Faith-based family films can sometimes be hard to find. A Christian movie company based in West Virginia is trying to change that, not just with more Christian content but with the unique way their movies are being made. JC films in Bridgeport West Virginia is going on 13 years and already has more than 80 feature films to its name. President Jason Campbell explains the mission. We have two purposes basically one is to make films that change the culture for Christ and number two is how do we get more people involve people of Faith involved in Christian film making.

Magdalena lives with her husband and two children in a rural community in Mexico. Steady work is hard to find there. As a result, Magdalena has not been able to buy nutritious food to feed her family. Operation blessing invited Magdalena to take part in a chicken project. First we provided training on how to raise and sell chickens and eggs. Then we gave her everything she needed, including 65 hens to start a business. I used to wake up stressed, trying to figure out what we would eat that day, or how to make ends meet now I get up happy.

With the dramatic rise in auto emission standards the White House wants more Americans to buy electric cars to improve air quality and fight climate change but with unsold EVs piling up on car lots some auto dealers say the market isn't quite ready. The Environmental Protection Agency is requiring automakers to reduce emissions by over 7 billion metric tons to push the car industry to produce more electric vehicles. With the goal of two out of three new car purchases being EVs in just 8 years.

CBN's operation blessing is helping people around the world recover from natural disasters nearly a year after the devastating earthquake in Turkey's Sai province. Victims are still in great need. Operation blessing has been on the ground delivering essential supplies to families. One mother with two children, both of whom under 5 years old, was forced to evacuate from her crumbling home and move her kids into a tent with no supplies. She eventually found some food but it often spoiled because of a lack of refrigeration. Then operation blessing came to their aid providing boxes of food for her family and several others along with a refrigerator to keep it fresh and safe for eating.

Pastor Lori Porter, Pastor Tim Schulte, Pastor Timothy A. Roeser, Pastor Ricky Holmes, Pastor Nancy Galambos. Is it wrong for pastors to call themselves a doctor if they haven't actually earned their doctorate degree? Without a doubt. It is wrong to claim a title for something for which you have not earned. There are people who have been given honorary doctorate degrees but you have to be careful about laying claims to that title. We must not think of ourselves higher than we are. Give ourselves a basic title. The title doesn't make the person, the person makes the title.

I personally think it is best to go to Seminary. Because you're learning more than just about God. You're learning about the business end, you're learning about different personalities. It's important that you educate yourself in anything you plan to lead people in.

The Republican majority in Congress is about to get even smaller. Bill Johnson of Ohio is planning to leave earlier than expected. He'll be taking over the presidency of Youngstown State University. His departure will take yet another vote away from the GOP after former house Speaker Kevin McCarthy resigned. That means Republicans will only be able to lose two votes on any party line measure as Congress still has yet to deal with major spending bills in the weeks ahead.

Congressional leaders have announced an agreement on overall spending levels for the government's current fiscal year. A move that could help avoid a partial government shutdown later this month. The tentative deal does include some spending cuts although not nearly enough for many conservatives. The one-year agreement comes as America faces a long-term problem as the national debt just passed $34 trillion last week. That number is still growing at an alarming rate. The Congressional budget office projects the debt will hit $50 trillion by 2033 and just interest alone on the debt is surpassing spending on the US defense budget.

2024 Presidential race Republican candidate Nikki Haley says she's still running after losing to Donald Trump Saturday by 20 points in her home state of South Carolina. Rejecting calls to exit the race Haley held a rally Sunday evening in Michigan, which holds its primary on Tuesday. Haley says it's not the end of her campaign story. It was her fourth major state loss in a row and polls show she trails in Michigan by a wide margin. Trump has now swept all of the GOP's early season primaries. Haley says she'll keep going until at least the March 5th Super Tuesday primaries next week, when 15 states vote. Meanwhile Republican National Committee chairwoman Ron McDaniell announced he's stepping down after Super Tuesday. McDaniell has served in the position for seven years. Trump has already endorsed a new slate of leaders at the RNC.

cremation is a form of burying a loved one. It's no different than putting them in a casket. It's not wrong. Some people say you're going to hell if you get cremated but that's not true. You got to hell if you don't accept Jesus as your personal savior.

Dr. David Gray, Pastor Mark Galambos, Pastor Joseph Colini, Pastor Paxton Price, Pastor David Hughes II. Is it wrong to have a loved one removed from life support? This is a difficult question to give a blanket answer. Whatever people decide to do, that's between them and their doctor and their lawyer. Maybe the person is afraid to live a life of suffering or live a life of artificial means, or be remembered in that way. If that's their wish, we have to respect that. If the family wishes to wait on God and hope for a miracle, I'd respect that too. I think there's a balance, but it's up to the individual. But I don't see anything in the scripture that says yay or nay.

Apostle Jimmie K. Rodgers, Pastor Artie Kassimis, Pastor Nancy Galambos, Pastor Deante Lavender, Dr. Apostle Webster. Why am I so afraid of death even though I am saved? The fear of death is the fear of death. And the fear of death is the fear of death on all levels. Most people fear the unknown. I used to fear death but I don't fear it anymore. It has no strain over me. You fear it because you still have some reservations, or there are many reasons. But you don't have to.
