Format: Documentary

A report of an extraordinary political scandal. The scale of corruption still coming to light dwarfs anything since Watergate. In one sense it's the age-old tale of greed, but greed encouraged now by the way our system works. Deep in the plea bargains of Jack Abramoff and his cronies is the admission that they conspired to use campaign contributions to bribe politicians; campaign finance is the core of the corruption. They took great pains to cover their tracks and they might have pulled it off except for a handful of honest people, and the work of some enterprising print reporters, Senate investigators, and the ethics team at the Department of Justice. Following the money in this story leads us through a bizarre maze of cocktail parties, golf courses, private jets, four-star restaurants, sweatshops and the chandeliered rooms frequented by the high and mighty in Washington. Stay with the twists and turns and the pieces fall into place. But keep in mind that what you're seeing is only a partial picture; we have not seen the end of Capitol crimes.

Few people ever meet a dwarf face-to-face. In this personal journey, documentary filmmaker Steve Delano shows firsthand how a genetic mutation marks a person for life. He reveals the isolation of his school years, his "ludicrous" strategies to fit in as well as the mixed blessings of dwarfism. In this film, Delano exercises the license of stature and his irreverent sense of humor to confront head-on conventional representations and misperceptions about dwarfs. From growing up a "freak" - a form of forced celebrity - to finally accepting and asserting his difference, Delano provides an idiosyncratic perspective based on a tip-toe life, and contemplates a future where genetic engineering may eliminate "people of difference" altogether.

Few people ever meet a dwarf face-to-face. In this personal journey, documentary filmmaker Steve Delano shows firsthand how a genetic mutation marks a person for life. He reveals the isolation of his school years, his "ludicrous" strategies to fit in as well as the mixed blessings of dwarfism. In this film, Delano exercises the license of stature and his irreverent sense of humor to confront head-on conventional representations and misperceptions about dwarfs. From growing up a "freak" - a form of forced celebrity - to finally accepting and asserting his difference, Delano provides an idiosyncratic perspective based on a tip-toe life, and contemplates a future where genetic engineering may eliminate "people of difference" altogether.

A report of an extraordinary political scandal. The scale of corruption still coming to light dwarfs anything since Watergate. In one sense it's the age-old tale of greed, but greed encouraged now by the way our system works. Deep in the plea bargains of Jack Abramoff and his cronies is the admission that they conspired to use campaign contributions to bribe politicians; campaign finance is the core of the corruption. They took great pains to cover their tracks and they might have pulled it off except for a handful of honest people, and the work of some enterprising print reporters, Senate investigators, and the ethics team at the Department of Justice. Following the money in this story leads us through a bizarre maze of cocktail parties, golf courses, private jets, four-star restaurants, sweatshops and the chandeliered rooms frequented by the high and mighty in Washington. Stay with the twists and turns and the pieces fall into place. But keep in mind that what you're seeing is only a partial picture; we have not seen the end of Capitol crimes.

Five years after the attacks on 9/11 and the massive, multibillion-dollar reorganization of government agencies that followed, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter Lowell Bergman investigates the domestic counterterrorism effort and asks whether we are any better prepared to prevent another catastrophic attack. Relying on interviews with high-level sources in the U. S. government, Bergman reveals ongoing interagency rivalry as well as troubling flaws in what has been the largest reorganization of the government in half a century. The documentary focuses on who is the real enemy within the United States and whether we are prepared to defeat him.

The Foley fallout out: behind the headlines. And the worsening situation in Iraq: what officials are now admitting tonight on Washington Week. Rep. Stephanie Tubbs Jones said, "We have a job to do and we got to do our job". That job? Getting to the bottom of the sordid congressional page scandal which has resulted in resignation, investigation, and consternation and close congressional races around the country. From a campaign ad: For over a year they knowingly ignored the welfare of children. Rep. Dennis Hastert (R-IL), (as seen from a tape.) "Ultimately, as someone has said in Washington before, the buck stops here." We take a closer look. Meanwhile, the situation in Iraq gets only worse. According to a military spokesman, "Attacks have steadily increased in Baghdad during these past weeks". And an influential U.S. senator sounds the warning bell. Covering these stories this week: Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, John Harwood of CNBC and the Wall Street Journal, John Harris of the Washington Post, and Linda Robinson of U.S. News and World Report.

North Korea front and center, what's at stake in the midterm elections, and the latest Foley fallout, tonight on "Washington Week." "The proclaimed actions taken by North Korea are unacceptable", said President George Bush. North Korea ups the ante, calling the world's bluff with what it says was a successful nuclear weapons test. Kofi Annan [UN Secretary General] claims, "It complicates an already difficult security situation in the Korean Peninsula". But if the test did happen, what are the United States and the United Nations prepared to do about it? "We shouldn't allow meetings and more meetings and more meetings and more meetings and more meetings to be an excuse for inaction," says John Bolton [U.S. ambassador to the UN]. Keeping all the balls in the air: the president takes to the podium and to the road to defend his presidency and to toss out a political lifeline to congressional Republicans. Pres. Few people ever meet a dwarf face-to-face. In this personal journey, documentary filmmaker Steve Delano shows firsthand how a genetic mutation marks a person for life. He reveals the isolation of his school years, his "ludicrous" strategies to fit in as well as the mixed blessings of dwarfism. In this film, Delano exercises the license of stature and his irreverent sense of humor to confront head-on conventional representations and misperceptions about dwarfs. From growing up a "freak" - a form of forced celebrity - to finally accepting and asserting his difference, Delano provides an idiosyncratic perspective based on a tip-toe life, and contemplates a future where genetic engineering may eliminate "people of difference" altogether.

Secrets of the Dead: Umbrella Assassin is an amazing Cold War story about a Bulgarian dissident who was shot with a poison pellet from an umbrella gun while he was waiting at a bus stop. For many reasons over the last 30 years, the investigations were thwarted, but in our film we go back and re-examine it from start to finish. We even name the triggerman, who is still on the loose in Europe. This is a forensic investigation that looks at how the gun and the poison pellet actually worked, but it's also a bigger Cold War political investigation that explores why the various investigations were stonewalled, and how the KGB may have been working with the Bulgarians to pull off the assassination. Even though the assassination happened a long time ago, the story is relevant right now because the statute of limitations on the murder is about to run out, so within a few years the assassin will have nothing left to worry about. To complicate things even more, Bulgaria is currently applying to be a member of the European Union so they are not particularly interested in having this investigation into their shady past reignited.

FRONTLINE reports from the lawless Pakistani tribal areas along the Afghanistan-Pakistan border and reveals how the area has fallen under the control of a resurgent Taliban militia, which uses it as a launching pad for attacks on U.S. and coalition forces in Afghanistan. Despite the presence of more than 70,000 Pakistani troops, the Taliban has claimed two tribal agencies, North and South Waziristan, as Taliban republics. The area, off limits to U.S. troops by agreement with Pakistan's president and long suspected of harboring Osama bin Laden and his deputy Ayman al-Zawahiri, is now considered a failed state. President Pervez Musharraf tells FRONTLINE reporter Martin Smith that Pakistan's strategy, which includes cash payments to militants who lay down their arms, has clearly foundered. In a region little understood because it is closed to most observers, FRONTLINE investigates a secret front in the war on terror.

North Korea front and center, what's at stake in the midterm elections, and the latest Foley fallout, tonight on "Washington Week." "The proclaimed actions taken by North Korea are unacceptable", said President George Bush. North Korea ups the ante, calling the world's bluff with what it says was a successful nuclear weapons test. Kofi Annan [UN Secretary General] claims, "It complicates an already difficult security situation in the Korean Peninsula". But if the test did happen, what are the United States and the United Nations prepared to do about it? "We shouldn't allow meetings and more meetings and more meetings to be an excuse for inaction," says John Bolton [U.S. ambassador to the UN]. Keeping all the balls in the air: the president takes to the podium and to the road to defend his presidency and to toss out a political lifeline to congressional Republicans. Pres. Bush says "I'm proud to be standing with the current Speaker of the House, who is going to be the future Speaker of the House". But polls show GOP incumbents around the country struggling. We look at the key contests. Also, the effect Washington scandals may be having on these precarious midterm elections. Ain't Scared of Your Jails (1960-1961) Black college students take a leadership role in the civil rights movement as lunch counter sit-ins spread across the South. "Freedom Riders" also try to desegregate interstate buses, but they are brutally attacked as they travel. No Easy Walk (1961-1963) The civil rights movement discovers the power of mass demonstrations as the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. emerges as its most visible leader. Some demonstrations succeed; others fail. But the triumphant March on Washington, D.C., under King's leadership, shows a mounting national support for civil rights. President John F. Kennedy proposes the Civil Rights Act.

What is the one principle, belief, or cause for which you would sacrifice everything - including your life? Ethical, spiritual, and ideological values that are central to the human experience find their voice in the documentary film, Last Best Hope, an intimate, riveting, little-known story about the ordinary men and women in the Belgian Resistance and their extraordinary acts to save and repatriate downed Allied airmen during the Second World War. At the heart of the story is 85-year old American Bill Grosvenor, a P-47 Thunderbolt pilot who fell from the skies over Belgium and into the hands of the Resistance in 1943. Nearly sixty years later, Grosvenor is reunited with his helpers in Belgium who fought against tyranny and oppression in their homes, in their neighborhoods, and in the streets of Brussels. Resistance fighters share for the first time their daring and heartrending stories, allowing Last Best Hope to explore the myriad motivations that propel one stranger to help another, despite the risk to his or her own life and everything dear. As unexpectedly as the Gestapo snared Grosvenor in an early morning safehouse raid, Last Best Hope transports the viewer to another place and time with a universal message about faith, hope, and the undefeatable power of the human spirit. Stunning and cathartic, Last Best Hope takes even the most jaded WWII film buff by surprise.

The first colonists to leave Britain for America settled in Virginia, full of hope for their new home and dreaming of riches. But after just six months, 80 of the 100 were dead. The perceived wisdom is that they died of malaria or another disease. But, recent exhumations reveal a surprising discovery. The bodies contain high levels of arsenic. Were they poisoned? And could the culprit have been a Catholic intent on stopping the Protestants colonizing the New World?

Separating a political campaign from the big money that feeds it (and the accompanying special interest that all too often corrupts it) seems like a quixotic endeavor at best. But don't tell that to a "cleanly-elected" politician in Arizona or Maine, or to Proposition 89 supporters in California. To them, the fight to make elections free, fair, and publicly funded is nothing short of a peoples' revolution in American politics. The more we investigated, the more obvious it became that we needed a full hour to cover the "Clean Election" movement and its ramifications on our democracy. And so, this Friday we present "Votes for Sale?" the story of a grass roots rebellion that is inspiring citizens coast to coast, but also creating a contentious debate about how far a candidate should be allowed to go to win your vote.

People earning the smallest paychecks in America often rely on that money to support their entire families. Six states will be voting to raise their minimum wage in the upcoming election. One of them is Missouri, where the topic has become a hot political issue. Meanwhile, Texas, home to more minimum wage workers than any other state, has no ballot initiative to raise the minimum wage, leaving workers with very desperate choices. These are the people who clean our clothes, our offices, and our hotel rooms, while most of us look the other way. How we treat them - and not just during election cycles - says a lot about our national character. In two separate reports, one on-air and one online, NOW looks at the impact of low wages on both politics and families, and what steps some are taking to fight for a "living wage".

People earning the smallest paychecks in America often rely on that money to support their entire families. Six states will be voting to raise their minimum wage in the upcoming election. One of them is Missouri, where the topic has become a hot political issue. Meanwhile, Texas, home to more minimum wage workers than any other state, has no ballot initiative to raise the minimum wage, leaving workers with very desperate choices. These are the people who clean our clothes, our offices, and our hotel rooms, while most of us look the other way. How we treat them - and not just during election cycles - says a lot about our national character. In two separate reports, one on-air and one online, NOW looks at the impact of low wages on both politics and families, and what steps some are taking to fight for a "living wage".

"Magnetic Storm"--On March 13, 1989, the lights went out all across Canada and the eastern seaboard of the United States as far south as New York. The most serious power grid failure in American history was caused by a magnetic storm in the earth's upper atmosphere, itself triggered by the eruption of a huge flare from the surface of the Sun. Unusual as this event may seem, many scientists today are beginning to worry that it may be a harbinger of things to come, and that changes to the planet's magnetic field could make earth ever more vulnerable to deadly radiation from space. This film explores one of the least-known but most serious threats to life on earth.

For nearly a century, humans forgot their glorious past and huddled in a state of ignorance and fear. Scientists have uncovered evidence from around the world that indicates that the early Dark Ages may have been triggered by an actual event that occurred around 535 A.D. Science writer David Keys believes that the cause was a natural phenomenon of cataclysmic proportions. Determined to discover the exact nature of this catastrophe, and to understand its political, economic and social repercussions, he embarks on a scientific odyssey that ranges from Greenland to the Antarctica; from the Americas to the Far East. At the center of a stunningly-complex chain of events seems to be a loud bang (according to Keys this was a volcanic explosion equal to two thousand million Hiroshima size bombs.) The subsequent environmental calamity, he believes, affected human civilization from Mongolia to Constantinople, precipitating plague, famine, death, great migration, the fall of the great Mexican city of Teotihuacan, the Anglo-Saxon victory over the Celts, and may even have played a role in the rise of Islam.

The future of the Internet is up for grabs. Last year, the FCC eliminated "net neutrality" rules, which allowed every American and every company to access the Internet equally. Today, big corporations are lobbying Washington to turn the World Wide Web into a toll road, threatening democracy's newest forum. Yet the public knows little about what's happening behind closed doors on Capitol Hill. Some activists put it this way: a few mega media giants own the content and control the delivery of radio, television, and the press; if we let them take control of the Internet as well, who will pay the price?

In the aftermath of the fall of Saddam Hussein, a group of Americans led by Ambassador L. Paul Bremer III set off to Baghdad to build a new nation and establish democracy in the Arab Middle East. One year later, with Bremer forced to secretly exit what some have called "the most dangerous place on earth," the group left behind lawlessness, insurgency, economic collapse, death, destruction - and much of their idealism. Three years later, as the U.S. continues to look for an exit strategy, the government the Americans helped create and the infrastructure they designed are being tested. FRONTLINE producer Michael Kirk follows the early efforts and ideals of this group as they tried to seize control and disband the Iraqi police, army and Baathist government - and how they became hardened along the way to the realities of postwar Iraq. The program is based on numerous first-person interviews and extensive documentation from the FRONTLINE team that produced "Rumsfeld's War," "The Torture Question" and "The Dark Side."

Separating a political campaign from the big money that feeds it (and the accompanying special interest that all too often corrupts it) seems like a quixotic endeavor at best. But don't tell that to a "cleanly-elected" politician in Arizona or Maine, or to Proposition 89 supporters in California. To them, the fight to make elections free, fair, and publicly funded is nothing short of a peoples' revolution in American politics. The more we investigated, the more obvious it became that we needed a full hour to cover the "Clean Election" movement and its ramifications on our democracy. And so, this Friday we present "Votes for Sale?" the story of a grass roots rebellion that is inspiring citizens coast to coast, but also creating a contentious debate about how far a candidate should be allowed to go to win your vote.

People earning the smallest paychecks in America often rely on that money to support their entire families. Six states will be voting to raise their minimum wage in the upcoming election. One of them is Missouri, where the topic has become a hot political issue. Meanwhile, Texas, home to more minimum wage workers than any other state, has no ballot initiative to raise the minimum wage, leaving workers with very desperate choices. These are the people who clean our clothes, our offices, and our hotel rooms, while most of us look the other way. How we treat them - and not just during election cycles - says a lot about our national character. In two separate reports, one on-air and one online, NOW looks at the impact of low wages on both politics and families, and what steps some are taking to fight for a "living wage".

Election year meltdown: the House and the Senate both up for grabs as the White House grapples with setbacks in Iraq and North Korea, tonight on "Washington Week." Forget about red states and blue states: Republicans this year are seeing only a sea of purple in one bad poll after another. As House incumbents battle pre-election investigation. Rep. Curt Weldon (R-Pa) says, "I would not have wished this for anyone and three weeks before the election it makes the campaign that much more difficult." And some Republicans speculate about what will happen if they lose the Senate, too. Sen. John McCain (R-Az) said, "I think I'll just commit suicide. I don't want to face that eventuality because I don't think it's going to happen." Meanwhile, the president hits the campaign trail while coping with bad news from Iraq and sobering news from North Korea that has rattled old allies. "The United States has the will and the capability to meet the full range - and I underscore full range - of its deterrent and security commitments", claims Secretary Of State Condoleezza Rice. Threats, political and international. Covering those stories this week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Andrea Mitchell of NBC News.

All elections all the time, we cover the Republicans, the Democrats, the money, and the ads, tonight on Washington Week. "No one can predict the future with absolute certainty, so you ought to just back off, take a look at it, relax, understand that it's complicated, it's difficult," said Secretary Of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. Donald Rumsfeld was referring to the war in Iraq, but he could have been talking about the looming midterm elections. Senator Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "If we can take back the Congress, we will stop that radical, right-wing, Bush-Cheney agenda." Everybody is talking tough about the war, about the election, about the political stakes, and about each other. An unidentified woman in a political ad claims, "I met Harold at the Playboy party." The rubber is hitting the road, and we'll cover it all tonight with Peter Baker of the Washington Post, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, James Barnes of National Journal, and Jeanne Cummings of the Wall Street Journal.

"Magnetic Storm"--On March 13, 1989, the lights went out all across Canada and the eastern seaboard of the United States as far south as New York. The most serious power grid failure in American history was caused by a magnetic storm in the earth's upper atmosphere, itself triggered by the eruption of a huge flare from the surface of the Sun. Unusual as this event may seem, many scientists today are beginning to worry that it may be a harbinger of things to come, and that changes to the planet's magnetic field could make earth ever more vulnerable to deadly radiation from space. This film explores one of the least-known but most serious threats to life on earth.

On November 25, 2002, Congress established the Department of Homeland Security. That same day, it created billions of dollars in government spending. That money soon flowed into the hands of private corporations charged with creating systems and technology to make the country safer. A newspaper famed for its investigative reporting -- THE WASHINGTON POST -- has been following that money.

Working alone in Iraq over eight months, filmmaker Laura Poitras (P.O.V. "Flag Wars") created an extraordinary, intimate portrait of Iraqis living under U.S. occupation. Her principal focus is Dr. Riyadh, an Iraqi medical doctor, father of six and Sunni political candidate. An outspoken critic of the occupation, he is equally passionate about the need to establish democracy in Iraq, arguing that Sunni participation in the January 2005 elections is essential. Yet all around him, Dr. Riyadh sees only chaos, as his waiting room fills each day with patients suffering the physical and mental effects of ever-increasing violence. Poitras gained remarkable access to the Sunni community, U.S. military and the U.N., resulting in this powerful mosaic of daily life in Iraq not seen in the mainstream media.

In the aftermath of the fall of Saddam Hussein, a group of Americans led by Ambassador L. Paul Bremer III set off to Baghdad to build a new nation and establish democracy in the Arab Middle East. One year later, with Bremer forced to secretly exit what some have called "the most dangerous place on earth," the group left behind lawlessness, insurgency, economic collapse, death, destruction - and much of their idealism. Three years later, as the U.S. continues to look for an exit strategy, the government the Americans helped create and the infrastructure they designed are being tested. FRONTLINE producer Michael Kirk follows the early efforts and ideals of this group as they tried to seize control and disband the Iraqi police, army and Baathist government - and how they became hardened along the way to the realities of postwar Iraq. The program is based on numerous first-person interviews and extensive documentation from the FRONTLINE team that produced "Rumsfeld's War," "The Torture Question" and "The Dark Side."

What is the one principle, belief, or cause for which you would sacrifice everything - including your life? Ethical, spiritual, and ideological values that are central to the human experience find their voice in the documentary film, Last Best Hope, an intimate, riveting, little-known story about the ordinary men and women in the Belgian Resistance and their extraordinary acts to save and repatriate downed Allied airmen during the Second World War. At the heart of the story is 85-year old American Bill Grosvenor, a P-47 Thunderbolt pilot who fell from the skies over Belgium and into the hands of the Resistance in 1943. Nearly sixty years later, Grosvenor is reunited with his helpers in Belgium who fought against tyranny and oppression in their homes, in their neighborhoods, and in the streets of Brussels. Resistance fighters share for the first time their daring and heartrending stories, allowing Last Best Hope to explore the myriad motivations that propel one stranger to help another, despite the risk to his or her own life and everything dear. As unexpectedly as the Gestapo snared Grosvenor in an early morning safehouse raid, Last Best Hope transports the viewer to another place and time with a universal message about faith, hope, and the undefeatable power of the human spirit. Stunning and cathartic, Last Best Hope takes even the most jaded WWII film buff by surprise.

Election year meltdown: the House and the Senate both up for grabs as the White House grapples with setbacks in Iraq and North Korea, tonight on "Washington Week." Forget about red states and blue states: Republicans this year are seeing only a sea of purple in one bad poll after another. As House incumbents battle pre-election investigation. Rep. Curt Weldon (R-Pa) says, "I would not have wished this for anyone and three weeks before the election it makes the campaign that much more difficult." And some Republicans speculate about what will happen if they lose the Senate, too. Sen. John McCain (R-Az) said, "I think I'll just commit suicide. I don't want to face that eventuality because I don't think it's going to happen." Meanwhile, the president hits the campaign trail while coping with bad news from Iraq and sobering news from North Korea that has rattled old allies. "The United States has the will and the capability to meet the full range - and I underscore full range - of its deterrent and security commitments", claims Secretary Of State Condoleezza Rice. Threats, political and international. Covering those stories this week: Dan Balz of the Washington Post, Michael Duffy of Time Magazine, Doyle McManus of the Los Angeles Times, and Andrea Mitchell of NBC News.

All elections all the time, we cover the Republicans, the Democrats, the money, and the ads, tonight on Washington Week. "No one can predict the future with absolute certainty, so you ought to just back off, take a look at it, relax, understand that it's complicated, it's difficult," said Secretary Of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. Donald Rumsfeld was referring to the war in Iraq, but he could have been talking about the looming midterm elections. Senator Hillary Clinton (D-NY) said, "If we can take back the Congress, we will stop that radical, right-wing, Bush-Cheney agenda." Everybody is talking tough about the war, about the election, about the political stakes, and about each other. An unidentified woman in a political ad claims, "I met Harold at the Playboy party." The rubber is hitting the road, and we'll cover it all tonight with Peter Baker of the Washington Post, Janet Hook of the Los Angeles Times, James Barnes of National Journal, and Jeanne Cummings of the Wall Street Journal.
