7/3/2022 (Sun)	12:00	36:00	27504	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	EP86. Film, television, theatre and live events producer Samuel Goldberg recently contributed to the work of the Discovery Park of America team on the safety portion of the new exhibit on innovation in agriculture. His latest movie, "Silo," has now been released in theaters around the country. It's an incredible story based on real-life events about how a community came together to save a boy trapped in a silo grain bin. In this episode, Goldberg shares how a New Yorker who grew up in Manhattan was inspired to produce a film on grain bin entrapment. It's a fascinating story of how the film made the journey from an idea tossed his way by a friend in Tennessee to finally premiering in theaters around the country.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams
7/10/2022 (Sun)	12:00	49:00	27516	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	EP87. Spend a little time with Dan Knowles, and you'll quickly find yourself inspired by this award-winning writer, artist and musician. In this episode, he shares the arts journey that took him from his childhood in California to the stage of the Grand Old Opry to riverboats on the Mississippi to his current home in Paris, Tenn. Today, Knowles both plays and creates banjos, mandolins and dulcimers in his Paris studio and is the artist responsible for many of the giant murals now found on many of the large buildings in town. 7/24/2022 (Sun)	12:00	33:00	31004	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	EP122. As the son of James Winchester, a wealthy Tennessee pioneer, entrepreneur and business partner of Andrew Jackson, Marcus B. Winchester had a front row seat to the birth of the volunteer state. In this episode, one of his descendants, Ginger Hadley, shares some of her research that brings to light more about Winchester's fascinating life, successful career and sad ending. Winchester grew up at Cragfont, the first and finest mansion on the Tennessee frontier, spent time as a prisoner during the War of 1812 and was present as Andrew Jackson signed the Treaty of Old Town with the Chickasaw. Winchester was appointed Memphis' first mayor and postmaster and opened one of the first general stores and ferries in the new town on the bluff of the Mississippi River. As Hadley discovered in her research, Winchester's marriage to a young woman with Osage ancestry resulted in much persecution and the couple and their children having to live outside the city limits of the town he governed. Self-taught sculptor, Hattie Marshall-Duncan of Jackson, Tenn., turns common household items and found objects that are often overlooked into distinguished masterpieces. Her work is reflective of her African American community and family. At the reception for an exhibit of her work at Discovery Park, Marshall-Duncan shared what inspires her work and the unusual technique that results in these unique pieces of art. She was the recipient of the 2019 Tennessee Governor's Arts Award and her art is displayed in numerous museums and galleries. This collection is on loan from the West Tennessee Regional Art Center (WTRAC) in Humboldt, Tenn., Tom Camp; O.E. Stigall Ethnic Library and Museum in Humboldt, Tenn., Arts in McNairy in Selmer, Tenn. and Joanna and Shawn Pitts.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams

9/18/2022 (Sun)	12:00	38:00	31009	Reelfoot Forward: A West Tennessee Podcast	EP125. The Freedom Forum, a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization with a mission of fostering First Amendment freedoms for all, will be at Discovery Park on Sept. 23 and 24, 2022, for a festival celebrating the First Amendment rights that make our country unique. In this episode, the Freedom Forum's Cathy Trost, chief engagement officer and senior vice president, and Patty Rhule, chief content officer and vice president, share more about some of what the Freedom Forum has found in their annual First Amendment survey and what they heard from recent focus groups with residents of Union City, Tenn. While they've found Americans see the First Amendment - which protects our essential freedoms of religion, speech, press, assembly and petition - as vital to our democracy, many worry there is a lack of understanding about those five freedoms. That's one of the reasons the Freedom Forum is headed to Discovery Park for their inaugural First Amendment Festival.	Discovery Park of America, Union City, TN Host Scott Williams
