Rhinelanders Chamber Reports	INTERVIEW	ongoing	each Thursday morning at 8:45	4 min.	Weekly talks with representatives of the rhinelanders Chamber have resumed as of late April. They highlight all the free attractions and activities available to visitors and residents of the area alike.
4th of July Activities	News	7/5/2016	6,7,8AM Noon & 5PM	2 min	BOULDER JUNCTION - Keeping with a classic American tradition, Boulder Junction held its annual Fourth of July parade Sunday. The local VFW post kicked off the parade with a 21-gun salute. Many community organizations, from the Boulder Junction Fire department to local businesses, participated.
Resort offers access for disabled	News	7/6/2016	6,7,8AM Noon & 5PM	1 minute	LAND O'LAKES - Families come from all over to the Northwoods to enjoy the nice weather, scenery, and water. But some families may be hesitant to go on vacation because of a family member that is disabled. Not so for a family from Illinois, who found a spot in the Northwoods with the resources that make the Northwoods enjoyable for all. The Johannes family might only visit the Sunrise Lodge in Land O' Lakes, but after 20 years the family from Rockton, Illinois feels a strong connection here. "This is our second home," said Susan Johannes. It's home with one of its favorite family members, Pat. He lives with Cerebral Palsy. "He'd live here if he could," said Johannes.
4th of July Activities	News	7/7/2016	6,7,8AM Noon & 5PM	1 minute	RHINELANDER - Despite the downtown Streetscape Project, Rhinelanders still celebrated its Fourth of July. The streets were lined with people for the city's parade.

They're not native to the state, but they often travel from the Upper Peninsula or other states to Wisconsin during the year.
Rhinelanders Downtown Reconstruction	News	7/23/2016	6,7,8AM Noon & 5PM	1 minute	Rhinelanders ponders new intersection design as downtown reconstruction project progresses RHINELANDER - People who live, work, and shop in downtown Rhinelander will see their newly constructed streets every day. That's why the city is going back to those people, asking for their input on a design change. Crews originally planned to put in an elaborate concrete pavement throughout the main downtown intersection at Brown and Davenport Streets. But about a month ago, workers found there are too many telecommunication vaults to allow for all that concrete. Late last week, the city put out a survey asking for opinions on four asphalt re-designs. "More work costs more money and what we had put into our contracts originally was a lot more work and we found that we could not do that," public works director Tim Kingman said. "So, now that we're looking at our alternatives with asphalt there's less money involved."
Local Boy Scouts clean up after Country Fest	News	7/24/2016	6,7,8AM Noon & 5PM	1 minute	Northcentral Wisconsin Boy Scout troop cleans up, makes money after Country Fest RHINELANDER - Thousands of trailers and campers rolled out of the Country Fest grounds in Rhinelander on Monday. The people inside took with them the memories of the 2016 Hodag Country Festival. But other people in Rhinelander were more focused on what they left behind.
NHTSA Say backup Cameras will save lives	News	7/30/2016	6, 7, 8A and 5p	1 min	National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says car backup cameras could save up to 69 lives a year - RHINELANDER - Last week, tragedy hit an Oneida County family when a mother accidentally hit and killed her son while backing up her car. An Oneida County Sheriff's captain told us she had never seen anything like it in her 20 years on the job. But accidents like these happen every week across the U.S. It's a problem the federal Department of Transportation took head on two years ago, requiring all new cars to have rear visibility technology, or backup cameras, by 2018.
