

Quarterly Report Cover Letter WNXF October to December 2023

WNXP

WNXP is a music discovery station serving Nashville and Middle Tennessee striving to reflect the depth and diversity of the region and its music community through on-air programming and arts journalism presented across multiple platforms. Daily playlists feature artists from emerging to established with a special emphasis across all genres on Nashville.

Our local hosts bring context to the music and connect to the community through live updates on air and in-person events. With hosts that include award-winning journalists, these updates go deeper than biographical information and serve to enrich the listener's experience.

Fourth Quarter of 2023

WNXP took full advantage of the busiest time of year for live music in Nashville to spotlight a diverse lineup of events, concerts and releases that reflect the core mission of music discovery.

The station partnered with the National Museum of African American music for an event that really speaks to how WNXF is showing up in the community and utilizing content in different ways. Award winning artist Allison Russell performed a special set at the museum that included an in-depth interview and was captured to share across multiple platforms from NPR Music to social media to the radio. It also tied into Allison's run as Nashville Artist of the Month in September. WNXF was also delighted to bring UK artists This is the Kit in for a special event at Grimey's Records that was also captured in audio and video and shared across all channels. The live session from Nashville-based African American folk-soul artist and Record of the Week spotlight Tre Burt recorded at Nashville's The Blue Room venue was also shared in November's sessions from Nashville's Logan Ledger and Baerd and the emerging neo-soul singer Jalen Ngonda among many others.

The Nashville Artist of the Month program gave the station the opportunity to tell the stories of two artists – retro crooner Stephen Sanchez and non-binary genre, bending songwriter Corook who went viral in very different ways and how that experience impacted their lives and processes. What Where Whensday continued to bring in community voices from members behind a variety of events from classic theater to experimental food to hip hop benefit shows and punk rock flea markets.

Outside of ongoing programs like Record of the Week, WNXF responded to local news and musical developments like the local hip hop community supporting Clarksville after severe tornado damage.

QUARTERLY REPORT WNXP OCTOBER - DECEMBER 2023

WNXP is a music discovery station serving Nashville and Middle Tennessee striving to reflect the depth and diversity of the region and its music community through on-air programming and arts journalism presented across multiple platforms. The focus of the daily playlists ranges from emerging to established artists with a special emphasis on Nashville.
