He used to live on the street, but now shows his artwork in galleries and has sold several paintings. Tonight Donna Parker introduces us to a special artist, who was homeless...but now, has found his path to artistic freedom and success. Albert Gonzales managed to go from homeless to a successful artist by following his passion for painting. His life journey has led him to discover his passion and find his purpose.

Originally San Antonio's "secret garden," Miraflores is a piece of history that is a snapshot in time of a private estate garden. The 4.5 acre garden along the San Antonio River contains a number of significant concrete art objects, reflecting important aspects of Mexican history, art, and culture, some of which are on the Smithsonian American Art Museum -- Inventory of American Sculpture. It contains a number of statuary, pedestals, urns, talavera tile benches and faux bois works of Dionicio Rodríguez, an artist from Mexico noted for his faux bois pieces in San Antonio and other states.

Comedians on Comedians explores the motivation of three San Antonio comics standing up on stage in small comedy clubs, trying to get a laugh. What drives a comic to want to divulge his life stories on a public stage just to make people laugh. We take a look at the process they go through before each performance, to produce this particular form of art.
