The 8th Day: Girl Scouts Stem Events and Pledge – A Talk with Krista Buman

Coverage:

Local Girl Scout Council Is Committed to STEM Girl Scouts Stem Events and Pledge A Talk with Krista Buman WISCONSIN AND MICHIGAN – Krista Buman came on the 8th Day Radio Show to talk about the Girl Scout Mission to be competitive in the global market. Over the next decade the U.S. will need an astounding one million more STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) professionals than it's on track to produce. And Girl Scouts wants them to come from their ranks. The Girl Scout's STEM Pledge is to inspire the next generation of STEM leaders by adding 2.5 million girls to the STEM pipeline by 2025. As part of Girl Scout's nationwide STEM Pledge, Girl Scouts of the Northwestern Great Lakes (GSNWGL) is hosting six STEM events throughout northern Wisconsin and Michigan's Upper Peninsula. With over 400 girls in Kindergarten through twelfth grade and adult volunteers in attendance, these events will introduce girls to everything from welding, to space science, to hydrology, to engineering and more. Through hands-on, girl-led activities, girls will learn as they do, while enjoying quality time with their friends and caring mentors. Women hold less than 28 percent of STEM jobs in the United States but make up more than 47 percent of the U.S. workforce. With the help of visionary program partners, Girl Scouts is committed to their STEM Pledge because they think, as they've always thought, that girls are our future. Adding 2.5 million girls to the STEM pipeline by 2025 is a big undertaking but Girl Scouts believes that there is a simple, powerful solution. "To be effective and long-lasting, STEM engagement needs to start early," said Karmen Lemke, GSNWGL CEO. "Girls today are saying "I'm not really into STEM" as soon as third grade. But Girl Scouts can change that. With our STEM badges and activities and our robust event offerings, we are showing girls that STEM is not only fun but for them." GSNWGL will be hosting six STEM events and the press is welcome to attend. exSTrEAM! The 8th Day: Bob Swanson Discusses MDHHS IVaccinate.org to Understand the Flu

Coverage:

Parents encouraged to use IVaccinate.org to answer flu questions Bob Swanson Discusses MDHHS IVACCINATE Program and the Flu Lansing, Michigan The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services recently issued a reminder to residents to get vaccinated against the flu, when flu activity is sporadic to protect before influenza activity becomes widespread within communities: “Every year, I make the choice to vaccinate my family so that I can give them the best protection possible as we head into flu season,” said Veronica McNally, mother and founder of the Franny Strong Foundation and the I Vaccinate campaign. “I vaccinate to protect my children, my friends’ children who cannot be vaccinated because they are too young, and our loved ones who cannot receive the vaccine because their immune system is working hard to fight cancer or other illnesses. “I’m grateful to everyone in our community who also chooses to vaccinate – and applaud those parents who have questions and are seeking out credible answers. I strongly encourage anyone with questions to visit IVaccinate.org to get answers to their questions about the flu vaccine that are grounded in scientific and medical research.” I Vaccinate has answers for some of the most common questions about the flu vaccine, including: What is influenza (the flu)? Is the “stomach flu” different than influenza? How dangerous is the flu? Who should get a flu vaccine? How do I protect my child from the flu? When will flu activity begin and when will it peak? Will the flu vaccine give me or my child the flu? Is it better to get the flu vaccine or the flu? What about people who get a seasonal flu vaccine and still get sick with flu symptoms? What’s in the flu vaccine? What are the benefits of flu vaccination? If vaccines undergo years of studies, how is it that a new annual or pandemic flu shot comes out every year? Additional topics discussed included the impact of not vaccinating on communities. Here’s what we know about flu Flu is BAD, especially for kids and seniors. At least 80% of influenza-related deaths occur among 2 age groups: children from 6 months to 8 years and adults 65 and older. Flu Prevention Works. Vaccinations, effective hygiene, and anti-flu medication reduces flu-related deaths. What we need YOU to do: Help us reduce flu deaths in your area by publishing the The Flu Prevention Resource Sheet, which strongly encourages helpful actions from the most-impactful groups working with flu-vulnerable populations. Next Steps: 1) Let us know the format you prefer for content published to your website (PDF? Word Doc? HTML File? Blog Post? Text File? Something else?). 2) Publish the document we send to you and join the CDC’s fight against the flu! There’s even a chance you could be mentioned on the CDC website! Check out the Flu Fighters program here: <https://www.cdc.gov/flu/resource-center/partners/flu-fighters.htm> 80% of flu deaths could have been prevented with vaccination thank you for joining this fight! The I Vaccinate campaign is a joint public-private effort of MDHHS and the Franny Strong Foundation and is supported by the CDC and every major medical and health organization in the state, including the Michigan Academy of Family Physicians, Michigan Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics, and Michigan State Medical Society. Some thoughts about veterans when fewer than 1% serve. As few and fewer people serve, the general population don t lose appreciation of vets because they never develop an appreciation in the first place. Veteran s service is more and more alien, disconnected to ordinary citizens, and veterans are worse off for that disconnect. It takes an effort to preserve freedom, and it takes an effort to appreciate those that have served. Give some thought for the vets this Veteran s Day.

It was all to get people to give the gift of life as the UP Regional Blood center currently has a critical need of several types of blood. The morning started with the load-in of a lot of gear, including a comfy reclining chair to sit in as the blood was donated. That was followed by checks of everyone s general health and eligibility to be a blood donor. Mark gets poked. The first in the chair to donate this morning was Mike LaVigne, who said the experience was quick and easy and made him wonder why he doesn t donate blood more often! Then it was Walt s turn in the comfy chair and within minutes, a pint of his blood was gathered and processed (with no screaming). Closing out the morning s donating festivities was Mark, who said, all in all, it was an easy thing to do to help give someone life! The UP Regional Blood Center is located at 427 West College Avenue in Marquette and is open most weekdays 8:00am to 5:00pm and closed on weekends. They also have locations in Iron Mountain, Sault Ste. Marie, Houghton and Escanaba. They remind folks that they serve 13 regional hospitals in the U.P., and the blood collected in the U.P. stays in the U.P. Mike LaVigne from Super One Foods in the chair. Very special thanks to Rachel Heath and Kelly Varda and the rest of the staff at the UP Regional Blood Center!

The Sunny Morning Show: State Senator Ed McBroom Discusses Bill To End Deer Baiting And Feeding Ban

Coverage:

State Senator Ed McBroom Marquette, MI (11/15/19) State Senator Ed McBroom joined Mark and Walt in the Morning today to talk about the Senate passage of a State House bill ending the ban on feeding and baiting of deer and elk in Michigan. An amended version of the legislation passed this week in the Senate and now goes back to the House for a final vote before heading to the Governor's desk. McBroom said he understands that the ban was set up by the Michigan Natural Resources Commission amid concerns about the spread of chronic wasting disease in the deer herd, but it is hurting the sport of hunting and local businesses. He acknowledged that Governor Gretchen Whitmer is opposed to the lifting of the ban, and she may not sign it into law. He encouraged Whitmer to listen to the lawmakers who are representing citizens who want the ban lifted, adding that his office has been hearing from constituents who want the ban lifted by a 3 to 1 margin over those who want to keep it in place.

The 8th Day: Jane Ryan – 183rd Birthday of Michigan's Upper Peninsula at the MRHC December 14th from 1p-3p

Coverage:

Jane Ryan 183rd Birthday of Michigan's Upper Peninsula at the MRHC December 14th from 1p-3p Marquette, Michigan Jane Ryan joined Todd Pazz on the 8th Day Radio Show to discuss the upcoming birthday part for the Upper Peninsula on December 14, 1:00 pm 3:00 pm at the Marquette Regional History Center. It's the Upper Peninsula's 183rd birthday. On December 14, 1836 during the "Frostbitten Convention" the State of Michigan accepted $\frac{3}{4}$ of the U.P. in exchange for the Toledo Strip. The easternmost part of the U.P. was already a part of Michigan, but to get the conflict between Michigan and Ohio resolved, and to fast track the Michigan territory to statehood, the territorial governor, President Andrew Jackson, and the United States congress agreed to the compromise, even though the first convention called to resolve the issue resulted in the people of the territory rejecting the compromise. From Wikipedia Toledo War Entry : During the summer of 1836, Congress proposed a compromise whereby Michigan gave up its claim to the strip in exchange for its statehood and about three-quarters of the Upper Peninsula . Although the northern region's mineral wealth would later become an economic asset to Michigan, at the time the compromise was considered a poor outcome for the new state, and voters in a statehood convention in September soundly rejected the proposal. But in December, the Michigan government, facing a dire financial crisis and pressure from Congress and President Andrew Jackson , called another convention (called the Frostbitten Convention) which accepted the compromise that resolved the Toledo War. Soon after Michigan was admitted to the Union as the 26th state. State Representative Sarah Cambensy and Mark Ruge, native of Menominee Michigan and former chief of staff to Congressman Bob Davis, will speak at 1:30 pm about the "Frostbitten Convention" and the details of this important decision for the State of Michigan. Celebration will include a song and serve birthday cake and coffee. For more information call 906.226.3571 or go online www.marquettehistory.org . The 8th Day: Tom Bronken 8th Day Interview – Tuba Christmas on Sunday, December 15th MRHC 1:30p-2:30p

Coverage:

Tom Bronken 8th Day Interview Tuba Christmas on Sunday, December 15th MRHC 130p-230p Marquette, Michigan Marquette's annual Tuba Christmas holiday concert will be held on Sunday, Dec 15 at 1:30 p.m. at the Marquette Regional History Center, 145 W. Spring St., Marquette. Tuba and euphonium players from around the area will perform Christmas carols in this annual tradition which is free and open to the public. Tuba Christmas got its start with a concert on the ice rink at New York's Rockefeller Plaza in 1974. 300 tuba and euphonium players congregated on that day to perform Christmas carols specially arranged by noted composer Alec Wilder. Since the inaugural concert, tuba and euphonium choirs have met annually in various locations to continue this event. This year over 300 cities across the United States and in several foreign countries will play the same arrangements as those performers 45 years ago. Marquette's Tuba Christmas got its start a bit more recently, but rapidly established itself as an annual tradition. After instrument valves froze during one particularly cold December day, the Marquette Regional History Center graciously opened its doors to the group several years ago and has hosted crowds annually. While some die-hard fans have complained that the group doesn't play outdoors anymore, more people have commented that they enjoy the music more when they're warm. Audience members who want a chair are advised to get there early because they go fast. It's free, and it's fun, and it's at 1:30 PM at the Marquette Regional History Center on Sunday, Dec 15.

The 8th Day: Janel M Crooks – US Forest Service Special Use Permits Open House Gladstone
December 17th from 3p-6p

Coverage:

US Forest Service Special Use Permits Open House Gladstone December 17th from 3p-6p Gladstone, Michigan Hiawatha National Forest will host open houses to inform and assist the public regarding special use permits, which are required for a variety of activities the public may wish to conduct on national forest system lands. The open houses will be held from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Forest Service offices in Munising (December 10, 2019) and Gladstone (December 17, 2019). When DON'T You Need A Permit? When you are gathering edible material (morels, etc.) for your own consumption. When you are camping in a dispersed area. When you are at a site that doesn't require a Recreation Enhancement Act Fee. When you are building a campfire on National Forest System lands you can collect a reasonable quantity of wood for the campfire without a permit. When DO You Need A Permit? For some recreation activities: At most day use sites such as trail heads, picnic areas and river access sites Reserving a campsite For collecting fuel wood. Special Use Permits are required for commercial and non-commercial use of NFS lands, including: Easements for electrical and utility lines, roads to access private property bound by National Forest lands, oil and gas pipelines, wells or holding tanks, etc. Minerals Snow Plowing Permits <https://www.fs.usda.gov/detail/hiawatha/news-events/?cid=FSEPRD677598> · Why are special use permits needed? The Forest Service mission is to manage the national forests for a variety of uses, including recreation, timber, wilderness, minerals, water, grazing, fish and wildlife. Our job is to help people share and enjoy the forest, while conserving the environment for generations yet to come. To help us meet this goal, certain activities require permits. Our goal with these open houses is to help the public learn about the special uses program, said Brian Hinch, a Forest Service recreation specialist who oversees recreation uses on the Hiawatha National Forest's west zone. What kinds of activities require a special use permit? The Forest Service provides permits for several kinds of activities including non-commercial activities, commercial activities, recreation events, commercial photography and filming, outfitting and guiding, transportation, energy, and forest products gathering. We'll have posters and handouts covering the kinds of activities that require permits, and we will also have information about the seasonal permit application windows, said Jennifer Olmsted, Zone Realty Specialist. US Forest Service Special Use Permits Open House Gladstone December 17th from 3p-6p Forest Service staff will be available to answer questions about the range of special uses and if applicable, to help you get started on your permit application. Here is an overview of the kinds of activities covered by Forest Service special use permits: Non-Commercial Activities A non-commercial group use is a use or activity that involves a group of 75 or more people, either as participants or spectators, where an entry or participation fee is not charged, and the primary purpose is not the sale of a good or service. Some examples of noncommercial group uses are weddings, church services, graduations, family reunions and more. Commercial Activities A use is considered Commercial when: an applicant intends to charge an entry or participation fee; or, when the primary purpose is the sale of a good or service, regardless of the intent to produce a profit. Money collected may cover expense categories, such as food, transportation, prizes, advertising, purchase replacement of equipment, or compensation for the leader of the activity. Some examples of commercial activities include (but are not limited to) shuttle service, realtor signs, poker runs, marathons, food vendors, canoe outfitters, hunting guides, art/photography workshops and more. Recreation Events Recreation events are commercial activities requiring temporary, authorized use of NFS land. Examples of recreation events include, but are not limited to, animal, bicycle, motocross, or triathlon races; dog trials; fishing contests; rendezvous; rodeos; adventure games; youth treks; concerts; and other similar events. A permit is required for these types of events, regardless of the number of people involved in the activity. Recreation Residences Permits In 1915, when most national forests were remote and difficult to access, the agency launched the Recreation Residence program in order to help the public visit forest. While new Recreation Residences are no longer being added to the system, the Hiawatha has several tracts of privately owned, noncommercial residence located upon National Forest System lands and authorized by a recreation residence term special use permit. A recreation residence is maintained by the permit holder for personal, family, and guest use and enjoyment and cannot be transferred to a new owner; rather the new owner must apply for a new permit. A recreation residence may not serve as a permanent residence. From experience we know that because Rec Residences are relatively rare, there can be many challenges in buying a recreation residence (including financing). Whether you are a realtor selling recreation residences, a prospective buyer, or a current owner, we encourage you to take advantage of this great opportunity to ask questions.

Commercial Photography/Filming A permit is required for all commercial filming activities on National Forest System lands except those involving breaking news. A permit is required for all still photography activities on National Forest System lands that involve the use of models, sets or props that are not a part of the natural or cultural resources or administrative facilities of the site where the activity is occurring. A permit may be required for still photography activities not involving models, sets, or props when the Forest Service incurs additional administrative costs as a direct result of the activity or when the activity takes place at a location where members of the public are generally not allowed.

Outfitting and Guiding A permit is required when the outfitting/guiding operation is conducted on national forest system lands or waters. Outfitting and guiding services range from hunting, fishing, canoeing trips to dogsledding, snowmobiling, and hiking tours, to name a few. Outfitters that rent and deliver equipment to the public for use on national forest lands must obtain a permit if they, their employees, or agents occupy or use national forest system lands or waters in connection with their rental programs.

Transportation Permit A transportation permit covers use of roads not open to the general public for motorized use or use of roads/driveways across NFS land to access private property.

Snowplowing Permits In our snowy winter landscapes, snow plowing is a fact of life. If you need to plow a Forest Service road whether for commercial or non-commercial reasons a snowplowing permit is required. These permits are designed to protect the road and surrounding resources, as well as to help ensure the safety of all users.

Forest Products Gathering Permits are required for collecting edible, medicinal, decorative plants and fungi if used for commercial purposes. Currently, we offer permits for gathering boughs, Holiday tree tags, and Lycopodium. Firewood gathering permits are also available for personal use. Some offices may administer a program for tapping maple trees for sap. A permit is not required for gathering small amounts of minor products for personal use only, such as firewood while camping on the National Forest, birch bark, cones, twigs, seeds, leeks, mushrooms or other fungi, berries, or acorns. Such collections must not disturb the surface resource and products must not be protected by State or Federal laws or regulations.

The Sunny Morning Show: Marquette County Solid Waste Management Authority Collecting Mercury

Coverage:

Josh Wales Marquette, MI The Marquette County Solid Waste Management Authority is getting the word out about their Mercury Minimization Program. It s an effort to collect mercury-containing devices such as thermometers, old thermostats, and even elemental mercury in it s liquid form. Josh Wales, Landfill Supervisor with the MCSWMA, joined Mark and Walt in the Morning recently to talk about the effort and why it's important to properly dispose of mercury in order to protect the water supply and the environment. Wales explained that mercury can have detrimental impacts on adults and children that can hurt their central nervous systems and create other health issues as well. He added that, as part of the effort to keep mercury out of the general trash, the MCSWMA has started a thermometer exchange program. If you bring in an old mercury containing thermometer to their facility, they will exchange it with a free digital non-mercury one for you to use. You can find out more by calling the Marquette County Solid Waste Management Authority at (906) 249-4125 .

The Sunny Morning Show: State Senator Ed McBroom Discusses Budget Deal

Coverage:

State Senator Ed McBroom Marquette, MI Legislative leaders in Lansing and Governor Gretchen Whitmer reached an agreement last week on a budget plan. Negotiations stalled in September after Democrat Whitmer vetoed $1 billion out of a Republican-approved budget plan and then moved money around in departments. A compromise was reached to restore $573 million of the $1 billion cut. State Senator Ed McBroom called in to Mark and Walt in the Morning today to talk about the deal. McBroom said the U.P.'s four legislators were able to work together to secure funding for some important services in Upper Michigan. He added, however, that there are still notable exceptions, including no deal to fund a comprehensive road and infrastructure fix or the Pure Michigan campaign. The revised budget now goes to the Governor for her signature.
