The problem of Immigration detention centers for the U.S. government

Program: Perspectiva Nacional (Segment #1: 9:01)

When: May 17th, 2015 6:30AM

Description of Program: With the increasing influx of immigrants, mostly from Central America, authorities have arrested and kept thousands of people, including children, in immigration detention centers. The problem is that these centers are overcrowded, in many cases because the laws themselves do not provide for rapid attention of the cases and requests for the undocumented. Organizations who safeguard their rights, point flagrant violations of constitutional and civil rights of immigrants, among other issues.

With this issue we begin our show this week, which we discuss with the immigration attorney Jose Pertierra, who also talks about cases of child abduction, based on the case of the teenager Alondra Diaz.

04/02/2015

Duration: 30 secs

Topic: JOHNS HOPKINS SUED OVER STD STUDY IN GUATEMALA

Time: 6:09pm

Synopsis:

More than 770 plaintiffs are suing the Johns Hopkins Hospital System Corp. over its role in a series of medical experiments in Guatemala in the 1940s and 1950s during which people were deliberately infected with venereal diseases without their consent. The lawsuit filed in Baltimore City Circuit Court seeks $1 billion in damages for individuals, spouses and children of people infected with syphilis, gonorrhea and other sexually transmitted diseases through a U.S. government program between 1945 and 1956. The suit claims officials at Johns Hopkins had "substantial influence" over the studies by controlling some panels that advised the federal government on how to spend research dollars. The suit also alleges that Hopkins and the Rockefeller Foundation, which is also named as a defendant, "did not limit their involvement to design, planning, funding and authorization of the Experiments; instead, they exercised control over, supervised, supported, encouraged, participated in and directed the course of the Experiments."

Topic: RACIALLY CHARGED EMAILS RENEW CONCERNS ABOUT SOCIAL SITUATION IN FERGUSON MISSOURI

Time 6:15pm

Synopsis:

Officials in Ferguson, Missouri, have released the full content of racially charged and religiously insensitive emails, even about President Barack Obama, sent between the city's former court clerk and two ex-police supervisors. The St. Louis suburb was torn by months of unrest following the fatal shooting of an unarmed black teenager by a white police officer. The emails, although dating back years before the shooting, were among evidence presented by the Justice Department in a report in March that concluded that racism pervaded the Ferguson Police Department. The emails were released to the Washington Post late on Thursday in response to a public-records request. They were sent and received by Mary Ann Twitty, who was Ferguson's court clerk, as well as former Ferguson police Captain Rick Henke and former police Sergeant William Mudd. All three were removed from their jobs after the Department of Justice discovered the emails, which prompted an investigation by city officials. The three have made no comment since leaving their jobs. The emails were sent between 2008 and 2011 and are mainly emails forwards containing insensitive and offensive jokes. Ferguson Mayor James Knowles condemned the emails when the Justice Department report was released.

Topic: OBAMACARE IS GOING TO AFFECT YOUR TAXES
Time: 10:48pm
Synopsis:

The Affordable Care Act, aka Obamacare, inserted health insurance into tax season in two ways, affecting nearly all of us. The first is the law's mandate that almost all U.S. residents get health coverage or pay a penalty. The second is the tax-credit subsidy that millions of Americans received via Obamacare's exchanges to lower their health insurance premiums. The tax-filing deadline is just two weeks away, on Wednesday, April 15. Before you freak out, rest assured that little has changed for about 80 percent of Americans. Still, some people will have to jump through new hoops -- and might see big effects on their tax refunds or bills.

Duration :30 sec
Topic: CALIFORNIA LAWMAKERS AIM TO AID MIGRANTS
Time: 4:35pm
Synopsis:

Democratic lawmakers unveil a slew of new immigration-related proposals including measures that would extend state-paid health coverage to those in the country illegally and offer more protection against deportation. Legislators behind the 10-bill package aim to build on the landmark immigration laws passed in California in recent years, such as one that allows people without legal residency to obtain driver's licenses. By keeping momentum on immigrant-aid policies, legislative leaders said, they hoped to spur liberalization of immigration laws nationwide. The most far-reaching of the new proposals would offer enrollment in Medi-Cal - California's healthcare program for the poor - to people who qualify regardless of immigration status. In California, about 1.8 million people who are in the country illegally lack healthcare coverage, according to estimates by UC Berkeley and UCLA. About 1.5 million of them would qualify for Medi-Cal.

Topic: BREACHES AT US AIRPORTS

Time: 4:30 pm

Synopsis:

Several hundred times over the last decade, intruders have hopped fences, slipped past guardhouses, crashed their cars through gates or otherwise breached perimeter security at the nation's busiest airports - sometimes even managing to climb aboard jets. One man tossed his bike over a fence and pedaled across a runway at Chicago O'Hare, stopping to knock on a terminal door. Another rammed a sports-utility vehicle through a security gate at Philadelphia International and sped down a runway as a plane was about to land. At Los Angeles International, a mentally ill man hopped the fence eight times in less than a year - twice reaching stairs that led to jets. An Associated Press investigation found 268 perimeter breaches since 2004 at airports that together handle three-quarters of U.S. commercial passenger traffic. And that's an undercount, because two airports among the 31 that AP surveyed didn't have data for all years. Boston's Logan refused to release any information, citing security concerns.

Synopsis:

Drivers in California who are unable to pay traffic fines for minor infractions are frequently having their licenses suspended by traffic courts - a policy that has had a disproportionate impact on poor and working-class people, according to a study released Wednesday. The report found that in California, four million people - 17 percent of adults with licenses in the state - had their licenses suspended as recently as 2013 because they had failed to pay fines or to appear in court. The issue of aggressive enforcement of traffic violations by police officers and the imposition by courts of substantial financial penalties for late payment has attracted widespread attention recently as state, county and municipal governments across the nation have increased fines, in some cases significantly, to offset budget shortfalls caused by the financial crisis.

Topic: FDA APPROVES VYVANSE FOR BINGE-EATING DISORDER

Time: 10:30 pm

Synopsis:

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration on Friday approved Shire Plc's stimulant Vyvan's to treat binge-eating disorder, the first product to be approved for the condition. Vyvan's, which is currently approved to treat attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, generated sales of more than $1 billion in the first nine months of last year. Binge-eating disorder, characterized by repeated episodes of uncontrolled eating, accompanied by guilt and shame, affects roughly 2.8 million people in the United States, according to Shire. Vyvan's is an amphetamine which, like other amphetamines, carries the potential for abuse and addiction. They also have been associated with increase blood pressure and heart rate, sudden death, stroke, heart attack, insomnia and psychiatric side effects such as hallucinations and mania. The drug is not approved for weight loss.

Time: 5:35pm

Synopsis:

A violent storm system threw off tornadoes and left a trail of destruction Thursday night as it swept across a 50-mile swath of North Central Illinois. A 67-year-old woman was killed and at least seven others were hospitalized with injuries in the tiny hamlet of Fairdale. Rescue crews worked throughout the night and into Friday morning sifting through the rubble. Speaking to reporters just after midnight, Rockford Fire Department Matthew Knott said every home in Fairdale had been searched twice to ensure no one was missed. Every single home was affected by the storm, officials said, with some crushed down to their foundation and others left standing with no damage except broken windows. The twister that touched down in Fairdale at 7:15 p.m. Thursday was a powerful but slow-moving tornado, but its scientific strength was not known early Friday.

Time: 10:50 pm

Synopsis:

Garifuna churches of New York City have been assisting numerous Garifuna immigrants who have arrived since June. To date, they have assisted about 140 families, helping them with food, clothing, legal assistance and travel fare to legal and medical appointments. The Garifuna, descendants of African and indigenous Arawak people from the Caribbean, are mostly concentrated along the northern coast of Honduras, with others in Belize, New York City and other U.S. urban centers. Last spring, large numbers of Garifuna emigrated to the U.S. from Honduras to escape discrimination, urban gang violence and poverty and to find work and a more stable life. Many of the immigrants, which included some unaccompanied children and youth, came to New York City to stay with Garifuna family and friends already living there. When many of the mothers first went to immigration court, they were given tracking devices to wear on their ankles. Until the devices were removed, the women were unable to legally work and had to charge the devices every three hours.

Time: 8:30 pm

Synopsis:

If Immigration and Customs Enforcement officials do not meet the demands of mothers in the Karnes family detention center, they have pledged to restart the hunger strike and work stoppage they initiated during Holy Week to protest their and their children's mistreatment and unjust detention. That week, 80 mothers refused to work or eat to bring attention to their imprisonment and demand their immediate release. In response, authorities at the privately run facility, placed mothers like Kenia Galeano who will join the call in isolation. The Administration's policy of detaining asylum seeking mothers and children as part of a deterrence strategy has also come under fire in the courts recently with a class action lawsuit filed by the ACLU and the immigration clinic at the University of Texas law school. In solidarity with the women inside Karnes, supporters will deliver 4,000 signatures on a petition to ICE Director Sarah Saldaña at the ICE Headquarters in DC requesting their immediate release.

The director of U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement clashed with Rep. Louie Gohmert (R-Texas) over the Obama administration's immigration policies during a Tuesday House Judiciary Committee hearing. Things eventually got so tense that ICE Director Sarah Saldana actually had to ask Gohmert to stop yelling. Gohmert noted that Judge Andrew Hanen has temporarily halted President Barack Obama's executive actions to shield millions of illegal immigrants from deportations - and then accused the administration of misleading the judge in its past approval of benefits for eligible immigrants. The Obama administration apparently argued in court and in legal documents that the president's immigration plan would not be implemented until late February, according to Hanen. However, the Department of Justice later told Hanen that more than 100,000 illegal immigrants had been issued three-year deferrals between November 20 and February 16, when the injunction was ordered, a move that irked the federal judge.

Low-wage workers - and their sympathizers - had their say coast to coast on Wednesday. Thousands of workers and protesters from New York City to Los Angeles walked, marched and shouted their demands in front of fast-food locations and on several major college campuses for $15-an-hour wages. No arrests were reported. At least one McDonald's in New York City was temporarily closed by protesters. Several McDonald's stores kept drive-through operating, even while the restaurants were temporarily locked. Central to Wednesday's strike is the evolution of its scope. What began two years ago as a fast-food workers movement has propelled into something wider, with Wednesday's protests including a range of workers from adjunct professors to home care and child care providers to Walmart employees.

The influx of tech money fueled San Francisco rents up 14.8 percent, while nearby San Jose jumped 12.3 percent. Rents average more than $3,000 a month in these areas. That's roughly $600 more than rent in the Los Angeles area, $800 more than metro New York City, and $1,000 more than the Washington, D.C. area. Prices are also climbing in cities without the same hype from startups and venture capital. Rents rose more than 8.5 percent over the past year in Denver, Louisville, Kansas City and Nashville, among other metro areas. The head of the Maricopa County Community College District said he hopes that a ruling allowing in-state tuition for "dreamers" will lead to more young immigrants attending the colleges. A Maricopa County Superior Court judge ruled Tuesday that undocumented students who have work visas under the federal Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program are allowed to pay the lower tuition rate. The deferred-action program, launched by President Barack Obama in 2012, is intended to protect undocumented immigrants brought to the United States as minors from deportation if they meet certain criteria. Those approved can remain in the country for two years and receive federal work permits. The ruling caps a 2-year-old lawsuit filed by then-state Attorney General Tom Horne. He sued the community-college district, arguing the students were not lawfully in the country and that the tuition policy violated a law enacted by voters in 2006 that banned public benefits to undocumented immigrants. A judge ruled the Maricopa Community Colleges can charge in-state tuition to undocumented students who have a federal waiver. Young immigrants who have a work visa under the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program can lawfully pay $84 per credit instead of $325 per credit. Tom Horne, the attorney general in 2013, had sued the college district, saying the tuition policy violated state law.

Synopsis:

Journalist Seymour Hersh is alleging President Barack Obama and his administration lied about the circumstances surrounding the 2011 killing of Osama bin Laden, an account close followers of the raid to kill the al Qaeda leader are loudly disputing. Citing an anonymous "major U.S. source," Hersh writes in the London Review of Books that the Obama administration cooperated with Pakistani intelligence officials to kill the al Qaeda leader, and that the chief of staff of the Pakistani army and director general of the Inter-Services Intelligence Agency knew about the mission, contrary to Obama's claim that Pakistani officials weren't aware of the raid in advance. CNN National Security Analyst Peter Bergen immediately rebutted Hersh's allegations in a post that contradicts most of the claims in his 10,000 word report. In explaining why he relied largely on the "major U.S. source," Hersh said that it's "very tough for guys still inside to get quoted extensively," and declared that he "vetted most and verified" his sourcing with further reporting in Pakistan. But Hersh, who has drawn criticism for his heavy use of anonymous sourcing before, admitted that he had gotten some things wrong in his reporting before.

Topic: JEB BUSH ON IMMIGRATION AND IRAK

Time: 2:16pm ET

Synopsis:

Jeb Bush said in an interview that he would not immediately move to repeal President Obama's executive order on immigration - suggesting he would instead wait for a new law to be passed addressing the matter. In an interview with Megyn Kelly that is to be shown Monday night on Fox News, Mr. Bush said that rather than overturning the order, he believed in "passing meaningful reform of immigration and make it part of it." Jeb Bush, in an exclusive interview with Fox News' "The Kelly File," rejected the suggestion that the momentum behind his likely presidential bid has slowed - calling recent polls "irrelevant" and urging those closely watching them to "take a chill pill." Bush, though widely expected to run for the Republican nomination, has held back as several other Republicans have officially announced their 2016 campaigns in recent weeks. As they dominate the headlines, some - notably, Bush's presumed home-state rival, Florida Sen. Marco Rubio - have enjoyed a surge in the polls.

Topic: CHILD FOUND IN MEXICO

Time: 4:26pm ET

Synopsis:

Dorotea Garcia was granted full custody of Alondra Diaz in Houston, Texas in 2007 but the father decided to take the little girl and flee to Mexico. After a desperate search and much confusion it seems like Alondra was found. Today the mother had a dramatic reunion with her in a court room in Mexico City but we wanted to know what the legal sanctions the father could face are. The mother has said in numerous occasions that she does not want to press charges and is just relieved of having her daughter back in her life that she is willing to drop all charges against the father. We spoke to a criminal attorney in San Francisco to see what the law says. According to our expert the father could face up to 3 years in prison in Texas where the law was broken. Since the mother does not want to press charges it becomes more complicated since the state would have to request Extraditing him back to the United States. Reynaldo Diaz, the father could also face federal charges but since the child seems to be in good condition, it is very likely that he could be processed.

Time: 6:30pm ET

Synopsis:

Republican Jeb Bush visited the state of Arizona on Thursday and said about immigration that the system should be changed in order to grow financially. He suggested that any decision should be made legally within the law. One of Bush's speaker said that Jeb Bush supports an immigration bill based on economic growth, in which the benefiting immigrants should pay fines, learn English, and not ask for any government help. He also reversed his position on whether the U.S. should have invaded Iraq, reflecting a struggle between being his own man in his expected run for the White House and remaining loyal to his brother who started the war, former President George W. Bush. Jeb Bush's days-long search for the right formulation to describe his position on Iraq appeared to expose some rustiness on the campaign trail eight years after serving as governor of Florida.

Time: 6:06pm ET

Synopsis:

The federal jury that watched Dzhokhar Tsarnaev sits impassively in court for the past four months delivered the severest form of justice Friday, sentencing the homegrown terrorist to death for detonating a bomb amid Boston Marathon spectators that left wounds - emotional and physical - that will persist across lifetimes. The unanimous verdict brought to a close a legal drama that has unfolded on the South Boston waterfront since January, with searing testimony about the bombings that killed three, took the limbs of 17 others, and injured hundreds more. Throughout the proceedings, the lanky 21-year-old showed no remorse. The death sentence automatically sets in motion an appeals process that could last more than a decade. The jury of seven women and five men deliberated for 14½ hours over three days before reaching its verdict. Some jurors were visibly shaken as the verdict was read and the judge thanked them for their service. They did not seem to look at Tsarnaev.

Time: 3:30 pm

Synopsis:

Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo is expected to introduce on Monday two new measures in the State Legislature that would give regulators greater authority to punish nail salons that mistreat workers and make it easier for manicurists to acquire licenses. The legislation follows emergency rule changes ordered by Mr. Cuomo, a Democrat, last week in response to a New York Times investigation that uncovered the widespread exploitation of nail salon workers, many of whom experience serious health problems linked to the chemicals they work with regularly. The changes will subject salons in New York to some of the strictest health regulations in the country. The broad package of rules and legislation takes aim at the salon industry on multiple fronts, from how workers are licensed to how they swipe polish off fingertips. The new legislation will be introduced in the Assembly and Senate simultaneously. One measure gives New York's State Department the power for the first time to punish salons flouting the law, including the ability to shut unlicensed salons. It will also be able to increase fines for violations.

The recalls, expected to be conducted by up to 11 auto makers, would be one of the largest actions for any industry. Some 31 million bottles of Tylenol were recalled in the early 1980s. The suspect air bags are found in everything from sport-utility vehicles made by Honda Motor Co. to autos produced by Toyota Motor Corp., General Motors Co. and Daimler AG trucks. To commemorate what would have been DAPA's implementation date, Latino and immigrant rights are hosting events and rallies for the deferred action program that could result in a GDP increase of $164 billion by 2025. The DAPA program would have allowed undocumented immigrant parents to request temporary deferred action from deportation and obtain employment authorization if the individuals lived in the U.S. since Jan. 1, 2010, and is a parent of a U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident born on or before Nov. 20, 2014 -- the same day as Obama's immigration executive action address. Moreover, risky sexual behavior such as engaging in unprotected sex and number of sexual encounters increases as a result of over-the-counter access to EC. Analysis estimated that over the counter access increases STI rates by approximately 12% for women aged 15-44 and 9% for teenagers; these numbers are also consistent with the 12-17% increase in gonorrhea rates found in Washington as a result of expanded access. Time: 6:06 pm

Synopsis:

The nation's second-largest city voted Tuesday to increase its minimum wage from $9 an hour to $15 an hour by 2020, in what is perhaps the most significant victory so far for labor groups and their allies who are engaged in a national push to raise the minimum wage. The increase, which the City Council passed in a 14-to-1 vote, comes as workers across the country are rallying for higher wages and several large companies, including Facebook and Walmart, have moved to raise their lowest wages. Several other cities, including San Francisco, Chicago, Seattle and Oakland, Calif., have already approved increases, and dozens more are considering doing the same. In 2014, a number of Republican-leaning states like Alaska and South Dakota also raised their state-level minimum wages by ballot initiative. The effect is likely to be particularly strong in Los Angeles, where, according to some estimates, almost 50 percent of the city's work force earns less than $15 an hour. Under the plan approved Tuesday, the minimum wage will rise over five years.

The spill killed untold numbers of fish, at least five pelicans and a sea lion. It also mired other wildlife, including an elephant seal, in the muck. The pipeline that leaked thousands of gallons of oil on the California coast was the only pipe of its kind in the county not required to have an automatic shut-off valve because of a court fight nearly three decades ago. The original owner of the pipeline skirted the Santa Barbara County requirement by successfully arguing in court in the late 1980s that it should be subject to federal oversight because the pipeline is part of an interstate network, said Kevin Drude, deputy director of the county's Energy and Minerals Division. Auto shut-off valves are not required by federal regulators.

Time: 2:21 pm

Synopsis:

The U.S. Congress curtailed the National Security Agency's authority to track suspected terrorists as lawmakers struggled to restore approval for mass collection of phone records and other surveillance methods. No solution was likely before Tuesday at the earliest. The high-stakes drama played out as Congress debated significant changes prompted by the disclosures of Edward Snowden, the former NSA contractor who revealed the phone records collection and other main surveillance programs. Press Secretary Josh Earnest said the Senate's failure to pass legislation in an unusual Sunday session introduced an unnecessary risk to the country. The House-passed legislation was stalled in the Senate, where Majority Leader Mitch McConnell and other leading Republicans sought changes. The legal lapse affected not only the NSA's ability to collect domestic phone records in bulk. It also meant at least a temporary end to the FBI's authority to gather business records in terrorism and espionage investigations, and to more easily eavesdrop on a suspect who is discarding cell phones to avoid surveillance. While intelligence officials publicly warned of danger, they said they were not deeply concerned with a lapse of a few days or weeks, given that the authorities remain available in pending investigations. What they most fear is a legislative impasse that could doom the programs permanently. U.S. President Barack Obama supports the USA Freedom Act, which ends NSA bulk collection of U.S. phone records but allows the agency to search records held by the phone companies.

Topic: FACEBOOK SCOTUS

Time: 5:21 pm

Synopsis:

The Supreme Court on Monday threw out the conviction of a Pennsylvania man prosecuted for making threats on Facebook, but dodged the free-speech issues that had made the case intriguing to First Amendment advocates. Chief Justice John Roberts, writing for the court, said it was not enough for prosecutors to show that the comments of Anthony Elonis would make a reasonable person feel threatened. But the high court sent the case back to the lower court without clarifying exactly what the standard of proof should be. The ruling was a narrow victory for civil liberties groups that had urged the court to make it tougher to prosecute people who make crude comments on social media that might be viewed as threatening. Yet the high court declined to lay out broad constitutional protections for such comments. "It is not necessary to consider any First Amendment issues," Roberts wrote. Elonis, of Freemansburg, Pennsylvania, was prosecuted under a law that makes it a crime to threaten another person after he posted Facebook rants in the form of rap lyrics about killing his estranged wife, harming law enforcement officials and shooting up a school. Seven justices on the high court said it was not necessary to reach First Amendment issues in reversing Elonis' conviction. Roberts said the reasonable-person standard is "inconsistent with the conventional requirement for criminal conduct -- awareness of some wrongdoing." Justice Samuel Alito agreed with the outcome, but said he would have made clear that a person can violate the law if he disregards the risk that comments will be interpreted as a threat. Elonis said he didn't intend to threaten anyone. He claimed his posts under the pseudonym "Tone Dougie" were a form of therapy that allowed him to cope with the breakup of his marriage and being fired from his job at an amusement park.

President Barack Obama still has confidence in the U.S. Transportation Security Administration after a scathing report that faulted the agency for not detecting obvious threats to airline security, the White House said on Tuesday (June 2). On Monday, Melvin Carraway, the acting administrator of the TSA, which is responsible for screening airline passengers in the United States, was reassigned after media cited a government report that checkpoint screeners failed to detect mock explosives and weapons in 95 percent of tests carried out by undercover agents. Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson, whose department oversees the TSA, was briefed last week on the trials, which were completed recently, ABC News said. In one test, the network said an undercover agent was stopped when he set off an alarm at a checkpoint but that TSA screeners then failed to find a fake explosive device taped to his back. Johnson issued a statement on Monday saying the results of the security checks were classified but that he had directed the TSA to revise screening procedures "to address specific vulnerabilities identified" in the undercover operation.

The law, which would raise the minimum wage to $15 an hour by 2020, affects hundreds of thousands of workers and makes Los Angeles the largest city in the country to mandate higher pay for workers at the bottom of the income ladder. Backers predicted the action here could reverberate across the nation, ultimately aiding millions of Americans. But council members opted to defer, at least temporarily, some of the most divisive issues surrounding the wage ordinance. Several amendments could be made before the law takes effect. One lingering, highly contentious question is whether unionized companies should be allowed to negotiate for a sub-minimum wage with their employees. The Los Angeles County Federation of Labor sought to add that provision to the ordinance in the final days of the debate, saying that it would help avert legal challenges and allow union workers to trade pay increases for other benefits as they saw fit. Business groups angrily attacked it as a ploy to prod companies to unionize. Deluged with criticism, council members agreed to study the provision further. Lawmakers say that they also will decide on a provision sought by organized labor that would increase the number of paid sick days over what the state has required.

Topic: UNDOCUMENTED FAMILY SEEKS TRANSPLANT IN CHICAGO

Time: 10:30 pm

Synopsis:

A Guatemalan 18 month's baby became part of the growing list of undocumented immigrants that came to Chicago from another country in search of a free transplant to save his life. Baby boy, Luis Eduardo Aquino, can die at any moment if he doesn't receive a new liver. That's why his mother Cindy and her husband, Luis Aquino, left Guatemala eight months ago in search of a cure, encouraged by an interview they saw on television about a similar case in Chicago and the news that Illinois could provide free transplants to the undocumented. But like in all cases, the issue is the legal status of the family and the lack of health insurance to cover the cost of a liver transplant and medication.

Topic: NO FUNDS APPROVED FOR PRESIDENT OBAMA REQUEST OF 50 MILLION TO HELP FUND LEGAL EXPENSES OF CENTRAL AMERICAN CHILDREN THAT CROSS BORDER ALONE

Time: 10:37pm

Synopsis:

A GOP-controlled Senate panel on Wednesday blocked President Barack Obama's request for $50 million to pay for legal help for unaccompanied immigrant children coming to the United States after fleeing violence in Central America. The lawmaker responsible for the move was Republican Sen. Richard Shelby of Alabama, chief author of a spending bill funding the Justice Department's budget. The spending measure won initial approval on Wednesday but has a long way to go before becoming law. The flow of children fleeing gangs and other dangers in Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador and finding their way to the U.S. is down significantly from last year, when an influx created a humanitarian crisis, in states along the U.S.-Mexico border. Significant backlogs remain. Without lawyers, children are much more likely to be sent back to their home countries. Under federal law, immigrant children have two options to seek legal status, including requesting asylum for fear of returning home to face gang violence. Without legal help, the maze of documentation and legal requirements is far more difficult for a child to maneuver. Republicans opposed to people who are in the United States illegally have greater priorities in the $51 billion measure, which also funds the Commerce Department and science-related agencies such as NASA. NASA and the FBI get a slight funding increase, but the measure shortchanges the Census Bureau and Obama's request for new polar weather satellites. The measure is one of 12 annual appropriations bills covering the day-to-day operations of government agencies.

Topic: STORMY WEATHER

Time: 2:19pm

Synopsis:

Following a brief hiatus, rounds of rain and thunderstorms will renew the risk of flooding to parts of the Plains later this week and this weekend. A front is forecast to stall west to east from the central Rockies to the central Plains and part of the Midwest this week. The front, which will separate warm, dry air to the north from hot, very humid air to the south, will also act as an atmospheric highway for repeating rounds of showers and thunderstorms. Tropical moisture will join in for a time adding to the volatility of the thunderstorms and the potential for excessive rainfall.

Topic: SEARCH FOR ESCAPED NEW YORK KILLERS CONTINUES

Time: 2:19pm

Synopsis:

As a large manhunt for two escaped killers stretched into its ninth day in upstate New York, Gov. Andrew Cuomo said Sunday that "we don't know if they are still in the immediate area or if they are in Mexico by now." In recent days, searchers have focused on the woods near Dannemora, where Richard Matt and David Sweat were discovered missing from the maximum-security Clinton Correctional Facility on June 6.

Officials said the pair used power tools and were assisted by prison employee Joyce Mitchell, 51, of Dickinson Center, N.Y. Mitchell pleaded not guilty Friday after she was arrested and charged with a felony and a misdemeanor. Authorities think she smuggled hacksaw blades and other tools to the men.

Topic: JEB BUSH ANNOUNCES THAT HE WILL RUN FOR THE WHITE HOUSE

Time: 11:26pm

Synopsis:

Former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush put an end today to months of speculation and announced his 2016 presidential campaign. "We are 17 months from the time for choosing," Bush told a cheering audience in Miami. "The stakes for America's future are about as great as they come. Our prosperity and our security are in the balance. So is opportunity, in this nation where every life matters and everyone has the right to rise." In attendance were members of his family, including wife, Columba, his mother, former first lady Barbara Bush, his children and their spouses, and all of his grandchildren. His brothers, Neil and Marvin Bush and their wives also were in attendance. The two former presidents in the Bush family -- George W. Bush and George H.W. Bush -- were not on hand for the event.

Time: 11:26pm

Synopsis:

Republican Donald Trump declared his presidential bid by accusing Mexico of sending people bringing drugs, criminals and rapists, promising to build a Great Wall on the nation's southern border and vowing to end the president's immigration executive action. Trump painted a picture of an out-of-control border that he said border guards are describing to him. He said the people coming to the U.S. are not just from Mexico "but all over South and Latin America" and "probably from the Middle East."

Topic: CALIFORNIA GOVERNOR AND LEGISLATIVE LEADERS PROPOSED A BUDGET TO OFFER STATE-SUBSIDIZED HEALTH CARE TO UNDOCUMENTED CHILDREN

Time: 5:19pm

Synopsis:

A budget deal between Gov. Jerry Brown and legislative leaders would make California the first in the nation to offer state-subsidized health care to children who are in the country illegally. The $115.4 billion agreement announced Tuesday is expected to win easy approval from the Senate and Assembly before the fiscal year begins July 1, and its immigrant health care provisions were touted by its backers as a necessity in the face of federal inaction. "While Washington dithers because they can't get things done, we need immigration reform," Senate President Pro Tem Kevin de Leon, D-Los Angeles. "The reality is many of these children, and they are children, require some kind of health care and they receive it in the emergency room. The cost to taxpayers would be $40 million in the new fiscal year and grow to $132 million a year once fully implemented, numbers that had Republicans objecting and warning that it won't help immigrants get access to doctors because of the shortage of providers who accept Medi-Cal, the state's health program for the poor.

Topic: CHARLESTON VIGIL FOLLOWING CHURCH MASSACRE

Time: 5:19pm

Synopsis:

Day of vigil in Charleston, South Carolina, one day after Dylan Storm Roof, The 21-year-old man who police say walked into a South Carolina church and fatally shot nine people as they attended Bible study class. Witnesses told officials Roof reportedly said he was at the church to shoot black people. Police released a flier Thursday morning with details of the suspect in the attack on the historic African-American church as they appealed for help to track him down as quickly as possible. The suspect's uncle said he recognized the man in the surveillance photo distributed by police as his nephew. Roof was currently out on bond in connection with multiple recent arrests on drug and trespassing charges. Charleston Police Chief Gregory Mullen told a news conference that officers "have obtained surveillance videos of the suspect in this case and a suspect vehicle." Mullen said the suspect was a "younger white male between 21 and 25 years of age, 5-foot-9 in height" and "has a very distinctive sweatshirt that has markings."

Time: 5:20 pm

Synopsis:

Relatives of the nine people shot down during a Bible study session inside their historic black church confronted the 21-year-old suspect Friday during his initial hearing. They described their pain and anger, but also spoke of love. They forgave him. They advised him to repent for his sins, and asked for God's mercy on his soul. One even told Dylann Storm Roof to repent and confess, and "you'll be OK." Roof was ordered held until a bond is set on murder charges. He appeared by video from the county jail, looking somber in a striped jumpsuit and speaking only briefly in response to the judge's questions. The victims included the Rev. Clemente Pinckney, a state senator who doubled as the church's lead Pastor, and eight others who played multiple roles in their families and communities: ministers and coaches, teachers and a librarian, counselors and choir singers and the elderly sexton who made sure the historic Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church was kept clean.

Topic: CONFEDERATE FLAG CONTROVERSY

Time: 2:18 pm

Synopsis:

South Carolina's governor declared Monday that the Confederate flag should be removed from the Statehouse grounds as she acknowledged that its use as a symbol of hatred by the man accused of killing nine black church members has made it too divisive to display in such a public space. Gov. Nikki Haley's about-face comes just days after authorities charged Dylann Storm Roof, 21, with murder. The white man appeared in photos waving Confederate flags and burning or desecrating U.S. flags, and purportedly wrote of fomenting racial violence. Survivors told police he hurled racial insults during the attack. The massacre inside the Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church has suddenly made removing the flag - long thought politically impossible in South Carolina -- the go-to position, even for conservative Republican politicians. Haley was flanked by Republican U.S. Sen. Lindsey Graham, now running for president, as well as South Carolina's junior Republican senator, Tim Scott, and Democratic Rep. Jim Clyburn, both of whom are black. Within moments, her call was echoed by the Republican Party chairman and the top GOP lawmaker, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell. The governor's declarations sparked action in other arenas as well on Monday: Mississippi House Speaker Philip Gunn called for the Confederate emblem to be removed from the state flag, becoming the first top-tier Republican to do so. In Tennessee, both Democrats and Republicans called for the removal of a bust of Confederate general and early Ku Klux Klan leader Nathan Bedford Forrest from an alcove outside the Senate's chambers. And Wal-Mart announced Monday that it is removing any items from its store shelves and website that feature the Confederate flag.

Topic: CALIFORNIA WILL FACILITATE MORE THAN 4 MILLION DRIVERS TO REGAIN THEIR DRIVERS LICENCES WHICH THEY LOST FOR NOT PAYING UNPAID FEES

Time: 2:18 pm

Synopsis:

The deal will give many of those folks their licenses back if they were suspended based solely on monetary considerations. Added-on fees have led to outrageous fines that working people simply can't afford. Most of these fines are never paid, which is why there's $10 billion in unpaid fees. We will now be creating both a fairer system and a more efficient one by distinguishing between the unwilling to pay and those unable to pay. Many of Hertzberg's aims were included in the budget via a trailer bill, Hertzberg's office says. His own bill, with many of the same goals, will still work its way through the Legislature, his spokesman told us. The bill seeks to provide 50 to 80 percent off ticket debt, along with license reinstatement, depending on your income level. The budget language will help folks get their driving privileges back if they have had their licenses taken away because they can't afford ticket fees.

Time: 4:32am

Synopsis:

Escaped murderer Richard Matt refused to be taken alive - and died in a hail of gunfire near the Canadian border on Friday in a bloody last stand with officers who had been hunting him for three weeks. He was caught because he fired a bullet at one point that struck a camper in a possible attempt to make it stop so he could hijack it. The driver alerted cops who rushed to the scene. State Police caught a whiff of gunpowder in a nearby cabin, prompting a Customs and Border Patrol tactical team to fly into the area. "There was indication that someone had recently been there and had fled out the back door," State Police Superintendent -Joseph D'Amico said. The federal agents finally closed in on Matt, 49, in a heavily wooded area near Lake Titus in the tiny town of Malone. The officers heard coughing "so they knew they were dealing with humans, as opposed to wildlife," D'Amico added.

The Supreme Court upheld the use of a controversial drug in lethal injection executions Monday, as two dissenting justices said for the first time that they think it's "highly likely" that the death penalty itself is unconstitutional. The justices voted 5-4 in a case from Oklahoma that the sedative midazolam can be used in executions without violating the Eighth Amendment prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment. The drug was used in executions in Arizona, Ohio and Oklahoma in 2014 that took longer than usual and raised concerns that it did not perform its intended task of putting inmates into a coma-like sleep. Justice Samuel Alito said for a conservative majority that arguments the drug could not be used effectively as a sedative in executions is speculative.
