Vanished South Dakota: Towns of Yesterday

Visit the remnants of once-thriving towns to discover what lead to the birth, boom and demise of former communities throughout the state.

"Change is inevitable. I felt honored to have been given the opportunity to look for these old places, people and stories.

"Vanished" provides a vehicle for folks to share and remember the past for a much bigger audience. I find myself taking as many backroads as I can, looking for humps across the landscape where a railroad once lived. Documenting deteriorating homesteads so I can go back and dig up history on them. Even more exciting, my kids are enjoying the travels and discussions with the locals, as they've asked me to take them to a few of these vanished locations. If we encourage our youth to explore history, document it and share the facts with others, preservation of 'yesterday,' will be more accessible into the future."

PINE RIDGE THORPES' CHARLES SCHRADER JR. PERSEVERES

The role basketball plays in Indian Country can be difficult to describe. James Giago Davies, who covers sports closely and keenly for Native Sun News, wrote in an article about Pine Ridge Thorpes' head basketball coach Casey Means: "Off the reservation, a coach and his team can connect with each other, and their community, but however much success this produces, however deep and meaningful the association, it can never reach the scope and depth of tribal identity. The coach, the players, the fans, are connected by more than just community, or even blood, and no matter where the Oglala reside, or how dire their circumstance, when the tribe is at its best, that connection is as ancient and resilient as the vast buffalo grass prairie itself." ("Iron Sharpens Iron," Native Sun News, March 22, 2019).

By anyone's standards, Pine Ridge experienced dire circumstance in 2016 when the community was rocked by 14 homicides, including the shooting deaths of 13-year-old Te'Ca Clifford in July and 34-year-old Annie Colhoff in September. Oglala Sioux Tribe and federal law enforcement officials attributed Colhoff's death and the 2016 spike to an increase in illegal drugs, which are often produced in places like Denver, and too often accompanied by an escalation of violence and firearms. Of course, the methamphetamine epidemic is not limited to West River or reservations. In 2016, Minnehaha County had 10 homicide cases and a sizeable increase in meth-related drug felonies. South Dakota law enforcement made 3,684 arrests for meth in 2018.

Since 2016, Pine Ridge police have expanded anti-drug and anti-meth measures. Losses to homicide have dropped back even below the pre-2016 average of five per year. But the impact of death and violence in 2016 were more than headlines and statistics for Charles Schrader Jr. and his family. On October 16 of that disheartening year, Schrader, today a senior point guard on the Pine Ridge Thorpes basketball team, was just a month away from the start of his freshman basketball season, when his older brother Vincent "Vinny" Brewer III was gunned down outside the SuAnne Big Crow Recreation Center in Pine Ridge. "We were close our whole lives," says Schrader. "He was helping me work on my game. The day before it happened, I was actually playing in a basketball tournament with him." Brewer, a 29-year-old father of three, struggled with addiction. Those charged are accused of killing Brewer after trying to collect an alleged drug debt. Brewer had been a popular figure in Pine Ridge as well as a celebrated basketball player.

Stunned with grief, Schrader eventually turned to basketball for some solace. "It was really hard for me to find the love for the game," says Schrader. "But I realized every time I was at home, I was alone and depressed. Every time I come to the gym, all that would go away. My family really enjoyed watching me play as a freshman. It brought light to my family that was down and really helped bring my family up from my brother's passing. It was just light in the dark times."

After scoring 14 straight points with eight minutes left against Winnebago at the 2016 Lakota Nation Invitational, Schrader, who is 6'4", went on to get a starting spot as a freshman. The summer before his sophomore year, he grew even more determined. "I was working in the gym every day, getting quicker, stronger. I was trying to get my vertical up and I started dunking. And I got carried away with myself." A fractured tibia and snapped patella tendon benched Schrader for the entirety of his sophomore season. "It really hurt me because when I lost my brother, basketball season was a month away," says Schrader. "So I literally had to hold my feelings in and stay strong for my family. But when I got hurt, it all just hit me at once. And I was in depression for a while."

Enter Casey Means. Schrader's uncle and a 1996 Pine Ridge graduate, Means had briefly coached before, but soured on it after feeling he didn't get a fair shot at building a program. Schrader asked Means and Shawn Keith to strengthen him for his junior season. "We probably lived in this gym for two years," says Means. "Us three in the gym, six in the morning, eight at night. And eventually I started to get that love back." When the Thorpes coach stepped down, Means applied, was hired, and instituted rigorous offseason training. "Charles is the one that paved the way by doing the drills, getting extra shots, lifting weights. If it wasn't for Charles, I probably wouldn't be here coaching at all."

Means has known Schrader for most of his nephew's life. "Since I've known him, he's had a ball in his hand. I'm proud of Charles from what he has overcome, how he goes about his daily life, how he carries others, how he's humble and respectful. Everything he's been through, he's come back harder. He picks everybody up. He's a leader."

SDPB SUPPORTER SPOTLIGHT

Gene Brownell, Athletic Director
Aberdeen Public Schools

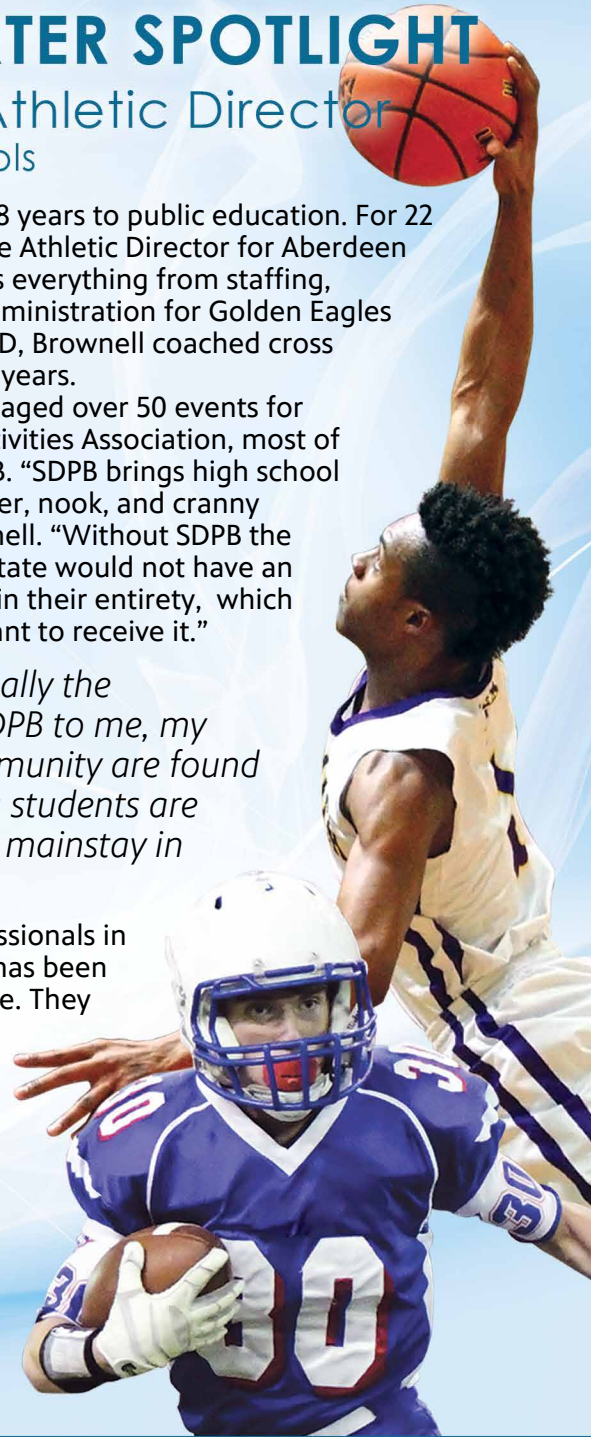

Gene Brownell has dedicated 48 years to public education. For 22 of those 48, Brownell has been the Athletic Director for Aberdeen Public Schools, where he oversees everything from staffing, scheduling, transportation and administration for Golden Eagles athletics. Prior to his position as AD, Brownell coached cross country and track and field for 26 years.

In his tenure, Brownell has managed over 50 events for the South Dakota High School Activities Association, most of which have been covered by SDPB. "SDPB brings high school activities and sports to every corner, nook, and cranny throughout the state," says Brownell. "Without SDPB the average, everyday citizen of our state would not have an opportunity to view these events in their entirety, which is a great gift for all those who want to receive it."

"Personally and professionally the opportunities afforded by SDPB to me, my school system, and our community are found nowhere else. South Dakota students are placed front and center as a mainstay in the productions by SDPB."

"My relationship with the professionals in front of and behind the cameras has been a great learning experience for me. They bring to the table a dedication to purpose and professionalism that rubs off on everyone with whom they come into contact. These ambassadors for SDPB do a wonderful job of telling the story of high school sports and activities in our state."

SDPB thanks Gene Brownell for his dedication to South Dakota's students and for his high words of praise.

In this groundbreaking new series based on his bestselling book The Square and the Tower, Niall Ferguson's Networkworld visits network theorists, social scientists and data analysts to explore the history of social networks. Ferguson examines the intersection of social media, technology and the spread of cultural movements. Reviewing classic experiments and cutting-edge research, he demonstrates how human behavior, disruptive technology and profit can energize ideas and ultimately change the world.

When skeletal remains of at least 10 people, including several infants, turned up in the basement of Benjamin Franklin's British residence, people wondered if the Founding Father might have had a much darker side, as the bones had been meticulously cut and drilled. They weren't the victims of violent acts. Rather, they were used for the purposes of an illegal anatomy school that helped shape modern medicine. Secrets of the Dead Ben Franklin's Bones includes interviews with medical historians who suspect that Franklin was aware of the bodies in his basement, but did he know the extent of what was going on and why?

At 97 years old, Ruth Gruber still has that same sharp intellect that propelled her to become the world's youngest PhD at age 20. At age 24, she became a New York Herald Tribune reporter and photographer and was the first journalist to enter the Soviet Arctic. A trusted member of the Roosevelt Administration during WWII, a feminist before feminism, Gruber was never just an observer, she was a participant in the making of history. Gruber covered the Middle East throughout the 1940's. Ahead of Time: The Extraordinary Journey of Ruth Gruber combines footage of Gruber traveling back to Israel, with interviews and archival material.

When 20-something Chinese filmmaker Nanfu Wang first came to America in 2011, Florida seemed like an exotic frontier. In Independent Lens I Am Another You, Wang encounters Dylan, a blonde, charismatic, 22-year-old drifter who has left a comfortable home and loving family in Utah for a life of intentional homelessness and unfettered adventure. Fascinated by his choice, Wang follows Dylan with her camera. What begins as a quest for freedom is soon upended, unfolding instead as a haunting and unforgettable story of family, illness, and love.

Schrader acknowledges his leadership, but humbly. “Well, they look up to me, but people always tell me that I should be scoring a lot. But I believe in these guys and I don’t believe I have to score all the time to contribute to this team. They don’t want to play with the guy who’s shooting all the shots. I’d rather get my team involved, get their chemistry up. That’s what’s going to matter at the end of the year.”

Last year, Means, Schrader, and the Thorpes finished third in the state tournament after a 57-51 nail biter against top-ranked Tea Area in the semi-finals. This year, the Thorpes have been in the top of the Region 7A standings. Schrader has averaged 14 points and 7.5 rebounds for Pine Ridge, was nominated McDonald’s All-American, and named to the Lakota Nation Invitational All-Tournament Team. “He reminds me of our grandpa, from the 1800s,” says Means. “Respectful. Watches his elders. Carries himself in a good way. Doesn’t talk about others. I love him like a son.”

Colleges have been looking at Schrader, who would like to go to school for business. He considers opening a 24/7 gym for teens and kids. “Especially at Pine Ridge, because we’re known for basketball here. It’s a blessing to be here, be a part of the Thorpes family. We take Thorpes family really seriously around here. We’re in one circle.”

Meet Schrader, his coach and family in an online digital feature on Facebook.com/SoDakPB and during SDPB Sports coverage of SD High School Basketball Tournaments on SDPB TV and SDPB.org. For basketball schedule, see p. 11.

East Lake Meadows: A Public Housing Story

In October of 1970, the Atlanta Housing Authority opened a public housing community on the edge of Atlanta called East Lake Meadows. Over the next 25 years, many thousands of low-income Atlantans, mostly African-American, would call it home. Stories from residents reveal hardship and resilience, and raise critical questions about race, poverty, and who is deserving of public assistance. The Ken Burns-produced East Lake Meadows: A Public Housing Story gives voice to some of the most marginalized people in our society and raises critical questions about how we, as a nation, have created concentrated poverty and limited housing opportunity for African Americans, and what can be done to address it.

One Child Nation

China's one-child policy forever changed the lives of mothers and children. One Child Nation follows filmmaker Nanfu Wang's return to China to speak with her mother and brother and explore the ripple effect of this social experiment, following the birth of her first child. The birth was a life-changing experience that caused her to become interested in uncovering the untold history of China's One-Child policy for the generations of mothers and children whose lives have been forever changed by this haphazard governmental social experiment.
