RADIO HEALTH JOURNAL

SYNOPSIS

The show deals with generic health issues relatable to anyone, including listeners in the Greater Cincinnati area.

Listen to Radio Health Journal to get the latest scoop on what's trending in health, science and technology, and the intersection of medicine and public policy. Each week we speak with leading experts to break down the complex medical jargon and report on a timely topic. Did you know ecstasy could help to cure PTSD? What does "Medicare for All" really mean? These subjects and more with two stories weekly, plus Medical Notes – a short recap of the top medical headlines in the news.

Hosted by Reed Pence, Nancy Benson and Shel Lustig. New shows posted each Sunday by 5 a.m. EST.

Radio Health Journal is an award-winning, contemporary radio magazine focusing on the latest in health, science, and technology. Featuring interviews with renowned medical experts, doctors, scientists, and professors, Radio Health Journal has a 25+ year track record of providing you with information you can trust. Radio Health Journal is currently airing on 600+ radio stations and available on your favorite podcast platform.
