List of Issues Q1 2024

The following issues were addressed on WSJV 28.1 during the first quarter of 2024. Specific titles, times, dates, and duration of public service announcements are listed below.

1. Safety: Messages from the American College of Emergency Physicians highlighted the importance of eliminating distractions and wearing a helmet to prevent serious scooter injuries. While a series of Ad Council PSAs pointed out the danger of texting and driving. The CDC warned about the health risks of misusing antibiotics and how it can lead to antibiotic-resistant infections. And the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases warned of the dangers of the flu, especially if you have preexisting conditions. The Hearing Health Foundation and the Hearing Industries Association cautioned that listening too long and too loud can lead to permanent hearing loss—and it's especially harmful for children. While the US Department of Health and Human Services and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration provided advice on talking to kids about alcohol and other drugs. PSAs from the National Pest Management Association reminded viewers of the safety and health risks posed by common household pests. The American Academy provided a phone-ready quiz to help parents decide if they're ready for a cell phone. And the Ad Council encouraged people to channel the "Smokey Within" to prevent forest fires. The National Crime Prevention Council encouraged individuals to start a conversation with local police to make communities safer and to watch out for counterfeit products, especially where your safety is concerned.
2. Health: To address the mental health crisis among adolescents 10-14, a series of messages aired to encourage caregivers to have meaningful conversations with middle schoolers about their mental wellbeing. While PSAs encouraged people to consider the benefits of emotional support animals and show people how. The YMCA reminded viewers of the services they offer as well as information on healthy bedtimes & keeping up with children's checkups. The CDC also warned of the importance of keeping up with vaccines for children. And the National Foundation for Infectious Diseases reminded viewers that staying up to date on vaccines is part of a healthy routine for adults and children. The American Academy of Pediatrics shares their plan to raise a healthy community—starting with our children. And PSAs from the American Academy of Ophthalmology speak to the importance of regular eyecare. Finally, the Foundation for Fighting Blindness spoke to the importance of finding treatments and cures for blinding diseases.
3. Community & Family: The Foundation for a Better life reminded us of the importance of being there for others and to show gratitude to others through kind gestures. To help feed, educate, and support children around the world, Child Fund International provided viewers with the means to get involved. And Heifer international showed how to help end hunger and poverty in a meaningful way. In our communities here at home, our first responders put their lives on the line to help where they're needed most; sometimes suffering injuries or paying the ultimate price for their service. The First Responders Children's Foundation is there for families who suffer a loss. Their messaging showed viewers how to thank first responders by supporting the foundation. Trisha Yearwood and Garth Brooks encouraged people to support Habitat for Humanity. And messages from Make a Wish empowered viewers to grant wishes for sick children. Across the U.S. Pets provide companionship and enrich our lives. We can save them from neglect or euthanasia by adopting shelter animals. Messages from the Shelter Pet Project, the Best Friends Animal Society, and the Humane Society showed viewers how. They also encouraged people to adopt kittens to help alleviate shelter overcrowding. And Southeastern Guide Dogs showed how volunteering to raise guide dogs can be fulfilling for the volunteers and provide a genuine service to people in need.

A little praise goes a long way in helping children succeed. Boys Town's public service announcements provided a resource for young people to tackle depression through their "Your Life Your Voice" campaign. Using sounds and fast editing, the Boys & Girls Club breaks through the attention barrier in an attempt to show how they do whatever it takes to help our youth to build a stronger community. And PSAs from HBCU Outside encourages the black community to represent their culture while exploring the outdoors.

4. Environment: The trees in our forests are vital for our survival—purifying our air and water and protecting against harmful erosion. But our forests are threatened by fires, insects, and disease. Through a series of public service announcements, the Arbor Day Foundation demonstrates how trees can address many of our social issues and invites viewers to be a part of the solution by supporting efforts to replant our damaged forest land. And it's not just forests that are important to our lives, our country's wetlands and waterfowl play an important role as well. Ducks Unlimited conserves, restores and manages our wetlands. Through PSAs, Ducks Unlimited teaches about the importance of our wetland habitats. Plus, a series of PSAs encouraged viewers to keep America beautiful by recycling. And messages from the National Wildlife Foundation, the World Wildlife Fund, and the San Diego Zoo Wildlife Alliance spoke of the importance of understanding and protecting our wildlife. While the International Fund for Animal Welfare showed how they're standing by to respond to disasters affecting the wildlife population.
5. Education: For some kids, staying in school can be a challenge. Communities in Schools provides support to help kids stay in school. Their PSA encourages the public to get involved and help keep kids in the classroom. PSAs from Teach.Org inspire individuals to pursue a career in teaching and offer resources to help them learn more. And the PGA showed how their First Tee program can help kids develop positive skills and character.
