

QUARTERLY REPORT & PROGRAM LISTS FOR WIUP-FM'S
PUBLIC INFORMATION PROGRAMMING
REPORT FOR JULY AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER 2023

This report was prepared by Dr. Zachary Stiegler, Faculty Advisor for WIUP-FM

In the 3rd quarter of 2023, WIUP-FM continued to present a varied schedule of both recorded and live public information programming dealing with issues of national, regional and local interest.

WIUP-FM broadcasts the nationally syndicated news and current events program Democracy Now!, Monday through Friday from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. Democracy Now! is a national, daily, independent, award-winning news program hosted by award-winning journalists Amy Goodman and Juan Gonzalez. Democracy Now!'s War and Peace Report provides our audience with access to people and perspectives rarely heard in the US corporate-sponsored media, including independent and international journalists, ordinary people from around the world who are directly affected by US foreign policy, grassroots leaders and peace activists, artists, academics and independent analysts.

During a regularly scheduled public information programming hour – (Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. during the fall and spring semesters, 10am-11am during academic breaks) – WIUP presents an array of programs dealing with issues of interest to both the academic and non-academic communities we serve. These include US Politics, (White House Chronicle) regional environmental news (The Allegheny Front), recent publications in literature, scholarship, and nonfiction (The Book Show), media analysis and criticism (Counterspin, The Media Project), issues focusing on women (51%) and LGBTQIA (This Way Out) populations, education (The Best of Our Knowledge), as well as current research and public affairs (Scholars' Circle). Descriptions of the nature of each program and the topics covered follow in this document.

WIUP-FM broadcasts a minimum of twenty recorded public service announcements per broadcast day. These announcements benefit local, regional and national public service and information organizations and agencies. The complete audio cart listing of all our recorded Public Service Announcements is included within this document.

In addition to recorded public service announcements, WIUP-FM broadcasts twenty live-read announcements per broadcast day. A listing of the agencies and organizations served by these announcements is included within this document.

3rd QUARTERLY ISSUES REPORT
July 1 – September 30, 2023

Episode for September 29, 2023

A second injection well to dispose of fracking waste was approved in a Pittsburgh suburb, but many residents are unhappy with the decision. Also, a new study looks at how climate change has impacted poison ivy in Pennsylvania using museum specimens that date back to the 1840s. Plus, the Biden administration announced a new jobs program to tackle climate change. It's based on a Depression-era program that changed the landscape across the country. We talk with climate activist who are biking across Pennsylvania to demand action.

Episode for September 22, 2023

At a contentious meeting, an Ohio commission delayed a vote to approve fracking under state parks. A production about fossil fuel extraction is headed to western Pennsylvania. “Ezell, Ballad of a Land Man” delves into the complex issues of fracking and belonging. We talk with its writer and a local advocate about why it resonates with our region. Plus, we head to an orchard in Mercer County using regenerative farming techniques like spreading manure from local goats. And we stop at the first-ever Pittsburgh County Fair celebrating urban farming.

Episode for September 15, 2023

Groups say proposals to use fracked natural gas to produce hydrogen in Western Pennsylvania pose health and climate risks. An investigation in Ohio alleges that many people whose names are on public comments in favor of fracking in state parks say they did not submit them. We'll also hear from an author who revisited the Youghiogheny River of his youth to find some changes for the better. Plus, the federal government wants to put the salamander mussel on the endangered species list. We revisit a story that joins researchers surveying the Allegheny River for the mudpuppy salamander that's critical for the mussel's survival.

Episode for September 8, 2023

Invasive snails have gained a foothold in Pennsylvania, crowding out native species. We join a team surveying Lake Erie for mysterysnails. We talk to people are dealing with the latest summer heat wave about their thoughts on climate change. And a new documentary takes a fresh look at the life and death of coal in Appalachia. Plus, we take a look at what's next for Hays Woods, Pittsburgh's newest city park. News about PFAS, Pennsylvania's Trail of the Year, and spotted lanternflies in Pittsburgh.

Episode for September 1, 2023

A new distillery in Northwestern Pennsylvania makes alcohol from sunflowers but also has an environmental education center and the world's longest bar made from a continuous piece of wood. We head to the Boundary Waters and Canoe Area Wilderness on Minnesota's border with Canada, where researchers and Indigenous leaders are reviving an age-old tradition of using fire to manage the land. We have news about a plan to bow hunt in two Pittsburgh parks to manage deer, a vote to create a climate action plan in Allegheny County, and criticism of a request to burn tires at a waste coal plant.

Episode for August 25, 2023

Many people are paying stormwater fees on their utility bills, but don't really understand the projects they fund are helping to reduce pollution and flooding from storms. And, a new video series gives tips on combatting climate change through things we can control at home. Plus, finding ways to make a wedding more sustainable can feel overwhelming, but there are affordable ways to say "I do" to a greener wedding. News about the Chesapeake Bay, new electric vehicle charging stations coming to Pa., spotted lanternflies are decreasing in parts of the state, and why one borough is suspending its climate program.

Episode for August 18, 2023

A recent study found children living near gas wells had an increased risk of developing a cancer called lymphoma, while people with asthma had a four to five times greater chance of having an asthma attack. One researcher calls the results "a bombshell." We have reactions from parents and activists at a community meeting to address the health concerns. And, a new investigation looks at how well Pennsylvania is monitoring Shell's ethane cracker in Beaver County and how the company reports incidents at the plant. Plus, a champion stone skipper who got his start on Lake Erie talks about his technique.

Episode for August 11, 2023

The federal government is considering the creation of a marine sanctuary in the Pennsylvania portion of Lake Erie to help preserve shipwrecks--but it won't stop recreation on the lake. We'll also sort the facts from fiction when it comes to the concerns over solar panel installations. Plus, we'll hear from the author of a new book on climate resilience who hopes to offer strategies to deal with the climate crisis so no one is left behind. News about solar on farms and schools, the cost of climate adaptation for Pa. municipalities, the price tag for a year without RGGI in Pennsylvania, and why more men are being exposed to harmful chemicals in personal care products.

Episode for August 4, 2023

We head to Cumberland County, where hikers who make it to the halfway point on the Appalachian Trail are taking part in a tradition and friendly competition of eating a half gallon of ice cream. Also, we talk to experts about how global heatwaves this summer are directly tied to climate change. We'll also learn why Western Pennsylvania is critical to stopping the spread of raccoon rabies. Plus, we talk with a Pennsylvania photographer who won a national prize for capturing the image of a female Baltimore oriole collecting horsehair for her nest.

Episode for July 28, 2023

We talk with scientists who discovered that a songbird rare in Pennsylvania is now breeding in the state. Plus, we explain why experts and community groups are calling for EPA to ban vinyl chloride, the chemical that was released and burned from train cars in the East Palestine derailment. And who is a relatively new air pollution rule in Allegheny County meant to protect?

Episode for July 21, 2023

Smoke from this year's Canadian wildfire season is likely just the beginning. We talk with a fire ecology expert about the role of climate change and what can be done about it. Only a few states have constitutional amendments guaranteeing clean air and water. There's a movement to change that. We'll also hear about a new study that looks at radioactive materials in waterways, which could have come from wastewater treatment plants that accept landfill runoff contaminated with fracking waste.

Episode for July 14, 2023

We head out to a summer camp that helps build confidence and an appreciation for nature. Plus, we visit a farm in Pittsburgh that teaches neighbors how to grow and cook seasonal vegetables. We then talk with another urban farmer in Pittsburgh whose new book teaches children how to grow a tomato and community. The oldest African American-owned farm in the U.S., located in Pennsylvania, received a special dedication leading up to the 250th birthday of America.

Episode for July 7, 2023

Activists gathered to protest a rush of proposed drilling leases on Ohio public lands, including a beloved state park. In Pennsylvania, a program helps forest owners sustainably manage their lands and help mitigate climate change. And a project is seeking Pa. owners of former mineland for an effort to plant native trees and restore the forest. Plus, an urban farmer inspires healthy eating in Pittsburgh.

3rd QUARTERLY ISSUES REPORT
July 1 – September 30, 2023

DATE	TIME	SHOW #	TOPIC
7/7/2023	30:00	1711	Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute plans to become the first university in the world to house a new advanced quantum supercomputer; a young woman is named valedictorian of a private high school's first co-ed graduating class; and newly passed legislation in New York aims to protect student government clubs.
7/14/2023	30:00	1712	The U.S. Supreme Court recently issued decisions affecting student borrowers and admissions policies at colleges and universities. On this episode of the Best of Our Knowledge, we'll discuss with experts the decisions that struck down President Biden's student debt cancellation program and made it unlawful for colleges and universities to consider race as a factor in admissions.
7/21/2023	30:00	1713	We'll set sail! A Vermont teacher is on a mission to study climate change at New York's Adirondack Park and a new app is informing Lake George property owners on what they can do to protect water quality.
7/28/2023	30:00	1714	The James Webb Space Telescope has been sending detailed glimpses of the universe to Earth for a year now, plus more.
8/4/2023	30:00	1715	A new museum explores the comedic history of the Borscht Belt in New York's Catskill Mountains. A 101-year-old toy inventor will share stories about his ideas over a long career. And a recently-closed liberal arts college will welcome a new kind of class this fall.
8/11/2023	30:00	1716	NPR's Student Podcast Challenge drew more than 3,000 submissions this year, but only about two dozen were selected as finalists. We'll speak with two of the students recognized in the competition for their piece. And a new report examines gaps in teacher retention.
8/18/2023	30:00	1717	The harvest season is here. We'll learn about homesteading from planning to canning. New research suggests an old cancer treatment is effective in fighting tick-borne illness. And education officials in New York announce funding for mental health.
8/25/2023	30:00	1718	The conservative takeover of a small liberal arts college in Florida has drawn eyes from across the country, as the state's Republican Governor, Ron DeSantis, runs for president.
9/1/2023	30:00	1719	Scientists have used artificial intelligence to decode brainwave patterns and reconstruct music – and rock band Pink Floyd is playing a part.
9/8/2023	30:00	1720	We'll explore how educators prepare for the return of students to the classroom. A time capsule at West Point turns out to be a bit of a letdown. A Florida high school social studies teacher tours sites of the Holocaust in Europe. And the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is offering free community college to adults over age 25.
9/15/2023	30:00	1721	Students are back on campus, and for first-year students, one of the most daunting tasks of settling into college life is moving everything into the dorm.
9/22/2023	30:00	1722	A new poll shows that while Americans mostly see the value in a college degree, many don't think colleges are doing a great job in educating students.

9/29/2023	30:00	1723	On this week's The Best of Our Knowledge: A novelty high school steel drum band formed in the 1970s brought students around the world.

7/6/2023	30:00	1772	On this week's 51%, we discuss the importance of postpartum care for new mothers. We take a look at a New York Times piece highlighting the struggles of postpartum depression, and we also stop by a rally in Troy, New York, protesting the proposed closure of Rensselaer County's only maternity ward.
7/13/2023	30:00	1773	This week's 51% is all about healthy living. We sit down with Juna Gjata and Harvard Medical School's Dr. Edward Phillips, cohosts of the podcast "Food, We Need to Talk."
7/20/2023	30:00	1774	On this week's 51%, we sit down with Dr. Heather Hirsch, founder of the Menopause and Midlife Clinic at Brigham and Women's Hospital, to learn how we can meet menopause symptoms head-on.
7/27/2023	30:00	1775	As the overall U.S. population increases in age, understanding aging is more important than ever. On this week's 51%, we speak with Dr. Rosanne Leipzig, a distinguished geriatrics specialist and author of "Honest Aging: An Insider's Guide to the Second Half of Life."
8/3/2023	30:00	1776	On this week's 51%, we speak with attorney Renee Bauer about why she wants to change the narrative around rejection and divorce – and how preparing for the worst can actually contribute to a long-lasting marriage.
8/10/2023	30:00	1777	On this week's 51%, we hear from actress Terrease Aiken about how Hollywood's stalled SAG-AFTRA strike is impacting journeyman actors, and we learn about a new independent short film starring ballerina Misty Copeland.
8/17/2023	30:00	1778	On this week's 51%, we speak with investment strategist and coach Ange Matthews, founder of the crash-course "Happy Investor Method," to learn how women can work toward financial independence while supporting the causes and companies they're passionate about.
8/24/2023	30:00	1779	On this week's 51%, we recognize National Breastfeeding Month, and stop by a webinar discussing the different types of genetic testing used to evaluate breast cancer risk and treatment options. We also speak with Leslie Lehr, author of A Boob's Life, about America's obsession with breasts — and what that often means for women and girls.
8/31/2023	30:00	1780	On this week's 51%, our Associate Producer, Jody Cowan, speaks with physician and author Dr. Gail Gazelle about how healthcare workers can use mindfulness to combat burnout – and steady their own life in the wake of a stressed healthcare system.
9/7/2023	30:00	1781	On this week's 51%, we recognize International Overdose Awareness Day, and hear from women who have battled drug addiction and walked the complicated road to recovery.
9/14/2023	30:00	1782	On this week's 51%, we bring you an interview with lawyer Jane Spinak on her book The End of Family Court. Spinak makes the radical case that the U.S. family court system is too broken to fix, and that abolishing it might bring better justice to families and children.
9/21/2023	30:00	1783	On this week's 51%, we speak with science journalist and Brave the Wild

			River author Melissa Sevigny about the two women who risked their lives to botanize the Grand Canyon in the 1930s.
9/28/2023	30:00	1784	The World Health Organization says roughly 1 in 6 people grapples with infertility. On this week's 51%, we speak with the editors of Infertilities: A Curation, to broaden our perception and understanding of what is commonly called a "women's issue."

Scholar's Circle
3rd QUARTERLY ISSUES REPORT
July 1 – September 30, 2023

Abortion limits and its consequence – September 24, 2023

Since the Supreme Court overturned Roe V. Wade, what are the legal and medical ramifications of the huge geographical swaths of women who have no access to abortion? We discuss reproductive healthcare in a post-Dobbs world. What has it meant for the medical profession and the ways in which it had to alter some of the ways healthcare is provided? How have women sought to secure access to abortion in the areas of the country where it is not legal? Mifepristone, the medicine used to terminate pregnancy, faces severe challenges and restrictions. What does this mean for access to medicinal abortion access? What can the areas where it is legal do to help their counterparts in red states? [dur: 58mins.]

History of Queer culture in Germany; LGBTQ rights struggle in US – September 17, 2023

What was the experience of gay people in East and West Germany during the Cold War? We speak with Samuel Clowes Huneke author of States of Liberation: Gay Men between Dictatorship and Democracy in Cold War Germany. [dur: 32mins.]

Since the 2020 election, anti-transgender campaigns have been growing in the United States. What are these efforts? We look at the campaigns to curtail and reverse gay and transgender rights, in particular we explore campaigns such as Florida's Parental Rights in Education act (dubbed by critics as "Don't Say Gay" bill) and attempts to ban trans athletes in all levels of competition. [dur: 25mins.]

Peaceful uses of Nuclear power and why arms control fails humanity – September 10, 2023

We explore a new book on the peaceful uses of nuclear power: The Wretched Atom by Jacob Hamblin.

Then, why arms control discourses are centered around western notions of modernity and civilization. What does it mean to decolonize the language around arms control? [dur: 30mins. , recorded Dec. 2021]

The future of Niger and Gabon after coup; Book: A biography of the judge who condemned the Rosenbergs – September 3, 2023

Africa has experienced numerous coups in the last 2 years. Most recently, Niger and Gabon have both seen civilian governments toppled by militaries in the last month. What does this mean for the future of African governance? Hosted by Doug Becker. [dur: 24mins.]

The life of former Second Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Irving Robert Kaufman is the subject of a recent book. He condemned Julius and Ethel Rosenberg to death. His life and times offer insight into how judges can sometimes act in unexpected ways in the pursuit of justice. Guest hosted by Tim Fadgen of the University of Auckland, NZ. [dur: 24mins.]

Prosecution of Presidents Around the World – August 28, 2023

The criminal indictments of former President Trump have created a political crisis in their unprecedented nature. Historically, U.S. presidents have not faced criminal charges even in cases where there is a high likelihood of guilt, in large part due to respect for the office. Gerald Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon embodies this norm.

What can the U.S. learn from other countries that have prosecuted former presidents? And what can we learn from American history about the prosecutions of political figures? Is the prosecution of former heads of state simply the weaponization of justice mechanisms? And how common is this political charge? [dur: 58mins.]

Economic War: Ukraine and the Global Conflict between Russia and the West (Book) – August 20, 2023

The economic conflict between Russia and the West started before the 2022 Russian invasion of Ukraine. How has the war in Ukraine affected it? How have the intense sanctions against Russia altered this economic war? Will the West remain unified in confronting Russia in this economic war? In this episode, we will look at China, a potential Russian partner that could play a particularly significant role. Our discussion centers around a new book by Maximilian Hess, Economic War: Ukraine and the Global Conflict between Russia and the West.

Factory Farming of Animals, an Unsustainable Method of Food Production – August 13, 2023

Farming around the world, and in particular in the US, has increasingly become centralized as large factory farming. What are the environmental, social, and philosophical implications of this mode of agricultural production? [dur: 58mins.]

Factory farming carry significant challenges on environmental protection, on pricing and the centralization of wealth, and on social issues such as animal welfare and animal rights. We discuss agricultural policies and the environmental impacts including carbon emission, climate change and pollution.

Organizing contemporary Labor unions in the US – August 6, 2023

Do high profile cases like the Teamsters, UPS workers, unionization at Starbucks and Amazon signal a new labor awakening in American politics?

Labor organizers are using a large range of issues, including women's rights, LGBTQ representation and pride, and environmental activism to attract new members. Is this changing the conceptual divide between "culture war" issues and economic issues? [dur: 58mins.]

Author interview, On Disinformation, How to Talk to a Science Denier and Science Communication in a Crisis – July 30, 2023

Science is under attack. Who and what are behind the attacks? While we face catastrophic climate change and other pending disasters, how can we restore the public's understandings about scientific realities? We explore disinformation and ways to communicate with non-scientists to loosen the grip the disinformants have on so many people. [dur: 58mins.]

Insights into Private Military Corporations, their function and deployment by State and international corporations – July 23, 2023

Private Military Corporations have become a growing element of the warfighting landscape. States have historically had a monopoly on the use of military force. But private corporations challenge this monopoly. How much do they increase the lethality and likelihood of war? How much can private corporations be regulated? And what are the challenges to regulation? We explore the political, military, legal, and socioeconomic implications of private military corporations. [dur: 58mins.]

History of California as a Slave State – July 16, 2023

We interview the author of a new book CALIFORNIA, A SLAVE STATE (Yale University Press; June 27, 2023). Professor Jean Pfaelzer shows that, since the very first colonizers crossed the border, the Golden State was and still is powered by slavery – a piece of American history that many still try to bury.

Human rights of disabled persons in a society that favors able-bodied persons – July 9, 2023

The rights of persons with disabilities is a growing and important area of human rights. But what does it mean to ensure equal treatment under the law? What exactly is a disability, and who makes the judgment? And what do we mean by ableism? [dur: 58mins.]

Wetlands Protection, the Clean Water Act and the US Supreme Court – July 2,

In the wake of the US Supreme Court decision that weakened the EPA's capacity to protect wetlands, we explore the role of wetlands in sustainability, biodiversity, and the economy. What might the decision mean for our environment, and economy? We examine Sackett vs. EPA, in a broader context what this means for the implementation of the Clean Water Act, what it means specifically for wetlands. What is the implication of framing the EPA as being against economic development? What exactly does "waters of the United States" mean as discussed in this decision? [dur: 58mins.]
