ISSUE: HEALTH CARE

1. The Ebola pandemic: is it a national security issue, like President Obama says?

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #3, 6:00)

When: October 12, 2014 6:00PM

Description of Program: Analysis of the Ebola epidemic, is it true that this is a national security issue, as President Obama says? We'll ask Dr. Fabián Sandoval, Clinical Analysis Specialist.

2. A new Obamacare enrollment period starts, and a national campaign is running to ensure that eligible Latinos can benefit from the Health Reform.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #1, 9:00)

When: November 16, 2014 6:00PM

Description of the program: Several important issues are discussed this week in Perspectiva Nacional, starting with the new enrollment period for Obamacare.

Sinsi Hernández Cancio, from Families USA, and José Plaza from Get Covered America, will answer questions about the process, requirements and what's new in terms of coverage and insurance plans.

ISSUE: IMMIGRATION REFORM

1. Immigration attorneys answer questions and offer advice to our audience.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: October 5th, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: This week we continue to answer questions received from our audience, regarding Immigration issues. Attorneys and Immigration experts José Pertierra and Luis Paoli will join us in the show to answer them and provide advice to our viewers.

2. Weeks away from the November midterm election, an analysis of a possible Presidential action on Immigration.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: October 19, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: A few days before the midterm election in November, and when expectations from the immigrant community are at its peak for a presidential action on Immigration Reform, reports continue on an increase in deportations. Interestingly, cases of criminal deportations have decreased. We discuss this information and the possible impact on the polls, as well as within the immigrant community, with activist and Dreamer Lorella Praelli. With her, José Dante Parra, former advisor to the U.S. Senate Majority Leader, Harry Reid.

3. Two community leaders and representatives of national organizations discuss the imminent presidential executive order on immigration. Also a new Congressman, Rubén Gallego, joins us in the show to discuss the subject.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: November 16, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: Two community leaders and representatives of national organizations discuss with Armando Guzmán the imminent presidential executive order on immigration. Ben Monterroso, from Mi Familia Vota, and Héctor Sánchez of the National Hispanic Leadership Agenda, explain the items that could be included in it, and emphasize the role of Latinos leading to the 2016 election.

And he has not even begun to work in the House of Representatives, but new Congressman Rubén Gallego, Democrat from Arizona, joins us in the show to discuss the immigration issue, possible actions from the White House and the congressional agenda for next year.

Perspectiva Nacional FCC Report – End of Year 2014

4. A panel of Immigration lawyers explains President Obama's new Immigration executive actions: what it means, why some don't qualify for this relief and what to expect for 2015.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: November 23, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: President Barack Obama finally announced an executive order on immigration, which protects millions of people across the country, but left hundreds of thousands still in the shadows.

On the provisions of the Presidential Executive Order, about the process that now starts for those who will benefit and who have TPS, and how to be on the lookout from those who want to take advantage of immigrants, a panel of immigration attorneys will join us in the show to offer their legal advice: José Pertierra, Julia Toro and Manuel Rivera.

5. Less Mexicans are coming to the U.S., and more immigrants from Central America. This poses an important policy, demographic and immigration for 14 states, which have a direct impact on this changes.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #3, 6:00)

When: November 30th, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: Mark H. López, demographer at PEW Research Center, will join us to discuss the results of a new study that says that fewer Mexicans are coming to the United States. Not only will he tell us why, but he'll also explain how the arrival of more Central American people and from other parts of the world to the United States has changed the demographic map on immigration and the impact this has on the public policies of states.

6. Doubtful of the legality of President Obama's executive actions on immigration, Republicans in the U.S. Senate called for a hearing in which several immigration authorities have testified.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00)

When: December 7th, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: Congress returned to Washington this week to conclude the legislative work of the year. Among the priorities of the Republican agenda are the Presidential executive orders, announced last November 20th. Audiences were held to assess the legality of these executive moves. Marielena Hincapié, Executive Director of the National Immigration Law Center (NILC) was the only Latin invited to testify at the hearings, and she joins us on the show to discuss the issue. Hector Sanchez of LCLAA, participated in this discussion as well, and will also expand on the actions of the White House to address the problem of racial profiling by the police across the country.

Texas Democratic Congressman, Henry Cuellar, will explain to Armando Guzmán why issue of the government budget on the legislative agenda has a direct effect on the new immigration relief announced by Obama.

7. Almost a month after President Obama announced his executive actions for a new Immigration Relief; the U.S. Senate is holding hearings to verify on the legality of such actions.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00)

When: December 14, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: While Democrats and Republicans fought this week in the House of Representatives to reach an agreement on the government budget, things in the US Senate were feisty as well, while the legality of President Barack Obama's executive actions on immigration was discussed.

Among the organizations and individuals called to testify before the committee was Astrid Silva, a young Dreamer of Nevada, whose story inspired the President as to mention her during the announcement of the new immigration relief. Astrid will be with us in the show, to speak of her experience before the Senate, her story at home, in Las Vegas, and why she supports the executive actions. The powerful AFL-CIO is also in favor of this immigration relief, and Kelly Fay Rodriguez, representative of that organization, also joins us to discuss the issue.

8. 2014 Year in Review: Immigration

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:01)

When: December 21, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: As 2014 is coming to an end, we review all the immigration events of the year. Two national pro-immigration leaders will join us: Eliseo Medina, union leader and spokesman of Mi Familia Vota; and Lorella Praeli, Dreamer and spokesperson for the United We Dream organization. With them will also be Vanessa Cardenas, from the Center for American Progress, who will give an overview of the immigration issue for the New Year.

Perspectiva Nacional FCC Report – End of Year 2014

ISSUE: LOCAL AND NATIONAL ECONOMY

1. Government budget & Congress

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00)

When: November 30th, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: The subject for the show this week is the economy. But not the type of economy linked directly with Black Friday shopping, but with one that affects the pocket and daily life in the country.

Javier Bronfman, economist and professor at the American University, along with analysts Federico De Jesus and Jorge Lima, Democrat and Republican, respectively, will be in the show to discuss the government budget, business development, capital investment, minimum wage and wage justice for women.

ISSUE: LOCAL POLITICS AND GOVERNMENT

1. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, Chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee, talks about politics, immigration, national affairs and the Republican strategy towards the Latino community.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #1, 9:00)

When: October 12, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: We are less than four weeks away from mid-term elections and we start the show talking politics with the President of the Democratic National Committee, Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz. We also discuss the Latino vote and the chances for Democrats to win most seats on the November election and in 2016.

2. As the November midterm election nears, important leaders of the community speak of the importance of the Latino vote, the Latino political participation and the voter's trends. In the show: Richard Trumka, President of the AFL-CIO; Arturo Vargas, from NALEO; and Mark Hugo López, demographer from the PEW Research Center.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: October 26, 2014 6:30AM

Description of the Program: We are just over a week before the midterm election, and in our show we analyze the Latino vote, new Hispanic candidates and, of course, Immigration.

We begin the show with Richard Trumka, president of the powerful and influential AFL-CIO union. Armando thoroughly discusses with him possible presidential actions for an Immigration Reform, analyzed from an economic and labor point of view.

Also the show will be Arturo Vargas, Executive Director of NALEO, an organization which groups all Latino elected officials in the country. Vargas gives us a preview of the results in some electoral contests and anticipates four new Latino faces who will likely join the federal Congress, as well as other Latinos running for state positions.

We close the show with demographer Mark Hugo Lopez, from the Pew Research Center, who brings the latest trends of the Latino vote for the next November election.

3. RNC Chairman, Rience Priebus answers questions regarding his political party and the Latino vote, for the upcoming midterm election. Also LULAC's Hispanic spokeswoman, Sindy Benavides, along with political strategist, Loreнна Chambers, reflect on the Latino vote.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00)

When: November 2nd, 2014 6:30AM

Description of the program: With the midterm election next Tuesday, the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, Rience Priebus, visits us on the show to speak of the Latino vote and electoral races, but also to answer to his Democratic counterpart, Representative Debbie Wasserman Schultz. She was in our show several weeks ago and said that Republicans are the sole responsible for not having an Immigration Reform. To talk about politics and recent efforts to get the Latino vote on Tuesday, Sindy Benavides from LULAC and political strategist, Loreнна Chambers, will be on the show.

4. Analyzing the results of the 2014 midterm election.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: November 9th, 2014 6:30AM

Description of the program: After the midterm election, we discuss the results with analysts Loreнна Chambers, Democratic strategist; Adolfo Franco, Republican strategist; and Professor Patricio Zamorano, political expert. The international political economist, Allison Johnson, will be on the show to discuss the public response at the polls and what awaits the Latino community, ahead of the 2016 election.

5. 2014 Year in review

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #1, 9:00; Segment #2, 8:01; Segment #3, 6:02)

When: December 28, 2014 6:30AM

Description of the program: As 2014 comes to an end, a panel of analysts examine and discuss the most important issues of the year: economy, employment, politics, security, legalizing marijuana, international affairs and the new US relations with Cuba. With us will be: Patricio Zamorano, professor and political analyst; Maricruz Magowan, conservative political analyst; and Allison Johnson, political economist.

Perspectiva Nacional FCC Report – End of Year 2014

ISSUE: ROLE OF LATINOS IN THE COMMUNITY

1. The importance and power of the Latino vote, weeks away from the November midterm election.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #2, 8:00; Segment #3, 6:00)

When: October 19, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: We will also have a heated debate about politics and the Latino vote, with Melisa Diaz and Alfonso Aguilar, Liberal and Conservative analysts, respectively.

We also discuss Latino vote and the national Voter Registration campaign, with Lizet Ocampo from the Latino Victory Project and Ben Monterroso, Executive Director of Mi Familia Vota, who joins us from Denver, Colorado.

2. A group of Latinos, former inmates and currently men making time in an immigration detention facility

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segments #3, 6:00)

When: November 2nd, 2014 6:30AM

Description of the program: Immigration attorney Jose Pertierra joins us to discuss a historic lawsuit in Colorado, where a group of Latino inmates claimed that the immigration detention center where they are, forced them to work for just a dollar a day. With their lawsuit, they demand for salary justice.

3. Nellie Gorbea, First Puerto Rican woman to become Secretary of State in Rhode Island.

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #3, 6:00)

When: December 14, 2014 6:30AM

Description of Program: We meet a Latina who's making history in New England's politics. Puerto Rican Nellie Gorbea, is the new Secretary of State of Rhode Island. She explains what her new position will mean for Latinos in New England, but also for Latinas across the country and what her priorities are under her new elected position.

Topic: SCRUTINY IN TEXAS TO DETECT SPREAD OF EBOLA

Time: 5:28 pm

Synopsis:

The man who has become the first Ebola patient to develop symptoms in the United States told officials at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital on Sept. 26 that he had just arrived from West Africa but was not admitted that day because that information was not passed along at the hospital, officials acknowledged Wednesday. The man, Thomas E. Duncan, was sent home under the mistaken belief that he had only a mild fever, a hospital administrator said; the information that he had traveled from Liberia, one of the nations at the heart of the Ebola epidemic, was overlooked. Some members of the Liberian community in the Dallas area said that given the spread of the disease in their home country, they were skeptical of the health information being released publicly, adding that public gatherings were being canceled out of fear of possible contagion.

Topic: HOSPITALS BEING PREPARED TO DEAL WITH A POTENTIAL EBOLA THREAT IN THE U.S.

Time: 10:37 pm

Synopsis:

On September 30, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention announced the first confirmed case of a patient being diagnosed with Ebola in the United States. Although that news is frightening, it does not mean that there is going to be an outbreak in the US on the scale of the one that is currently happening in West Africa. Public health officials know how to stop Ebola in its tracks. This is a disease that we can control. To do that, a whole system has to work together. Because there is no vaccine for Ebola, and no cure, stopping the disease is a matter of getting the right people to do the right things, at the right time.

Topic: OBAMA: IMMIGRATION ORDERS BY END OF THE YEAR

Time: 2:33 pm

Synopsis:

President Obama reassured supporters Thursday that he will issue new orders on immigration within the next three months. "It will be taking place between the November elections and the end of the year," Obama said during a gala for the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute. With an immigration bill blocked in the Republican-run House, Obama is reportedly considering a series of orders that would grant status to many of the 11.5 million people who are in the country illegally. Obama and aides said they are delaying executive orders on immigration until after the Nov. 4 congressional elections because immigration has become such a volatile political issue.

Time: 3:24 pm

Synopsis:

A cyber attack this summer on JPMorgan Chase compromised the accounts of 76 million households and seven million small businesses, a tally that dwarfs previous estimates by the bank and puts the intrusion among the largest ever. The details of the breach emerge at a time when consumer confidence in the digital operations of corporate America has already been shaken. Target, Home Depot and a number of other retailers have sustained major data breaches. Last year, the information of 40 million cardholders and 70 million others were compromised at Target, while an attack at Home Depot in September affected 56 million cards.

Time: 3:36pm

Synopsis:

A virus that has been causing severe respiratory illness across the country has for the first time been blamed for the death of a four-year-old child. A medical examiner in Hamiltown Township, New Jersey, has ruled that Eli Waller died last week as a result of enterovirus 68. The virus - which carries symptoms such as cough, runny nose, sneezing and body aches - has sickened more than 500 people in 43 states and Washington, D.C. - almost all of them children. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said earlier this week that four people infected with the virus had died, but it's unclear what role the virus played in those deaths.

Ebola has arrived in the United States and people are frightened. The nation's top infectious diseases expert said it's perfectly normal to feel anxious about a disease that kills so fast and is ravaging parts of West Africa. "People who are scared, I say, we don't take lightly your fear. We respect it. We understand it," Dr. Anthony Fauci of the National Institutes of Health said Sunday. But West Africa, because of the weaknesses in its health system, is not the United States, Fauci said, predicting "we won't have an outbreak." Scientists know how to stop the virus from spreading.

President Obama met with his national security team to discuss ways to better screen airline passengers in the U.S. for Ebola, as well as how to beef up those efforts overseas. The President also criticized other nations for not doing more to stop the spread of Ebola. As Mr. Obama chastised other countries we learned a Spanish nurse became the first person outside West Africa to contract the disease. Back on U.S. shores, the Ebola patient in Dallas, Thomas Eric Duncan, remains in critical condition. We learned yesterday he was given an experimental drug on Saturday that has only been tested on animals. Meanwhile, freelance journalist, Ashoka Mukpo, is being treated in a bio containment wing at the Nebraska Medical Center. Just because you can talk to your car doesn't mean you should. That's the finding of two new studies out today. They show that voice-activated smart phones and dashboard infotainment systems may be making the distracted-driving problem worse instead of better. The hands-free systems let drivers do things like tune the radio, send a text message or make a phone call while supposedly keeping their eyes focused on the road, but many of these systems are so error-prone or complex that they require even more concentration from drivers rather than less. The studies were released by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety and the University of Utah.

Topic: RESTAURANT SEXUAL HARASSMENT

Time: 10:37 pm

Synopsis:

When it comes to working for tips, one add-on isn't quite so welcome: widespread sexual harassment. Tipped restaurant workers are suffering from endemic sexual harassment in their workplaces, thanks to their minimum wage of $2.13 per hour that has remained unchanged since 1991. That's according to a new study from Restaurant Opportunities Center (ROC), a group that advocates for the rights of restaurant workers. The federal minimum wage is $7.25 an hour. Because tipped workers like waitresses depend on customers to make sure they earn enough to make ends meet, many feel they must put up with unwanted behavior, the study found. Given that tipped restaurant workers are predominantly women, representing two-thirds of the country's wait staff, the issue raises the question of how the economic uncertainty of tips may lead to gender-based sexual harassment.

Time: 2:36pm

Synopsis:

The director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said a "breach of protocol" caused a health care worker at a Dallas hospital to contract Ebola. The health care worker, a female nurse at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital, had "extensive contact" on multiple occasions with Thomas Eric Duncan, the first person diagnosed with Ebola in the U.S., who died last week, Dr. Tom Frieden said in a press conference Sunday. The health care worker's case is the first known case of the disease being contracted or transmitted in the U.S. Frieden said the CDC is evaluating other health care workers who may have had the same breach of protocol as the nurse. Duncan arrived in Dallas in late September, realizing a long-held ambition to join relatives. He came to attend the high-school graduation of his son, who was born in a refugee camp in Ivory Coast and was brought to the U.S. as a toddler when the boy's mother successfully applied for resettlement.

Her family identified her as Nina Pham, 26. Pham contracted Ebola while treating Thomas Eric Duncan, the Liberian national who died on Wednesday, Oct. 8, ten days after being admitted to Texas Presbyterian Hospital. Disease detectives with the CDC have several times interviewed the Texas nurse who contracted Ebola and believe there are "inconsistencies" in the type of personal protective gear that she wore and with the process used to put the gear on and remove it, according to an official with direct knowledge of the situation. Time: 5:55 pm

Synopsis:

There are new details about that Texas nurse stricken with Ebola. 26-year-old Nina Pham received a potentially life- saving blood transfusion from Dr. Kent Brantly, the missionary doctor who recently survived Ebola, himself. Health experts say his blood is now packed with antibodies that might help fight the virus. Members of Pham's parish say she is in good spirits. Officials say she is now in stable condition, but how Pham got infected is still a mystery, and has some of her colleagues fearful. That fear is spreading around the country, with several people who appear sick and having some connection to Africa, finding themselves in isolation. As Pham was being treated in isolation Tuesday, the World Health Organization projected that West Africa could see up to 10,000 new Ebola cases a week within two months and confirmed the death rate in the current outbreak has risen to 70 percent. The agency gave the figures during a news conference in Geneva. Previously, the WHO had estimated the Ebola mortality rate at around 50 percent.

Time: 5:57 pm

Synopsis:

The average price of a gallon of gasoline in the United States dropped 12 cents in the past three weeks to its lowest point in nearly a year, driven by the latest round of falling oil prices, according to the Lundberg survey released on Sunday. Prices fell to an average of $3.26 per gallon for regular grade gasoline, according to the survey conducted on Oct. 10. Prices have fallen for the past 16 weeks, survey publisher Trilby Lundberg said. The price of a gallon is nearly 13 cents below what it was a year ago and is at its lowest point since Nov. 22, she added. The price peaked on May 2 and is down 46.5 cents since then. Gas prices fall under $3 a gallon in New Jersey on Oct. 6, 2014. Crude oil prices have fallen over the past several months to near four-year lows, pressured by ample supply and concerns about the strength of the global economy.

The average rate for a 30-year fixed mortgage dropped to 3.97 percent, the lowest since June 2013, from 4.12 percent last week, Freddie Mac said in a statement today. The average 15-year rate fell to 3.18 percent from 3.3 percent, the McLean, Virginia-based mortgage-finance company said. Mortgage rates are following a slide in 10-year Treasury yields as weaker-than-expected economic data from Germany to China combine with concern about a spreading Ebola virus, sparking demand for safe investments. Borrowing costs for home loans have fallen for four straight weeks, offering a break to buyers and giving owners a new opportunity to refinance.

Topic: OBAMA ADDS "EBOLA CZAR" TO CONTENTIOUS LIST OF WHITE HOUSE CZARS

Time: 10:29pm

Synopsis:

President Obama on Friday appointed former White House official Ron Klain to serve as the "Ebola czar," following calls from a number of lawmakers for a single point person in the administration to oversee the government's response to the virus. Republicans loudly decried the so-called "czars" populating the White House at the start of the Obama administration -- even though, as then-White House communications director Anita Dunn pointed out, many of the "czars" in question were actually Senate-confirmed appointees, while others held White House jobs that have existed in previous administrations.

Texas Governor Rick Perry is addressing the issue and saying mistakes were made and said the way Ebola has been handled in Texas is unacceptable. Governor Perry says new measures are being put in place but critics believe the governor was slow to react, saying Texas wasn't ready to battle the threat. This comes after two Dallas nurses were hospitalized for the disease after having direct contact with Thomas Eric Duncan. He was the first man diagnosed with the disease in the United States. Duncan died while Texas Presbyterian hospital workers tried to treat him. 76 health care workers are being monitored for signs of Ebola, including the top epidemiologist for Dallas County.

Time: 4:45 pm

Synopsis:

A cruise ship carrying a Dallas health care worker who was being monitored for Ebola returned to port Sunday after an eventful seven-day trip in which passengers had their vacations briefly disrupted with an infectious disease scare. A lab supervisor who handled a specimen from a Liberian man who died from Ebola in Dallas showed no symptoms during the cruise but self-quarantined out of caution. Carnival Cruise Lines said it was informed by health authorities Sunday morning that she tested negative for Ebola. Vicky Rey, vice president of guest care for Carnival Cruise Lines, said the woman and her husband drove themselves home after arriving in Galveston. The Ebola scare added some drama to the trip for the more than 4,000 passengers on the ship. They learned through a public address system announcement that one of the passengers was being monitored for Ebola. The boat was not allowed to dock in Cozumel, depriving passengers of one of the top port destinations. Travelers snapped pictures of a Coast Guard helicopter as it landed to get a blood sample from the passenger.

The U.S. government issued an urgent plea to more than 4.7 million people to get the air bags in their cars fixed, amid concern that a defect in the devices can possibly kill or injure the driver or passengers. The inflator mechanisms in the air bags can rupture, causing metal fragments to fly out when the bags are deployed in crashes. Safety advocates say at least four people have died from the problem and there have been multiple injuries. Multiple automakers have recalled vehicles in the U.S. over the past two years to repair air bag inflators made by Takata Corp., a Tokyo-based supplier of seat belts, air bags, steering wheels and other auto parts. The court's order was an interim move addressing emergency applications filed Wednesday, and a trial judge's ruling striking down the law will still be appealed. Here is a timeline of Craig Spencer's movements since he got back from the West African nation. Spencer came back to the United States last week after treating Ebola patients in Guinea, where he worked for Doctors without Borders. He completed his work in Guinea on October 12 and left the country two days later via Brussels, Belgium. He arrived at John F. Kennedy International Airport on October 17, but he exhibited no symptoms of the virus until Thursday morning, said Dr. Mary Travis Bassett, New York City's health commissioner. The 33-year-old did not have any symptoms just after his return, but he developed a fever, nausea, pain and fatigue Thursday morning, authorities said. He began feeling sluggish a couple of days ago, but his fever spiked to 100.3 degrees Fahrenheit (about 38 Celsius) the day his symptoms appeared.

Ebola worries have eased slightly in the latest poll, despite a broad sense among Americans that their local hospitals are unprepared to deal with the virus - and continued preference for a more robust response by the federal government. After the difficulties at Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, where two nurses were infected, just 29 percent in this national survey think the staff at their local hospitals is adequately trained to deal with Ebola cases. Six in 10 think not. The fact that both nurses recovered - and just one further case has been identified - may have done at least a little to calm fears of a broad outbreak. In interviews Thursday through Sunday, 36 percent of Americans expressed worry that they or an immediate family member might catch the Ebola virus, down by 7 percentage points from two weeks before. Higher output coupled with weaker demand from China and Europe has driven the price of crude down to $85 - it's lowest for four years. The US also now produces 65% more oil than it did five years ago following the boom in shale production. The rise has contributed to the global glut of crude and

Time: 9:30 pm

Synopsis:

Latino activists and immigration reform advocates knew going into the midterms that 2014 wasn't the ideal election to punish Republicans for killing a path to citizenship for undocumented immigrants. The House was largely insulated from any serious challenge, few Senate races up for grabs had significant Latino voting populations, and turnout in off years tends to draw older, white, conservative voters. Even by that standard, however, Tuesday night was rough. Nationally, Democrats won 64% of Latino voters, according to exit polls - exactly halfway between their 60% level in 2010 and 68% in 2012. The numbers suggest the GOP still has major hurdles with one of the fastest-growing voting blocs in the nation, an issue that will loom large in 2016. Republican pollsters preemptively warned the party earlier this week not to get too excited by their gains on Tuesday given these broader problems.

President Barack Obama showed no signs of backing down from executive action on immigration reform on Wednesday, despite a Republican wave that ripped control of the U.S. Senate away from Democrats the night before. Obama said that before the end of the year, he is going to take whatever lawful actions at the White House, although he declined to offer specifics on what an executive order might look like. The president said he plans to reach out to Republican leaders in both chambers to gauge their agenda, but added that he is done waiting for lawmakers on Capitol Hill to take action. Republicans are almost certain to cry foul when Obama takes immigration action. A group of conservative Republican senators, including Ted Cruz (R-Texas) and Jeff Sessions (R-Ala.), sent a letter on Wednesday to Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (D-Nev.) threatening to use procedural means to block any executive action by the president. Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.), who won re-election Tuesday and will likely be the next Senate majority leader, said during a press conference ahead of Obama's speech that Republicans could take up immigration reform, but the chances of that happening would be hurt if the president takes executive action.

Time: 11:30 pm.

Synopsis:

Just days after Brittany Maynard's assisted suicide launched a national debate on the ethics of the controversial practice; the New Jersey Assembly is set to hold a debate and vote on whether to become the next state to legalize it. Bill A2270 is now scheduled to be voted on Thursday and pro-life groups like New Jersey Right to Life are urging pro-life residents to call and email their legislators and ask for a no vote. The legislation states that the process outlined in the bill should be entirely voluntary and even includes language to hold persons accountable who coerce or exert undue influence on a patient to request medication; however, other sections in the bill leave ample room for abuse by relatives, friends, caregivers and the medical profession.

Topic: IMMIGRATION REFORM

Time: 10:30 pm

Synopsis:

The President has promised -- and is expected -- to take various executive actions under current law to address immigration and deportation before the end of the year. Democratic Members of the House of Representatives, back to Washington for the first time since Election Day, want to hit the ground running and are calling on the President to act boldly, broadly and soon. The White House could make the move as early as next week. President Barack Obama is overhauling American immigration policy, according to several reports Thursday, in a long-anticipated move that would ignore his Republican critics and could allow up to 5 million undocumented immigrants to stay in the country. Citing unnamed administration officials, the New York Times reports that Obama intends as early as next week to announce plans to substantially refocus immigration enforcement involving some 12,000 agents and reduce the risk of deportation for millions of immigrants.

Time: 5:55 pm

SYNOPSIS:

The cold temperatures are not stopping immigrant families that are crossing illegally the south Texas border with Mexico. According to the church between 20 and 40 families are arriving daily. The U.S. government now patrols nearly half the Mexican border by drones alone in a largely unheralded shift to control desolate stretches where there are no agents, camera towers, ground sensors or fences, and it plans to expand the strategy to the Canadian border. It represents a significant departure from a decades-old approach that emphasizes boots on the ground and fences. Since 2000, the number of Border Patrol agents on the 1,954-mile border more than doubled to surpass 18,000 and fencing multiplied nine times to 700 miles.

Ferguson, Missouri and the nation await a grand jury decision on the death of African American teen Michael Brown and Officer Darren Wilson. On August 9, protests erupted in the streets, as residents demanded that Wilson face criminal charges. Over the past three months, that process has been underway as a grand jury has been hearing evidence on the case and deciding whether to indict Wilson. It is expected to reach a decision any day now. No one knows whether Wilson will be indicted. But if the grand jury decides that there is not enough evidence to indict, there will be new protests, potentially violent ones. Missouri officials are trying to prevent that from happening. On Tuesday, Governor Jay Nixon explained that no violence would be allowed and that, if necessary, he would call in the National Guard to keep the peace. Ferguson residents are preparing for the worst and cops are readying themselves as well, purchasing thousands of dollars' worth of riot gear, pepper spray and rubber bullets.

President Barack Obama says he plans to help immigrants living illegally in the United States "get legal" without any action from Congress. And he promises to curb a system that he describes as deporting immigrants improperly. But the White House is vague about the changes the president is expected to announce soon. What can Obama actually do without the cooperation of Capitol Hill? Under current law, the president can direct immigration authorities to temporarily shield particular immigrants from deportation and give them permission to work in the country legally. But the president cannot give immigrants living in the country illegally green cards, visas or just about any other path to a permanent legal immigration status. Only Congress has that authority, and so far lawmakers have shown little interest in remodeling the country's complex legal immigration system.

Immigrants entering the U.S. illegally are increasingly making states along the East Coast their home rather than states closer to the Mexican border. New Jersey, Florida and Pennsylvania were among seven states to register gains in unauthorized immigrants from 2009 to 2012, even as the total number of immigrants here in the U.S. unlawfully was unchanged at 11.2 million, according to a report released Tuesday by the nonpartisan Pew Research Center. New Jersey had the biggest gain, jumping 75,000 to 525,000 as many immigrants from India and Ecuador crossed illegally into the state. It was followed by Florida, increasing 50,000 to 925,000. Pennsylvania was third, rising 30,000 to 170,000. Statewide tea party protests are being planned in Nevada to greet President Barack Obama's announcement of executive action on amnesty. The president will announce his executive amnesty plan Thursday night at 8 p.m. in a primetime address to the nation. Obama will then speak at Del Sol High School in Las Vegas Friday with Senate Minority Leader-elect Harry Reid. While unauthorized immigrants accounted for 3.5 percent of the U.S. population of nearly 316 million in 2012, the share varied from less than 1 percent in 10 states to a high of 7.6 percent in Nevada. California and Texas, each at 6.3 percent, had the next-highest shares of people living there illegally. Among the reports other findings: 17.7 percent of Nevada students in kindergarten through high school have at least one unauthorized immigrant parent. That's the highest share of any state in the country, and well ahead of California and Texas, where the figure is around 13 percent. Unauthorized immigrants from Mexico account for two-thirds of those who will be eligible for deportation relief under President Obama's executive action, even as they account for about half of the nation's unauthorized population, according to a new Pew Research Center analysis. The new action, which mainly applies to unauthorized immigrant parents of U.S. citizen or legal permanent resident children, would benefit those born in Mexico more than any other country of origin group. According to the Pew Research analysis, 44% of unauthorized immigrants from Mexico could apply for deportation protection under the new programs, compared with 24% of those from other parts of the world. President Obama's new programs could affect about 4 million total unauthorized immigrants who will be eligible for deportation protection and a three-year work permit. The largest group - at least 3.5 million, according to Pew Research estimates of 2012 data - consists of unauthorized immigrant parents who have lived in the U.S. for at least five years and have children who either were born in the U.S. or are legal permanent residents. Greater Los Angeles authorities provide a complete guide on how to survive natural disasters such as grand scale earthquakes, from facts about earth shaking, indoor safety, what to do after the shaking stop and what to do in case of being trapped in debris. Southern California has about 10,000 earthquakes each year, though most are so small that they are never felt. Of those, 15-20 are greater than magnitude 4.0. Large earthquakes create an aftershock sequence that can produce many additional earthquakes of all magnitudes for many months. Earthquakes can occur in any type of weather - cold, hot, rainy or dry. There is no such thing as "earthquake weather." so earthquake preparedness should be 24/7. The San Andreas Fault is not a single, continuous fault, but rather a fault zone consisting of many different segments. Its fault system is more than 800 miles long. Most earthquakes occur at depths of less than 50 miles below the Earth's surface. Only four states Florida, Iowa, North Dakota and Wisconsin have not had earthquakes in the past 30 years. Alaska is the most earthquake-prone state, with a magnitude 7 quakes or greater occurring nearly every year.

Topic: DIFFICULT UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRANTS REQUISITES

Time: 5:23PM

Synopsis:

As part of Obama's executive action this past November, undocumented immigrants must show that they have lived in the country for the past five years. Many of these immigrants, however, have done everything possible to remain "under the radar" during those years and as such, have little to no documentation to attest to their residency. Pablo Sanchez's piece brings to light the fact that many of these people have not received their salaries through checks, have not filed for taxes, and do not have mortgages or rental contracts to attest to their living status. How do these "invisible" people show they have been here all these years?

Topic: MORE TEENS USING E-CIGARETTES THAN TOBACCO CIGARETTES

Time: 3:27PM

Synopsis:

For the first time, more teens are smoking e-cigarettes than tobacco cigarettes, according to a new survey of 40,000 to 50,000 students in the 8th, 10th and 12th grades. The annual University of Michigan "Monitoring the Future" report found that both alcohol and cigarette use in 2014 were at their lowest points since the study began in 1975. But they were most concerned about the rise of e-cigarettes, which are not regulated and whose formulas are undisclosed. The survey found that in the past 30 days, more than twice as many 8th- and 10th-graders reported using e-cigarettes versus tobacco cigarettes. Among 12th-graders, 17 percent reported e-cigarette use and 14 percent reported use of a tobacco cigarette. But 16 percent of 10th graders surveyed reported using an e-cigarette, while 7 percent reported using a tobacco cigarette.

Time: 4:37PM

Synopsis:

On December 17th, the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a last-minute bid by Gov. Jan Brewer to keep thousands of dreamers living in Arizona from getting licenses to drive. In a brief order, the court denied Brewer's request that it block the 9th Circuit from ordering a federal judge in Phoenix to issue a preliminary injunction blocking the governor's edict declaring that dreamers do not meet the requirements of Arizona law. The justices gave no reason for their decision. The order was not unanimous: Justices Antonin Scalia, Clarence Thomas and Samuel Alito did side with Brewer and would have given her at least a chance to convince the full court that the 9th Circuit got it wrong and that dreamers are not entitled under Arizona law to get licenses to drive.

DATE: 11/04/14 TITLE: Imperial County Elections Nov 4
LENGTH: 2:00
PROGRAM: Notivalle

NARRATIVE: Thanks Ricardo very good afternoon. The voter authorities have been surprised by the citizen participation because they expected fewer people out to vote in the elections today. Among the major elections that are at stake are those of Imperial County Supervisor of Districts 1 and 5, as well as the councils of the cities of Imperial and Calexico. Election day started early with supporters taking the streets to encourage passersby to vote after their candidates. For election officials the positions that are involved are the main triggers for more people casting their votes during the day. "What I'm looking at is that people are voting more than the other elections, and families come, everyone is coming with families." Pinky Perrone and Jacinta Flores both Calexico said that through voting they expect to see a change in their community. The Hispanic vote is crucial in the Imperial Valley since 85% of its population is Latino. And it is this sector that can kill ghosts apathy of abstention. You still have time to go out and assert their civic duty polls close at 8 pm. Election day in Imperial County elapsed without incident, you will have the preliminary results of major elections in Imperial County at 11 pm. Abraham Retana Notivalle Univision News.

NARRATIVE: The Highway Patrol strives to end up with the aggressive drivers specially these days when the new year's eve events are getting closer. Enriqueta Rodriguez states she is a good driver and she worries always when seeing a person driving aggressively over the highways. "Well the other day I was driving from Calexico over 86 highway and I was tempted to call the highway patrol because a car was coming as it was something in it because it was horrible." According to the highway patrol the aggressive drivers are in great part responsible for the thousand of people injured in accidents in California highways. When you drive and get closer to the cars in front, or during nights you change the car lights for the other driver to move out to the other lane, or you honk the horn for them to move out to the other lane, so you have a symptom of being an aggressive driver. To end with these type of drivers the California highway patrol will initiate a measure for those who drive aggressively on these coming holidays. So if you see an aggressive or distracted driver over the highways report him immediately to 911.

Calexico Chief Police conference

LENGTH:

02:06

PROGRAM: Notivalle

NARRATIVE: Calexico Police Chief made a public announcement about the corruption among the police association and some local leaders. The police chief stated a case of assault and violation occurred on October this year, before his arrival to Calexico has been used by some city council members and by the police association of this city to dismiss him out of his duties. "They are trying to use our council members as a political action to depose me and the city administrator saying that we are not doing our work, and using actions taken by the previous chief and his personnel to blame the police officers and I, and that is a clear sample of political corruption." The Police Chief Bostic states that previous his Calexico arrival the police department used about 100 thousand dollars for cameras and audio equipments for recording council members on compromising situations and use that material against him over the violation case that is investigated. On the other hand the Calexico's Mayor John Moreno states he will continue collaborating with the authorities to end with the roots of corruption on this border city. It is very premature to know the city leaders's future but the authorities state they would go far until the last consequences for cleaning up the police department and Calexico's Image. The Police Chief did not specify the time that it would last such investigation, nor consequences for those implicated, he only hopes clean up the corporation for the citizens feel more safe.
