Winning New York City newspaper columnist Jimmy Breslin has died. A family friend says Breslin, who was 88, died at his Manhattan home this morning after falling ill with pneumonia. Breslin detailed life in the Big Apple for decades, working at several newspapers, including the New York Daily News. And always with a focus on ordinary people. A style which earned him the Pulitzer Prize for commentary in 1986. Breslin also struck a chord with "Son of Sam" killer David Berkowitz, who contacted the columnist, promising more murders. Breslin co-wrote a book about the case, among other novels, eventually ending his column to concentrate on writing books.

COMMUNITY FOCUS HOSTED BY AMY SIMPSON

Sunday, January 1st: Journey Fitness/New Year's Resolutions

On this episode of Community Focus, Journey Fitness CEO Travis Barnes and COO Jeremy Purifoy talk about New Year's resolutions and setting fitness goals that will stick in the new year. Barnes and Purifoy shared tips on where to start with fitness for newbies, how to make habits that actually stick, and some at-home exercises. Matthew Slater and Laura Knapp later joined the segment to share their transformation stories and talk about turning points, what helped them stay focused, and some challenges that they've faced so far.

Sunday, January 8th: Re-run Journey Fitness

Sunday, January 15th: Environmental Groups & Getting Involved

On this episode of Community Focus, Lisa Marshall from Mothers Out Front, Joseph Campbell from Gas Free Seneca, and Bette Ek from People for a Healthy Environment joined in a conversation about the environment of the Twin Tiers. This panel-style discussion gave background on each of the local groups and what their missions are in regards to a healthy environment. Each of the groups expressed challenges that they face and how local tourism is directly impacted by environmental concerns throughout the Twin Tiers. There was also a discussion about how other community members can get involved with these environmental groups to have a say in the future of their neighborhoods.

Sunday, January 22nd: Community Arts of Elmira

On this episode of Community Focus, Joe Caparulo and Lynne Rusinko shared a piece of writing called, "Elmira's Creation Economy." Caparulo authored the publication as a master-plan of sorts for the future of the city and town. He believes Elmira is a city to "stay and succeed" but that Elmirans are disenchanted by the current state of affairs. Rusinko joined the discussion to share her thoughts on how arts and Community Arts of Elmira will be a part of the future of the City. She explained that a creative corridor needs to be developed to connect the art and culture throughout the City.

Sunday, January 29th: Southeast Steuben County Library

On this episode of Community Focus, Library Director Pauline Emery explained the mission of the library and how libraries provide so much more than just checking out books. She shared program offerings, library patronage statistics, ways the library saves families money, and how to engage people of all ages. Emery discussed some of the goals for the library throughout 2017 and beyond and how people can get involved with the facility if they've never used it before.

Sunday, February 5th: Elmira Central School District

On this episode of Community Focus, two business teachers at Elmira High School, Cheryl Sweeney and Shelley Bailey, came on the show to share details on a new program coming to the school. The teachers explained what the Academy of Finance program is and how students can get involved. It's a program as part of the National Academy Foundation. Sweeney and Bailey say students who enroll in the program will develop real-life skills to be used in the workforce. Students go through a three phase process: career awareness, career exploration, and career preparation.

Sunday, February 12th: Re-run Elmira Central School District

Sunday, February 19th: Corning Rotary Club

On this episode of Community Focus, Deacon Ray Defendorf and President of Corning Rotary, Bill Boland, came on the show to promote the Corning Rotary Club and its upcoming International Dinner fundraiser. Defendorf and Boland shared the club's mission, the four avenues of service, and how the Rotary partners with other groups in the region to help the community. They also shared details of the International Dinner and how the money raised at the event will be used. Cornell Banghra will be the guest entertainment at this year's event on March 11th at the Corning Radisson hotel.

Sunday, February 26th: Girl Scouts

On this episode of Community Focus, the Girl Scouts of NYPENN Pathways were guests on the show to promote the Girl Scout Cookie Program. Senior Director of Sales, Andrea Mastronardi, and Girl Scout, Hannah DiMarco, joined in on the conversation. They explained how the Cookie Program is the largest girl-led business in the world and the extent of the skills girls learn as they participate in sales. This marks the 100th year for the program and to commemorate the occasion, a new cookie is being sold this year. DiMarco shared her experience as a Girl Scout and what she's learned through the years. There is also a Girl Scout Leadership Experience and ways for girls of all ages to benefit from the programs and experiences throughout the year.

Sunday, March 5th: ARC of Schuyler/Arc Grand Prix Run

On this episode of Community Focus, Holly Baker from the Arc of Schuyler and Jon Beckman, Vice President of Watkins Glen International, were guests on the show to promote the Arc Grand Prix Run. This event is a walk/run on the track at WGI to raise funds for the Arc of Schuyler and continues to grow in size and numbers each year. Baker explained how much work goes into setting up the race, how people can volunteer, and how the funds are used throughout the community. Beckman discussed why WGI likes to partner with the Arc of Schuyler for the event and how participants in the Grand Prix Run can also get some fun perks at WGI for opening weekend.

Sunday, March 12th: Curiosities of Elmira Book Preview

On this episode of Community Focus, Kelli Huggins, author of "Curiosities of Elmira" previewed her book before it hit the shelves. Huggins explained how this book shows a different side of Elmira's history -- the city also known as the "Queen City." One highlight from the book is a section detailing what used to be a bear pit in Eldridge park, which is a little-known fact about the history of the town. Huggins says she is a champion of historical oddballs and like to honor people in history forgotten overtime. The book is now available and some proceeds benefit the Chemung County Historical Society in Downtown Elmira.

Sunday, March 19th: Re-run Girl Scouts

Sunday, March 26th: Corning YMCA

On this episode of Community Focus, Alicia Tyler, Health & Wellness Director of the Corning YMCA; Marcy Straight, Personal Trainer; Shelby Wilson, Day Camp & Sports Director; and Eiron Smith, Board of Managers Chair all came on the show to promote the gym as a part of the local community -- offering more than just a place to exercise.
