CONSUMER SAFETY	Noticiero Univision	12/6/2014	10:30-11:00 PM	0:20	Honda Motor Co. said its decision this week to expand a nationwide recall of driver-side air bags will add another 3.2 million vehicles to the callback. In total, 10 automakers have now recalled nearly 11 million vehicles since 2013 for air bags that may rupture. Inflators in the Takata bags can explode and shoot metal shrapnel at drivers and passengers. At least four people in Hondas have been killed and 30 injured in the U.S., mostly in high-humidity areas such as Florida. Honda said this week it would work with two other major suppliers - Autoliv and Daicel - to ramp up production to meet growing demand for replacement parts.
CONSUMER SAFETY	Despierta America	12/2/2014	6:00- 10:00 AM	0:25	The federal government announced today it will investigate whether child product maker Graco delayed what the government called the largest child seat recall in U.S. history after learning of a safety defect in the seats' harness buckles. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) said in a press release that manufacturers have a maximum of five days to notify their agency once they "reasonably know that an item of motor vehicle equipment, such as a car seat, contains a safety related defect" and will be investigating whether Graco "violated the law." Documents published online by NHTSA show that the agency investigated the car seat problem back in October 2012 based on customer complaints. In January of this year, NHTSA wrote a Graco executive a letter in which the agency requested Graco conduct a recall. The letter said Graco had received more than 6,000 complaints of buckles that became stuck - many times parents cut the straps to free their child. NHTSA says Graco initially said that the root cause of the problem was "food, dried liquid drinks, vomit, formula, etc.," seeping into the buckle and mucking up the works.
CONSUMER SAFETY	Despierta America	12/3/2014	6:00- 10:00 AM	0:25	Japan's Takata Corp. refused to comply with a U.S. government demand for an expanded recall of its air bags that can explode and shoot out shrapnel, and instead passed along the crucial decision to automakers. The response, which the U.S. immediately criticized as inadequate, sets the stage for a showdown between the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the company, when they appear before U.S. Congress on Wednesday. So far, 14 million vehicles worldwide have been recalled due to the air bag problem, including 8 million in the U.S. Takata has yet to pinpoint a cause, even though the recalls started a decade ago. The U.S. government wants Takata and automakers to add millions of cars across the U.S. to recalls now limited to areas with high humidity. The automakers indicated Tuesday that they want to do their own testing, in addition to tests underway at Takata. The deadline had been set for midnight Tuesday for Takata to send a response to NHTSA, which was demanding a national recall of driver-side air bags or face civil fines and legal action.

As Obama spoke, Cuban President Raul Castro addressed his own nation from Havana. Obama and Castro spoke by phone for more than 45 minutes Tuesday, the first substantive presidential-level discussion between the U.S. and Cuba since 1961. Obama's announcement marked an abrupt use of executive power. However, he cannot unilaterally end the longstanding U.S. economic embargo on Cuba, which was passed by Congress and would require action from lawmakers to overturn. Wednesday's announcements followed more than a year of secret talks between the U.S. and Cuba. The re-establishment of diplomatic ties was accompanied by Cuba's release of American Alan Gross and the swap of a U.S. spy held in Cuba for three Cubans jailed in Florida.

The increases will lift the hourly wages of 2.4 million workers by up to $1 to an average of $8 and a high of $9.15, according to the Economic Policy Institute. The federal hourly minimum is $7.25. Another 1.9 million workers are expected to benefit from a higher pay scale. Eight states - Connecticut, Hawaii, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island, Vermont and West Virginia - passed legislation the last two years. All of the increases will take effect Jan. 1, except in New York, where it will kick in a day earlier. By early next year, 29 states with 60% of the U.S. work force will have minimum wages higher than the federal government's, according to EPI and the National Employment Law Project.

DESCRIPTION OF ISSUES	PROGRAM SEGMENT	DATE	TIME	DURATION	NARRATION OF TYPE/DESCRIPTION OF PROGRAM SEGMENT
EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticias Univision	11/17/2014	10:30-11:00 PM	2:17	Senate Democratic leaders are telling President Barack Obama they strongly support his plans to take executive action to overhaul the nation's immigration system. A letter signed by six top lawmakers, including Majority Leader Harry Reid of Nevada, says deportation relief for people with strong ties to the U.S. would help the economy and American workers. It comes with Obama poised to act as soon as this week to extend protections from deportation for as many as 5 million immigrants in the country illegally. Congressional Republicans are in an uproar over the plans and are debating how to thwart the president. The letter released Monday puts Senate Democratic leaders strongly on record in favor of the president acting. Obama delayed taking action earlier this year because of Senate Democrats' political concerns.
EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticiero Univision	11/24/2014	10:30-11:00 PM	2:21	Unauthorized immigrants from Mexico account for two-thirds of those who will be eligible for deportation relief under President Obama's executive action, even as they account for about half of the nation's unauthorized population, according to a new Pew Research Center analysis. The new action, which mainly applies to unauthorized immigrant parents of U.S. citizen or legal permanent resident children, would benefit those born in Mexico more than any other country of origin group. According to the Pew Research analysis, 44% of unauthorized immigrants from Mexico could apply for deportation protection under the new programs, compared with 24% of those from other parts of the world. President Obama's new programs could affect about 4 million total unauthorized immigrants who will be eligible for deportation protection and a three-year work permit. The largest group - at least 3.5 million, according to Pew Research estimates of 2012 data - consists of unauthorized immigrant parents who have lived in the U.S. for at least five years and have children who either were born in the U.S. or are legal permanent residents. Of these, about 700,000 have adult children and the remaining 2.8 million have children younger than 18.

DESCRIPTION OF ISSUES	PROGRAM SEGMENT	DATE	TIME	DURATION	NARRATION OF TYPE/DESCRIPTION OF PROGRAM SEGMENT
EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticiero Univision	11/26/2014	10:30-11:00 PM	2:10	Many immigrants in the United States illegally who apply for work permits Under President Obama's new executive actions would be eligible for Social Security and Medicare benefits upon reaching retirement age, according to the White House. Under Obama's actions, immigrants who are spared deportation would be eligible to obtain work permits and a Social Security number. As a result, they would pay into the Social Security system through payroll taxes. No such "lawfully present" immigrant, however, would be immediately entitled to the benefits because like all Social Security and Medicare recipients they would have to work 10 years to become eligible for retirement payments and health care. To be eligible, either Congress or future administrations would have to extend Obama's actions so that those immigrants would still be considered lawfully present in the country. None of the immigrants who would be spared deportation under Obama's executive actions would be able to receive federal assistance such as welfare or food stamps. They also will not be eligible to purchase health insurance in federal exchanges set up by the new health care law and they would not be able to apply for tax credits that would lower the cost of their health insurance.
EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticiero Univision	11/13/2014	5:30-6:00 PM	2:20	The President has promised -- and is expected -- to take various executive actions under current law to address immigration and deportation before the end of the year. Democratic Members of the House of Representatives, back to Washington for the first time since Election Day, want to hit the ground running and are calling on the President to act boldly, broadly and soon. The White House could make the move as early as next week. President Barack Obama is overhaul American immigration policy, according to several reports Thursday, in a long-anticipated move that would ignore his Republican critics and could allow up to 5 million undocumented immigrants to stay in the country. Citing unnamed administration officials, the New York Times reports that Obama intends as early as next week to announce plans to substantially refocus immigration enforcement involving some 12,000 agents and reduce the risk of deportation for millions of immigrants.

EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticiero Univision	12/1/2014	5:30-6:00 PM	1:53	There is confusion regarding who is and who is not eligible for immigration TPS. One of the questions has to do with people who are eligible for TPS status and also have children who are citizens or legal residents in the United States. In such a case, they must re-apply for TPS and not seek protection under the executive order, as they already have a temporary status. Temporary protected status or "tps" is a temporary immigration status in the United States, granted to eligible nationals of designated countries. The following countries are currently under TPS: Honduras, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Haiti (due to the 2011 earthquake), Somalia, Syria, Sudan and South Sudan. TPS is an immigration status granted to immigrants in the United States who are temporarily unable to safely return to their home country because of ongoing armed conflict, an environmental disaster, or other extraordinary and temporary conditions.
EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticiero Univision	12/16/2014	5:30-6:00 pm	1:56	As part of Obama's executive action this past November, undocumented immigrants must show that they have lived in the country for the past five years. Many of these immigrants, however, have done everything possible to remain "under the radar" during those years and as such, have little to no documentation to attest to their residency. Pablo Sanchez's piece brings to light the fact that many of these people have not received their salaries through checks, have not filed for taxes, and do not have mortgages or rental contracts to attest to their living status. How do these "invisible" people show they have been here all these years?
EXECUTIVE ACTION	Noticiero Univision	12/28/2014	5:30-6:00 PM	2:01	If you are one of thousands of immigrants who falls under President Obama's immigration executive order, you need to have all your documents in order. You are advised to keep sales receipts, rent checks and other documents such as letters from stores where you applied for credit, no matter if you were approved or not. Stores such as CURACAO provide letters with information such as birth dates, address and age of the applicant. Experts say that applicants should not be discouraged by rumors that when the US votes for a new president, things will change adversely.

Outrage over the decision fueled what had been mostly peaceful protests across the United States on Monday, including in New York City where marchers chanting "Black lives matter" snarled traffic on Broadway through Times Square. Police who formed a wall of clear riot shields outside the precinct were pelted with bottles and cans as the crowd surged up and down the street immediately after authorities said the grand jury had voted not to indict Officer Darren Wilson.

The material was obtained through the state's Sunshine Law, the equivalent of a FOIA request for state government departments. Video surveillance and radio calls obtained by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reveal new details in the shooting death of Michael Brown. The police dispatch radio calls show that the interaction that ended in Brown's death happened over about 90 seconds...
FERGUSON CASE	Noticiero Univision	11/16/2014	5:30-6:00 PM	1:52	Ferguson, Missouri and the nation await a grand jury decision on the death of African American teen Michael Brown and Officer Darren Wilson. on August 9, protests erupted in the streets, as residents demanded that Wilson face criminal charges. Over the past three months, that process has been underway as a grand jury has been hearing evidence on the case and deciding whether to indict Wilson. It is expected to reach a decision any day now. No one knows whether Wilson will be indicted. But if the grand jury decides that there is not enough evidence to indict, there will be new protests, potentially violent ones. Missouri officials are trying to prevent that from happening. On Tuesday, Governor Jay Nixon explained that no violence would be allowed and that, if necessary, he would call in the National Guard to keep the peace. Ferguson residents are preparing for the worst and cops are readying themselves as well, purchasing thousands of dollars' worth of riot gear, pepper spray and rubber bullets.

Holder, speaking at Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, said the nation needs to confront the broken relationship between many law enforcement agencies and the communities that they are supposed to serve. Holder, who plans to resign as the nation's top law enforcement official if the Senate confirms U.S. Attorney Loretta Lynch as his replacement, visited Ferguson back in August. His Justice Department has launched an investigation into the practices of the Ferguson Police Department, in addition to a separate ongoing federal investigation into the shooting of Brown by former Ferguson Police Officer Darren Wilson. Five Latinos are heading to the Capitol for the first time, three Democrats (Arizona's Rubén Gallego, California's Norma Torres and Pete Aguilar) and two Republicans (Florida's Carlos Curbelo and West Virginia's Alex Mooney). Mooney, a Cuban-American, became the first Latino representative in West Virginia, the state with the smallest percentage of Hispanics in the nation. Among the Latino candidates for Congress who failed to win election were Florida's Joe Garcia and Texas' Pete Gallego, both of whom were running for reelection after just one term.

HEALTH	Noticiero Univision	11/11/2014	10:30-11:00 PM	0:25	A year after open enrollment under the Affordable Care Act began, 1 in 4 Latinos in the United States do not have health insurance, according to new Census Bureau data, more than any other ethnic population. And most states have few backups in place to help those in the coverage gap. Latino immigrants are the hardest-hit: Foreign-born Hispanics are more than twice as likely to be uninsured as are U.S.-born Hispanics, according to Census data compiled by the Pew Research Center. A variety of factors account for this, including a lack of culturally specific outreach programs, language barriers, financial concerns, frustration with the law's complexities and fears that applying could reveal a relative's illegal status. Illustrating some of these challenges was the woman in Joachin's clinic who grew up in a Honduran refugee camp and couldn't read or write in any language. The yearly screening mammogram for millions of women, a vital ritual. But for many it's far from a comfortable experience. Now, european engineers have developed a new technique that may help make this procedure much more painless. Mammograms involve compressing the breast and taking an x-ray image. These engineers sought to determine exactly how much pressure is actually necessary to get a sharp image. As it turns out, they were able to get just as good an x-ray using one third less pressure than before. One in four women who underwent this modified procedure reported less severe pain. And best of all, the x-ray images were as accurate as in traditional mammograms. And the switch might be simple since the new technology is easily integrated into existing machines. It may be an advance that gives women one less reason to skip those needed screenings.
IMMIGRATION	Despierta America	10/2/2014	6:00-10:00 AM	4:00	President Obama has approved a plan to allow several thousand young children from Central American countries to apply for refugee status in the United States, providing a legal path for some of them to join family members already living in America, White House officials said Tuesday. The program is aimed at helping to discourage many children from making a long, dangerous trek across Mexico in an attempt to cross into the United States and join their parents.
IMMIGRATION	Despierta America	10/23/2014	6:00-10:00 AM	0:27	HealthCare.gov's new EZ application for coverage can't be used by legal immigrants or naturalized U.S. citizens. That's prompting concern that many Hispanics and Asians will go right back into long enrollment queues this year. The Obama administration wants more Latinos to sign up under the health care law for 2015. Hispanics are the nation's largest minority group, and they're younger and more likely to be uninsured. An administration official says there have been significant improvements in the application process for immigrants, but advocates are unimpressed. Alvaro Huerta a lawyer with the National Immigration Law Center in Los Angeles, says the whole idea was that HealthCare.gov was going to be seamless and easy, but that doesn't seem to be the case for immigrants.
IMMIGRATION	Noticias Univision 32	11/18/2014	10:00-10:30 PM	2:00	According to the Department of Immigration and Customs Enforcement 1.8 million aliens are currently undergoing removal proceedings or have already been ordered removed. IMMIGRATION	Noticias Univision 32	12/29/2014	5:00-5:30 PM	2:20	According to the U.S. Committee for Refugees and Immigrants, among the tens of thousands of refugees who resettle in the U.S. each year, many have lived in poorer regions of the world where armed conflict and related injuries are common. IMMIGRATION	Despierta America	12/31/2014	6:00- 10:00 AM	0:30	For the first time on record, more non-Mexicans than Mexicans were apprehended at U.S. borders in 2014 by the Border Patrol, according to a Pew Research Center analysis of more than 60 years of Border Patrol data. This shift is another sign that unauthorized immigrants from Mexico are crossing the U.S.-Mexico border significantly less often than they did before the Great Recession. About 229,000 Mexicans were apprehended by the Border Patrol in fiscal year 2014 compared with 257,000 non-Mexicans during the previous year, according to recently published Border Patrol data . Taken together, total apprehensions of Mexican and non-Mexican unauthorized immigrants (more than 486,000) were up 16% over the previous year. These numbers are dramatically different than in 2007 when Mexican apprehensions totaled 809,000, compared with just 68,000 non-Mexicans. The number of Mexican immigrants apprehended at the border peaked at 1.6 million in 2000, the Pew Research analysis showed. The last time Mexican apprehensions were as low as they are now was in 1970 when 219,000 Mexicans were apprehended. In 1970, non-Mexican apprehensions totaled just 12,000. The recent increase in non-Mexican apprehensions is due in part to a surge in unaccompanied Central American child migrants crossing the border without their parents. In fiscal year 2014, nearly 52,000 unaccompanied children from El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras were apprehended at the U.S.-Mexico border, more than double the total from the previous year, according to U.S. Customs and Border Protection data. By contrast, the number of unaccompanied Mexican children apprehended slightly declined over the same time period, from 17,000 to 16,000.
