Health

-Children and The Flu

A healthy diet and adequate fluids will help children in preventing them from getting sick, says Dr. Naidoo of Great Plains Health, we can minimize the chance but we can not totally prevent them contracting the cold or flu. The age of the child and other factors will play in how well they will overcome being sick. There are thousands of types of cold and flu viruses, vitamin D or vitamin C can help but too much can be harmful also. Even getting sick will build up your immune system and help overcome one's next battle with the cold or flu.

Government

-Senator Ben Sasse on Immigration

Senator Ben Sasse said in a phone interview recently about immigration reform that legislature needs to write laws and we need to have these debates in the legislature. He also said there is a strong desire among many in the ag community to have guest worker programs. There are merits to some of those arguments but thinks Washington needs to take care of its first responsibilities to have greater clarity, he says he hears from a lot in the ag community that are interested in guest worker programs, but says he doesn't think that conversation is likely to happen in this congress.
