Healthcare - Faith	Closer Look	1/1/23	7:00pm	29min	Living With Chronic Illness? Advice For Faith and Family "It can be very isolating when no one really gets it," says Susan Rodriguez at Hospital for Special Surgery in New York. As a licensed clinical social worker, she works with patients who experience emotional pain caused by their debilitating physical condition. "They feel like they're being looked at as lazy, not wanting to work, saying 'my family thinks I just wanna be home all day,' she explains, "but many are licensed, they hold degreesthey have contributed to society, and they want to continue doing that."
Employment	Closer Look	1/8/23	7:00pm	30min	Land Your Next Great Job! Crossroads Career Services Offers Advice Losing your job can be emotionally draining and can even lead to questioning your faith in God. "To have some anger, some bitterness, some regret is a very natural thing," agrees Dave Sparkman of Crossroad Career Services, who challenges jobseekers to ask themselves "a truly curious question. 'I wonder what God's up to here?' CCS is a collaboration of career coaches founded more than 20-years ago on the principle that no one should struggle alone to find meaningful work. Their professionals help Christians examine their lives and skills and help them prayerfully consider a vast array of vocational opportunities.

need to live – like food. When COVID-19 forced shutdowns, foodstuffs no longer flowed easily and inexpensively from farms to factories and stores to your kitchen. This global disruption, combined with federal fiscal policies to fight economic slowdown, nearly guaranteed that Americans would feel checkout sticker shock. Food prices are especially vulnerable to pressures of the pandemic, says be Balsay, Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics at Purdue University. To help people relate, the Lebanon, Tennessee, family came up with the Spend a day in My Wheels, Wheelchair Challenge, showing people what it's really like to use a wheelchair. "They had to go to the bathroom and go the water fountain. They had to go to the football field and back. They had to do just things that seems simple, until you're in a wheelchair in which those things become more difficult." Alex says, despite the difficulty, the majority of participants come up to him after the challenge and tell him how eye opening the experience was.

As head of Upward Sports, Kevin is overseeing the launch of baseball and softball opportunities. That's in addition to their well-known basketball programs for churches. "Every child has an opportunity when their playing Upward Sports to hear about Christ." Drake says Upward Sports provides the equipment, programming, and everything that a church needs to be able to run a sports experience with the sole purpose of sharing the Gospel in their community. "The reality is, is that fewer people are coming to church, says Drake." He believes many kids and their parents might never go to church on a traditional Sunday morning, until they encounter Christ through a Saturday experience with sports. "When we hear about people that have come to their church, people that have come to Christ through Upward, that's who we are, it's why we exist," says Drake. He says it's the fuel that keeps him going — motivation that touches his heart.

Education	Closer Look	2/26/23	7:00pm	15min	'Dare To Dream' School Assemblies Ignite Hope in Tweens, Teens
					If you're committed to helping kids grab their God-given potential, Randy Rich says first you have to find them.
					"And where do kids meet in the largest numbers in a mandatory setting? School! And guess what? Schools are required to have a certain amount of assemblies during the course of a year to encourage their students!" The
					D2D motivational program does visit high schools but sees greatest success among kids slightly younger. "By the time a student reaches 8th grade a little over 80% of their value system in place – meaning the way they look at morality, sexuality, integrity – so where are we focusing our intention with Dare to Dream? Middle School." Various artists, musicians and pro-athletes take the mic to share their own struggles to believe and achieve. Kids hear Christian music artists like Lauren Daigle and Toby Mac on videos to kick off each session. The assemblies are not evangelistic, but principals and teachers are fully aware that Dare to Dream is sponsored by Christian radio network Air1. Air1 - Worship Now is owned by Educational Media Foundation (EMF) and is a sister to the K-LOVE Radio Network. Recurring themes for the presentation include tips for making positive life choices like "who's in your Circle of Trust," explains Randy, and asking kids
					, , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,
					"'what labels are you putting on yourself or allowing other people to put on you that prevent you from being all that you were truly created to be?" The D2D team also supplies a 3-week Development Guide as a follow-up to the assembly which has become so popular that many teachers stretch it into a whole semester of instruction.
					More proof of the impact of a Dare to Dream school assembly? Responses written by students on comment cards at the end. The program has helped hundreds of middle and high schoolers confess to teachers or other trusted adults their suicidal tendencies, or report abuse at home and often infused them with courage to ask deep questions about morality. Randy is quick to give credit to God for any self-discovery that comes through Air1's Dare to Dream. "That's not us or any speaker's ability to pull that out. We believe that's the Holy Spirit working in and through the hearts of those kids when you speak truth.
					The truth will set you free."

Technology – Education	Closer Look	2/26/23	7:15pm	15min	Young Children Give Out Phone Numbers, Chat with Strangers Online "Technology scares us most of the time," admits Patrick Craven, director of the Center for Cyber Safety and Education, "and our kids are involved in it." The Center focuses on building awareness of ever-present threats like identity theft and online predators. Surveys of youth and their online habits are alarming. "I gotta tell you", says Craven. "It was pretty shocking – just frightening." "We found that 40% of elementary school children have already chatted with a stranger online and half of them of have given out their phone number." The realities of internet missteps by younger and younger children exposes an urgent need to teach kids how to spot and report suspicious activity. "A child gets a phone now on average by 10-yrs-old. We can't wait till they're in middle school or high school." Craven warns parents to rabidly guard their child's identity. Savvy criminals have turned to setting up fake credit card accounts using a child's social security number because they know it will be literally years before the theft is even discovered. "There's been lots of cases where children have had bankruptcy because where loans were taken out in their name." Protective apps, strong passwords, discretion on social media posts and direct parental supervision remain crucial to preventing such events, but Craven says there is no substitute talking to kids about how to protect themselves

The team reports, "There are tent cities everywhere they look." There have been roughly 6,000 aftershocks since the main quake on February 6. These can range from mini quakes to more significant magnitudes capable of bringing down even more of the damaged structures. People are fearful. Between the two countries, 46,000 people have been confirmed to have lost their lives, with many more injured. Ethan believes it will potentially take years for anything approaching normal to be possible. In our interview podcast, just below, Ethan shares what Convoy of Hope is actively doing to provide as much food and necessities as possible during this time of extraordinary need. And he also emphasizes the value of continued prayer and financial contributions to keep the relief progress moving forward.
