prosecutors have stepped up campaigns to break up businesses that take shelter under a state law allowing patients to possess marijuana for medical use, sending warning letters, filing civil forfeiture lawsuits, and prosecuting criminal cases, the attorneys said. "It's the new California gold rush," Andre Birotte Jr., the U.S. attorney for the state's central district, said during a press briefing. "There's an epidemic of these marijuana stores." Authorities said a large for-profit marijuana industry has developed since the state passed Proposition 215 in 1996, which enabled patients with medical needs for marijuana -- dictated by illnesses such as cancer or AIDS -- to possess the drug for therapeutic relief. They emphasized, however, that they will focus their efforts on curbing illegal activity, and patients in need of the drug will still be able to get it.

Brown. Under the new law written by Assemblyman Gil Cedillo (D-Los Angeles), if a sober driver is caught at a DUI checkpoint without a valid license, law enforcement officers must release the car to a qualified driver representing the registered owner. In cases where a legal driver is not readily available, AB 353 says, the vehicle is to be released to one later at the impound yard. Some Latino lawmakers have alleged that sobriety checkpoints have been misused by some cities to unfairly target illegal immigrants who do not have a driver's license. Because cities can hold cars taken from unlicensed drivers for 30 days, the accumulated impound fees can turn out to be more than the car is worth, resulting in some drivers losing their cars.

Time Aired: 9:30 pm

Synopsis:

Good news on the tuberculosis front: The World Health Organization reports that TB rates are dropping for the first time. The WHO 2011 Global Tuberculosis Control Report was released today at a Washington news conference, and it details the strides that have been made globally in eradicating TB. Among the 258-page report's findings: The number of people who contracted TB fell from a high of 9 million in 2005 to 8.8 million in 2010. Deaths dropped from 1.8 million in 2003 to 1.4 million in 2010, and the death rate plummeted 40% from 1990 to 2010. Cure rates are high -- in 2009, 87% of people who had TB were cured, but the report also found that a third of likely TB cases are never alerted, so it's not known if those people were diagnosed and treated. Some countries have shown that the extra effort and money put into fighting the disease have paid off. Kenya, Tanzania and Brazil have all seen TB rates decline in the last 10 to 20 years. China's progress has been substantial, with death rates dropping by almost 80% from 1990 to 2010. The frequency of TB was also cut in half in that time.

Time Aired: 7:32PM

Synopsis:

Democratic sources tell CNN that it's likely that Democrats on Capitol Hill -with the approval of the White House- will re-introduce some form of immigration reform, possibly as early as December. At this point, the details of any plan are unclear. But what is clear is that Democrats are interested in using their Version of reform as a "contrast issue" to Republicans, who largely emphasize border security. Sources say there are ongoing discussions among Democrats ranging from re-introducing comprehensive reform to bringing up the Dream Act again, which would allow the children of illegal immigrants who go to college or serve in the military to become citizens. The Dream Act was defeated last year.

Time Aired: 7:32PM

Synopsis:

President Barack Obama will announce a plan to allow people holding two kinds of student loans to reduce their interest rates by consolidating their debts into one government loan, officials inside and outside the administration said Tuesday. Obama is to announce the move in Denver on Wednesday, part of a White House push to emphasize actions his administration can take to boost the economy without congressional approval. Education Secretary Arne Duncan and White House Domestic Policy Council Director Melody Barnes were scheduled to discuss the proposal later Tuesday. The change could affect an estimated 5.8 million people who hold two types of student loans-government-backed loans issued by the private sector under the Federal Family Education Loan program and "direct loans" issued by the government, an administration official said. Consolidating the loans would result in lower interest rates and reduced monthly payments, as well as additional loan-forgiveness and repayment options.

Sales of new homes rose slightly in September. The Census Bureau reports sales were up five-point-seven percent last month compared to August. New home sales have hovered around the 300-thousand mark for many months... but finally reached a 313-thousand annual rate in September. During the housing boom a few years ago, monthly sales peaked at an annual rate of one-point-four million units. New home sales are a benchmark indicator both for the housing market and the overall economy.

Employers advertised more jobs in September than at any other point in the past three years, a hopeful sign that companies may step up hiring. Businesses and governments posted 3.35 million job openings, the Labor Department said Tuesday. That's a 7 percent increase from August and the most since August 2008, one month before the financial crisis intensified. Even with the gain, there's heavy competition for each job. Nearly 14 million people were out of work in September, which means an average 4.2 unemployed workers were competing for each opening. In fact, the Census tables how that geographic mobility has been declining steadily since the end of World War II, when one-fifth of all Americans regularly moved. Why is this? As Catherine Rampell observes, much of the current drop has been driven by a decline in people switching homes within counties. For that, blame the housing bust. One shopper venturing out for the first time on Black Friday says it was "a little intimidating" -- but then she got to Wal-Mart and was relieved that the crowds weren't as bad as she thought. Melody Snyder of Vancouver, Wash., found a number of gifts for her three kids, but she says the store was sold out of a few of the big sale items. In addition to opening earlier than in previous years, some retailers are offering to match the prices of competitors. About 10,000 people were waiting in front of the flagship Macy's store at New York's Herald Square when it opened at midnight. Topic: NEW HOUSE SALES

Time Aired: 4:20

Synopsis:

Builders sold fewer new houses in the U.S. than forecasted in October, delaying a recovery as the industry heads for the weakest year on record. Sales increased 1.3 percent to a 307,000 annual pace, data from the Commerce Department showed today in Washington. The median estimate of 70 economists surveyed by Bloomberg News projected a 315,000 rate. Demand is on pace to reach 301,000 this year, less than the 323,000 homes sold in 2010 that were the fewest since data-keeping began in 1963. A supply of distressed properties in the foreclosure pipeline that is weighing on prices of existing houses may keep luring buyers away from new construction. A jobless rate that has been hovering around 9 percent or higher for more than two years signals demand will take time to pick-up, a sign homebuilding will contribute little to economic growth in 2012. "The housing market remains out of balance, with much more supply than demand," said Michelle Meyer, a senior U.S. economist at Bank of America Corp. "Builders are still competing with the significant overhang of existing homes for sale. Once we get past the overhang of foreclosed properties, single-family housing will turn around fairly rapidly, but we're a good two years away from that." Stocks rose, snapping a seven-day decline in the Standard & Poor's 500 Index, after Thanksgiving retail sales climbed to a record and amid speculation euro-area leaders will boost efforts to end the debt crisis.

Synopsis:

The Pew Hispanic Center, a project of the Pew Research Center, will release tomorrow a new report about Latinos' views of deportations, President Obama, the nation's overall direction, immigration policy priorities and the upcoming 2012 presidential election. The report is based on a new national survey of 1,220 Latino adults, including 557 registered voters. The report also contains an analysis, based on government data, of deportation trends.

Topic: OBESITY IN YOUNG PEOPLE

Time Aired: 7:22

Synopsis:

According to a U.S. study, obese older adults may be more likely than their thinner peers to suffer a potentially disabling fall -- though the most severely overweight may be somewhat protected from injury. Falls are often seen as a problem for thin, frail older adults, since their bones are especially prone to fractures, but obesity carries its own risks, said researchers whose findings appeared in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society. "People who are obese may have a harder time with balance," said Christine Himes, of Syracuse University in New York, who worked on the study.

Topic: NEW CALIFORNIA AUTO TOW LAW

Time Aired: 8:24

Synopsis:

A new law takes effect Sunday in California that prohibits police from impounding cars at sobriety checkpoints if a driver's only offense is no license. The practice has hit illegal immigrants hardest, since they haven't been eligible for a license in the state since 1993. The Associated Press reports that thousands of cars are towed each year in the state under those circumstances. The new law was introduced by state Assemblyman Gil Cedillo, a Los Angeles Democrat who tried unsuccessfully to restore driver's licenses to illegal immigrants after California revoked the privilege in 1993. He said he proposed the bill to ban such towing after learning one Los Angeles incorporated suburb, Bell, raked in big fees from unlicensed drivers at checkpoints.

Topic: UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS

Time Aired: 7:22

Synopsis:

The number of people seeking unemployment benefits rose last week for the first time in a month. But a measure of applications over the past month fell to a three-and-a-half-year low, an indication that hiring could pick up. The Labor Department says weekly applications rose 15,000 to a seasonally adjusted 381,000. The four-week average, a less volatile measure, fell for the fourth straight week to 375,000 -- the lowest level since June 2008. Applications generally must fall below 375,000 -- consistently --to signal that hiring is strong enough to reduce the unemployment rate.

Topic: STUFFED ANIMAL RECALL

Time Aired: 7:22

Synopsis:

The Build-A-Bear Workshop Company is recalling nearly 300,000 Colorful Hearts Teddy Bears sold in the United States and Canada due to risks of choking, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has announced. The agency warned that while no injuries have been reported, the "teddy bear's eyes could loosen and fall out, posing a choking hazard to children," according to a statement. "Consumers should immediately take the recalled teddy bear from children and return it to any Build-A-Bear store to receive a coupon for any available stuffed animal from Build-A-Bear," the statement said, advising buyers to contact the firm at 866-236-5683 with additional questions. The Chinese-made toy is a stuffed animal, roughly 16 inches tall with black plastic eyes, which is sold in the United States for $18. The bears were sold at Build-A-Bear Workshops and through the firm's website from April through December.

Topic: DEBT LIMIT
Time Aired: 3:25
Synopsis:

President Barack Obama is delaying his request for another $1.2 trillion increase in the nation's debt limit at the request of congressional leaders. It's basically because of a technicality. The White House had been ready to ask for the increase Friday because the government is within $100 billion of exhausting its current borrowing authority. Congress would then have 15 days to reject the request, though Obama would veto any objections in order to ensure that the government does not default on its obligations. But with Congress not due to return to Washington until mid-January, lawmakers asked Obama to delay his request so they would be in session during the 15-day period allowed for objections.
