BEE-FRIENDING SOUTH DAKOTA'S IMPORTANT POLLINATORS (p. 4)

NATURE MY GARDEN OF A THOUSAND BEES

IN MEMORY...

Melissa Sievers passed away August 19, 2021, at Sanford USD Medical Center in Sioux Falls, SD, at the age of 42 years, after warrior-like battles with lymphoma and West Nile virus. Melissa leaves behind her devoted husband Nick Sievers and their sons Owen, age 9, and Isaac, age 4.

Melissa worked as a videographer/editor, photographer, and producer for SDPB for 19 years. In that time, Melissa told countless stories about the people, places, and food and culture across South Dakota, most recently as producer for Dakota Life. Melissa said of her work: "The people I visit with are so passionate. So many of the stories are about tenacity and connection to the land. I feel like I pay tribute not only to people who came before, but to a variety of people exploring and trying to do things differently."

In addition to videography and photography, Melissa loved nature and outdoor activities: bicycling, kayaking, hiking, morel mushroom hunting, gardening, and raising vegetables and chickens at home on the farm she shared with Nick and the boys. Melissa also loved introducing her young sons to the natural world. Owen and Isaac often accompanied Mom on her many outdoor adventures as well as on photo and video shoots.

Celebration of Life services were held for Melissa Aug. 24 at the United Church of Christ

MELISSA SIEVERS JULY 6, 1979 - AUGUST 19, 2021

Congregational Church in Vermillion.

Melissa's ashes were placed under a new oak tree near her beloved garden and chicken run at the country home she shared with Nick, Owen, and Isaac.

SDPB staff are saddened by this tremendous loss. Melissa was a bright, creative colleague and a dear friend to many. Her smile, positivity and "never-say-never" attitude impacted her co-workers as well as the hundreds of South Dakotans whose stories she loved telling. We are all grateful and better for having known her.

Melissa's husband Nick Sievers is thankful for the outpouring of generous support. In gratitude, Nick wants to help other children and families, and asks that contributions celebrating Melissa's unconditional love and generosity be sent to the Vermillion Food Pantry at www.vermillionfoodpantry.org/donate or Vermillion Food Pantry, 9 Court Street, Vermillion, SD, 57069.

Bee AWARE

by Katy Beem

Our neighbors probably do not appreciate our lawn quite as much as the bees do. Each spring the white clover and dandelions — two breakfast flowers for bees, in seasonal terms — bloom unrestrained in a friendly merger with the Kentucky bluegrass. Milkweeds crowd the juniper shrubs like an ungainly landscape design fail. I smile sheepishly as adjacent, our neighbor patrols his turf, liquidating the first hint of invaders with copious pumps of Roundup. The weedy interlopers, along with hyssop, echinacea and bergamot I’ve planted in the backyard, comprise my little bee buffet.

Admittedly, we can feel anxious and unneighborly about our weed-friendly lawn. The social expectations for a green glade and disdain for stingers run strong. Even our 10-year-old, cool as a cucumber in our yard, pantomimes terror amidst his friends should a beneficial insect stray to its deadly misfortune onto the school playground. Woe to the nesting ground bee minding her own beeswax on the soccer field.

Watching the pollinators work our humble nectar and pollen circuit is mesmerizing. This month, a new episode of Nature presents the genesis of a British man’s bee obsession. My Garden of a Thousand Bees features a veteran wildlife cameraman, restless and seeking refuge from the pandemic, filming the bees in his small urban garden. Soon he’d catalogued over 60 species of bees and even be-friended an individual bee throughout its entire lifespan.

More Bees Than People

Approximately 400 species of bees are native to South Dakota. When we visualize bees, many of us default to the iconic: honeybees and bumblebees. “The archetype we have in our minds is that a bee is black, yellow, fuzzy and kind of largish,” says Amanda Bachmann, Pesticide Education & Urban Entomology Field Specialist at the South Dakota State University Extension Regional Center in Pierre. But South Dakota bee species vary wildly. They can be bright metallic green or resemble tiny wasps. “Just because people don’t see insects in an area doesn’t mean they aren’t there,” says Bachmann. “If we increase areas of habitat, we can really do a lot to support the populations that exist in the margins.”

South Dakota's wild and managed honeybees are chiefly threatened by habitat loss, agrochemicals, and parasites. According to the South Dakota Department of Agriculture's Apiary Inspection Program, approximately 270 beekeepers are registered in the state, with about 30% producing commercial honey. Bret Adee is a partner in Adee Honey Farms with his brother Kelvin and father Richard. Adee Honey Farms has over 80,000 hives. Like many commercial apiarists, Adee Honey Farms trucks their bees to winter in California for the annual almond pollination season. Bees cross-pollinate crops like apples and blueberries, but Adee says honeybees also benefit auto-pollinated crops like sunflowers and soybeans. Adee cites a study from Dr. Dennis vanEngelsdorp, professor of entomology at the University of Maryland, that puts last year's honeybee losses at around 44%. "When I was a young man, we'd think anything over 5% was a mismanagement problem," says Adee. "Forty-four percent is crazy, if you consider a livestock business with 44% losses." Adee says some of our agrochemicals weren't screened properly for their impact on beneficial insects by the Environmental Protection Agency. "They approved some insecticides that were very detrimental to our beneficial insects that were very kind to humans," says Adee. "It was going in the right direction, but didn't look at the big enough picture." Adee also says farm efficiency that destroys peripheral forage areas contributes to the stress on bees. "At one time, food like milkweeds was everywhere. Now, milkweeds are kind of hard to find."

Bachmann is particularly worried about the vulnerability of unmanaged bees. "Not to discount whatsoever how difficult it is to be a beekeeper these days. It's getting more expensive and more challenging," says Bachmann. "But I do also try to get people to be more aware of the other 399 kinds of species. Honeybees tend to be active all season, we make sure they reproduce, we make more queens. Meanwhile, mason bees, longhorn bees, and bumblebees can be tied to only a certain subset of plants that may only be present in a restricted geographic range or even restricted time during the growing season. Bumblebees are like little flying panda bears as indicators for habitat loss and perhaps for endangered and extinction rates for our native bee species."

Integrated Pest Management

The South Dakota Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources proposes and enforces the policies and sets the statutes for pesticide application, while Bachmann and the Extension Service provide the training and education for application that is safe and effective for both applicators and the environment. Bachmann's position extends to assisting folks in the identification of insects and the best practices for Integrated Pest Management (IPM), both large- and small-scale.

IPM targets the life cycles of pests and how they interact with the environment, from farms to homes and backyards. "In a lot of cases, the way you solve your pest issue is perhaps not with a chemical intervention, but with something else, like maybe changing your planting date of your crop," says Bachmann. "I try to give our pesticide applicators at least an introduction to IPM concepts, because while they're the ones making the pesticide applications, they're not necessarily the people who are making the decisions about what pesticides to apply. We do make sure that when we're talking to agronomists and crop consultants, that we cover IPM a lot, because for things like plant diseases especially, it's not always a fungicide that's going to solve your problem. We're actually breeding crops to be resistant to certain diseases."

One issue Bachmann runs into for laypeople is what constitutes a pesticide. "It's so important to be really cognizant of what pesticide product you're using," says Bachmann. "A lot of people, when they use the word pesticide, they don't realize that covers insecticides, herbicides, fungicides, everything that ends in -cide. People tell me, 'Oh, I don't spray pesticides. I only use herbicides.' But herbicides are pesticides."

When it comes to wasps, folks often reach for the Ortho or Raid. "Homeowners ask, 'Well, I've got these wasps that are getting into my house. How do I kill them?'"

CALL THE MIDWIFE

SDPB October Listings

There's no shortage of drama in the 10th season of Call the Midwife. It's 1966, and it's a testing time for the midwives. But there's excitement, too, as the women's rights movement intensifies. With Trixie's help, Sister Julienne is determined to steer Nonnatus House out of its financial quandary. Dr Turner deals with an array of difficult cases including a former soldier involved in nuclear test explosions. Sister Monica Joan experiences a crisis of faith. Sister Frances realizes she needs to be a little less spiritual if she's to really connect with the local women.

Impossible Builds is an all-access look at the creation of some of the world's most ambitious, technologically advanced construction projects. From subaquatic homes and ultimate luxury, to futuristic towers and pencil-thin skyscrapers, these are the structures they said could never be built. Now, using revolutionary technology and cutting-edge construction materials, three previously impossible builds are taking shape across the world.

Celebrate the recipients of the 34th Annual Hispanic Heritage Awards. The evening includes performances and appearances by some of the country's most celebrated Hispanic artists and visionaries. The historic program, which was created by the White House in 1988 to commemorate the establishment of Hispanic Heritage Month in America, is among the highest honors by Latinos for Latinos and supported by 40 national Hispanic-serving institutions and features top Latinx leaders being honored by top performers and personalities. The Awards, modeled after last year's PBS broadcast, will feature more intimately filmed performances and Honoree segments captured on location across the United States and Latin America.

Dakota Life

Greetings from Milbank

This month Dakota Life ventures northeastward to feature Milbank. The seat of Grant County, Milbank sports a population of about 3,400 folks and is known as the home of American Legion Baseball.

Dakota Life: Greetings from Milbank premieres on SDPB1 and SDPB.org Thursday, October 7, at 8pm (7 MT) and rebroadcasts Sunday, October 10, at 1pm (noon MT).

American Legion Baseball.

Holland Grist Windmill.

Holland Grist Windmill

Built by English settler Henry Holland in 1884, the Milbank Grist Mill was completely reconstructed in 2009. It stands 44 feet high and is fitted with four sails that are each seven-feet wide and 30-feet long. Tours and live demonstrations are offered several times a year.

Piano Man

We'll travel to Stockholm, South Dakota, to meet piano repairman and keyboard collector Steve Misener. Misener's been collecting pianos, organs, and other keyed instruments for nearly 40 years. Most of the 130 instruments in his collection date to the 18th and 19th centuries. Some can be connected in one way or another to musical greats such as Haydn and Brahms. Others were rescued just before they could be thrown out. Steve Misener has travelled the world looking for information about particular instruments and he's considered one of the top experts in the field of vintage keyboards.

American Legion Baseball

Milbank is the birthplace of American Legion baseball in the United States. It was founded in 1925 with the first conversations of a baseball league for the youth with the American Legion. It's been 95 years since its inception, and the city of Milbank is still passionate about the sport.

Kingpin: Bowler Mike Mach

Mike Mach of Milbank has been bowling since the 1980s, and recently won a National Senior Bowling Championship (ages 60-64) in Nevada. Today he's celebrating his accomplishment doing what he loves most – bowling at his local spot. ♡

Fiona Shaw guest stars in the second season of this spinoff of The Missing. Masterpiece Baptiste follows retired detective Julien Baptiste (Tchéky Karyo) as he delves into Budapest's corrupt underworld to find a British Ambassador's family who go missing on a skiing holiday in the Hungarian mountains. Ambassador Emma Chambers (Shaw) is thrust into the crosshairs of Baptiste's most complex case to date, as the detective navigates an untrustworthy Hungarian police force and international media interest as he hunts for her husband and two sons.

Part detective story, part true-life drama, Secrets of the Dead Magellan's Crossing unearths evidence from the first circumnavigation of the world 500 years ago, challenging prevailing ideas and throwing fresh light on unexplained events. Using the most up-to-date science in the laboratory and in the field, scientists and researchers examine the missing pieces of each puzzle, completing the picture of what had been merely an assemblage of suppositions.

A documentary series described as an exploration of the great classical composers' music through performance, travel and conversation with artists and experts. The aim is to educate and build the next generation of classical music listeners. In Great Performances Now Hear This: Beethoven's Ghost, the eponymous spirit attends the recording session of the Beethoven "Ghost" trio, who has been visiting rehearsals and performances to analyze his successes and mistakes. Following him is the ghost of Sigmund Freud, who is spending his afterlife analyzing the great minds of history, including (the ghosts of) many great composers. He has offered to help the famously stormy Beethoven resolve his troubles — if he is willing.

The story of America's immigration system through the eyes of Luis and Judy on America ReFramed Five Years North. Luis is an undocumented Guatemalan boy who arrives alone in New York City with little support and many responsibilities. Judy is a veteran ICE agent with Cuban American and Puerto Rican roots, who must weigh the human cost of her work against the future her family would face without her paycheck.

When doctors classified homosexuality as a mental illness to be “cured,” they employed cruel treatments like electroshock and lobotomies. Independent Lens Cured shows how LGBTQ+ activists and their allies fought back — and won a momentous victory when the American Psychiatric Association removed homosexuality from its manual of mental disorders in 1973.

SDPB2: Wednesday, October 13, 7pm & Midnight (6 & 11 MT)

The Good Road offers a raw, insider look at the complex business of global charity. In this series, hosts Earl Bridges and Craig Martin—longtime philanthropy veterans, globetrotters and best friends—trek around the world to meet people who are making a difference. As they explore familiar places like Alabama and foreign destinations like Thailand and Tanzania, the hosts discover the limitless power of good. In each 26-minute episode, viewers will learn how community, culture and compassion intersect as people overcome some of the world's greatest challenges.

A glimpse into the lives of adults in Chile living with Down syndrome, POV The Grown-Ups illuminates legal, financial and societal restrictions that diminish the freedoms of Chile's developmentally disabled population. The film places the viewer in a center for individuals with Down syndrome, where the film's main characters attend school and staff an in-house catering business. One of the regular therapy sessions the middle-aged students attend takes place in a room with a sign that reads, “Taller Adultez Consciente,” Spanish for “Conscious Adult Workshop.” Inside, counselors help students cultivate a sense of self-worth and independence. However, the experiences of the central characters in the outside world seldom reflect those lessons.

Warrior Women

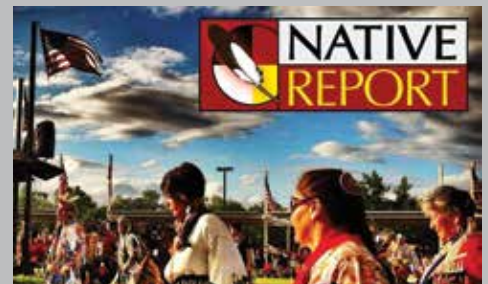

SDPB1: Tuesday, October 10, 9pm (8 MT)

A scene in Warrior Women follows Madonna Thunder Hawk, (Oohenumpa Lakota), well into her 70s, sprinting up aluminum bleachers at a sunny outdoor stadium in Eagle Butte. "I do this mainly for myself," says Thunder Hawk, catching her breath but always in motion. "If you're not physically able to do community work – hey, get on the couch, grab the remote. Then complain and whine about politics and stuff. That's why I do it. The only thing I'm running against is myself." Warrior Women is one of the first projects about the Red Power movement that redirects the camera from well-known AIM members like Russell Means and Dennis Banks to female organizers like Thunder Hawk and her daughter, Marcella Gilbert (Lakota/Dakota). The film traces Thunder Hawk's activism from the occupations of Alcatraz and Wounded Knee to matriarch-led survivor schools to NoDAPL protests at Standing Rock to today.

Native Report

SDPB1: Sundays at 12:30pm (11:30 MT)

Native Report is an entertaining, informative magazine style series that celebrates Native American culture and heritage, listens to tribal elders, and talks to some of the most powerful and influential leaders of Indian Country today. Produced by WDSE in Duluth, Minnesota, Native Report is co-anchored by Rita Aspinwall (Anangikwe), an enrolled band member of Fond du Lac Band of Lake Superior Chippewa and Ernest (Ernie) Stevens, an enrolled member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin.

Indian Country Today

SDPB1: Sundays at Noon (11am MT)

Indian Country Today is a 30-minute news broadcast that covers the Indigenous world, including American Indians and Alaska Natives. Hosted by Aliyah Chavez, (Kewa Pueblo), is part of Indian Country Today, a public media daily digital news platform whose primary focus is delivering news to a national audience.

SOUTH DAKOTA FOCUS

Join SDPB's Jackie Hendry for in-depth coverage of topics important to South Dakotans.

South Dakota Focus: Immigration in SD

October's South Dakota Focus features stories of immigration and building community. Que Pasa Sioux Falls founder Nancy Reynoza shares her family's journey to South Dakota and the need for Spanish-language news in the state's largest city. Host Jackie Hendry also visits Huron and talks with members of the Karen community of refugees that have revived a shrinking town. SDPB1: Thursday, October 28, 8pm (7 MT)

Watch It Again

South Dakota Focus: Suicide Prevention

Data from the first three months of 2021 put South Dakota on track for a record-breaking year of deaths by suicide. South Dakota Focus launched the new season with a personal story of suicide survival. Bridget Swier is the communications and outreach director with The Front Porch Coalition, a non-profit suicide prevention and postvention organization that serves Pennington, Meade, and parts of Lawrence County. Eight years after surviving her own suicide attempt, Swier responds to scenes of recent suicide deaths to comfort loved ones. Throughout South Dakota, health systems, law enforcement, and others are finding innovative ways to increase access for mental health care—from a hotline dedicated to the state's agriculture producers, to tablets that connect a counselor to a person in crisis from across the state. ♡

Fifty & Forward: An Anniversary Celebration of NPR

SDPB Radio & SDPB.org: Monday, Oct. 4, Noon & 7pm (11 am & 6pm MT)

May 2021 marked the 50th anniversary of NPR’s first on-air original broadcast. In the last half century, NPR and SDPB have been essential, trusted sources for local events and cultural programming featuring music, local history, education and the arts. To mark this milestone, we’re reflecting on — and renewing — our commitment to serve an audience that reflects America and to Hear Every Voice.

Fifty years ago, All Things Considered broadcast for the first time. From the start, NPR forged a new path. When NPR began promoting its first original programming in 1971, it billed All Things Considered as a “radio revolution.” A news network like it, helmed by women, hadn’t existed in the United States. ♡

On Being: What Does It Mean to Be Human?

Created by Krista Tippett in 2003, On Being began with a controversial idea for a public radio conversation that would treat religious and spiritual aspects of life as seriously as politics and economics. On Being takes up the great questions of meaning in 21st-century lives with guests such as writer Luis Alberto Urrea, psychotherapist Esther Perel, physicist Brian Greene, U.S. poet laureate Joy Harjo, linguist/explorer Robert McFarlane and others.

On Being with Krista Tippett airs Sundays at 9am (8 MT) on SDPB Radio and SDPB.org.

Latino Americans is the first major documentary series for television to chronicle the rich and varied history and experiences of Latinos, who have helped shape North America over the last 500-plus years and have become, with more than 50 million people, the largest minority group in the U.S. The changing and yet repeating context of American history provides a backdrop for the drama of individual lives. It is a story of immigration and redemption, of anguish and celebration, of the gradual construction of a new American identity that connects and empowers millions of people today.

In VOCES Letters to Eloisa the lens turns to legendary Cuban poet José Lezama Lima.

Lima is widely considered to be one of most influential figures in Latin American literature in the twentieth century. In Bosch's film, his life story is told through letters written to his sister Eloisa, living in exile, between 1961 and 1976. The film is a first-hand look at the transformative impact of politics on the family and society; and shows the struggle between Cuba's revolutionary government and artists and intellectuals, as the space for creative freedom disappeared in Cuba during the first two decades of the revolution.

Emanuel Ax with the South Dakota Symphony Orchestra

Boston music critic David Moran said of Emanuel Ax’s performance of Beethoven: “To my knowledge there has never been piano performance more beautiful, cushier, richer ... never before another of such tone and evenness and roundness. Emanuel Ax is simply superhuman in these respects.”

World-renowned pianist Ax launched the SDSO’s centennial season with Beethoven’s “Emperor” Concerto in May, 2021. This performance marks the finale of Mr. Ax’s week-long SDSO residency, including concerts at local schools, hospitals, and community centers.

IMAGES OF THE PAST:

OLD GUITARS

& THE LOCAL MUSICIANS WHO LOVE THEM

Nick Schwebach.

Scott Simpson.

Jay Gilbertson.

James Van Nuys.

A new documentary from SDPB reveals what local guitar professionals appreciate about their chosen instruments and taking you on a musical journey of the qualities and sounds that their favorite instruments can produce.

The half-hour program features:

Boyd Bristow, Sioux Falls, who owns and owns and plays a rare model of Martin acoustic guitar. He also regularly plays a classic Gibson electric guitar that he bought new in the 1970s.

Jay Gilbertson, Yankton, and his 1964 Fender Stratocaster. Gilbertson talks about the unique materials and hand-made quality of Fender Strats built before 1965.

Michael Hilson, Yankton, is a guitar instructor in the music department at the University of South Dakota. He's also a performer fluent in several genres, including classical and jazz.

Nick Schwebach, Wakonda, who often plays a 1949 Gibson that he says is perfect for re-creating the sound of music that was popular during the 1930s.

Scott Simpson, Spearfish, still owns and plays a guitar that was passed down to him many years ago by a relative. Simpson shares the connection between instruments, musicians, and audiences and says that old guitars, in some ways, have lives of their own.

James Van Nuys, Rapid City, plays a variety of guitars including a somewhat unusual bronze-bodied resonator guitar. Resonator guitars were popular in the 1920's and 1930's before electric amplification was available.

Take a journey down gearhead lane – experienced guitarists will find the artists' insights enlightening, beginning guitarists will find them encouraging, and we can all enjoy the soundtrack. ♡

Old Guitars and the Musicians Who Love Them premieres on SDPB1 Thursday, Oct. 14, at 8pm (7 MT) and rebroadcasts Sunday, Oct. 17, at 1pm (noon MT).

Music Matters

Music Matters, a musical series partnership from SDPB and Levitt at the Falls, explores musical artists performing this concert season. Host Apolonia Davalos explores the how and why music matters to our communities and the featured artists, including:

The Okee Dokee Brothers — American bluegrass and American roots children's music duo from Minneapolis.

The ReMinders — Brussels-born emcee Big Samir and Queens-born emcee/ vocalist Aja Black perform soulful roots music.

Ashley Ballou-Bonnema and Breathe Bravely — Sioux Falls-based vocal teacher Ashley Ballou-Bonnema and the Breathe Bravely project help people defy a diagnosis of cystic fibrosis through the art of singing.

123 Andres — Latin Grammy-winning music duo with catchy Spanish-language music for the whole family.

Wish You Were Here!

at the Billy Talbot Homestead

Wish You Were Here with host Eliza Blue returns for a second season. This time the traveling music series works as a visual ethnographic almanac, following the ecology and seasonality of raising food on the high plains, interspersed with original stories, art of and about nature, and songs about life on the prairie. Blue offers a preview of the season.

Join Blue as we visit Billy Talbot, bass player from the band Crazy Horse, in western South Dakota. Talbot and Blue duet on a Talbot original. "The episode starts with a little arc about ghost towns that are being revitalized," says Blue. "Billy and his wife live on a homestead that had been essentially abandoned. They've turned it into an amazing house with a music barn, where he recorded a bunch of his solo albums."

SDPB SUPPORTER SPOTLIGHT

KAREN MILLER, RAPID CITY

Karen Miller grew up on a farm near Draper, SD, where her parents, Doris and Fred Fredericksen, grew wheat and raised cattle. She graduated with a bachelor's degree in sociology from Dakota Wesleyan in Mitchell and a master's in social work from the University of Chicago. She and her young family lived coast-to-coast: New York, Illinois, Michigan, and California. In 1983, with her children grown and her parents advancing in years, she moved to Rapid City. She served as a social worker for Lutheran Social Services, specializing in individual and marital therapy, divorce mediation, and employee assistance programs. In 1995, she established a private counseling practice.

Karen says her parents were the original family supporters of SDPB. "Draper did not have a lot of alternatives. They were very excited when public broadcasting came to Reliance. They watched public television and listened to public radio until they died. When they passed away, I upped my support in honor of them. They had been so appreciative of what public broadcasting brought to South Dakota. It sort of feels like a family tradition."

Today Karen enjoys news and Masterpiece programming. "I wake up to Morning Edition every morning and I listen to BBC Overnight. I watch PBS NewsHour and Masterpiece."

"I think the news is the most extensive and includes a perspective that fits with me. It's more substantial than other news programs. Public broadcasting has enriched the lives of my parents and myself, and I'm most appreciative of it. It's an excellent public broadcasting system."👍

The SDPB Legacy Society is composed of generous and forward-thinking donors who will support SDPB's long-term success through a planned gift. Friends of SDPB Welcome New Staff

Carmen Kock has joined the Friends of SDPB staff as Membership Specialist. Carmen manages donation details and member accounts. Carmen grew up in Chancellor and is a graduate of Lennox High School and Northwestern College in St. Paul, Minnesota. Most recently, Carmen was a database analyst/gift processing specialist at Good Samaritan and Sanford Health foundations. “After college, I moved to Burke to teach band,” says Carmen. “At that time, my TV got only one commercial network but both South Dakota and Nebraska Public Television. Those years, especially the 2000 election, are when I became a public broadcasting fan.”

Carmen lives in Sioux Falls and enjoys reading, gardening, teaching piano and traveling to national parks in the western United States.

Well, first step is preventing them from getting into your house,” says Bachmann. “A lot of people want to know, ‘What can I spray?’ But that’s not the best first question. I try to get people to walk it back, and figure out what really is the root of the pest issue, and then how can we best manage it. Definitely, pesticides do end up being a solution in some cases, but they’re not always the first thing that we reach for.”

Adee says most of the agricultural producers he’s met are cognizant and receptive to IPM, but it may require patience and pivoting. “Sometimes you just get caught in a hurry,” says Adee. “But you’ve got to look at the stress of the immediate compared to the long-term. Some years it’s harder to implement than others. What blew up this year was spider mites, but we got calls from very conscientious producers to help us work with them on controlling spider mites so they could protect their soybean crops and we could protect our honeybees.”

South Dakota participates in BeeCheck and DriftWatch, a voluntary registration service where pesticide applicators, beekeepers and crop growers can map and communicate spraying, hive and crop locations. Adee says he has a lot of hope and optimism for producers who are harnessing creativity into regenerative agriculture. He references the Jorgensen Ranch near Ideal, South Dakota, winners of the 2015 Leopold Conservation Award. “Their efforts in conservation are exceptional. And what really inspires me is the soil health movement and the South Dakota Grassland Coalition. We’ve got top-notch producers in South Dakota who really get the value of whole ecosystems. I think we’re starting to get the changes we need for bees that will benefit all agriculture.”

Bachmann urges backyarders to educate themselves on identification as the first step toward pest management that doesn’t encourage habitat decline. “A lot of these native bee species are not going to be aggressive,” says Bachmann. “Stinging is not their first line of defense. Honeybees, bumblebees, social wasps, they’re protecting resources so they kind of come out swinging if their nest is disturbed. But our ground-nesting solitary bees, you’re not encountering them necessarily near their nest, and that nest is not a thing full of resources that they’re defending aggressively.” She cites resources like the Ask Extension at Extension.sdstate.edu and garden lines where users can submit pictures and questions, as well as citizen science apps like iNaturalist and BugGuide.

Like Adee, Bachmann is encouraged by increasing interest in pollinators and pollinator conservation. “Rotary groups and community volunteers want to get grants to build pollinator gardens,” says Bachmann. “It’s not just scientists who think it’s important for their communities. I think that’s a real success.” Plans for a state bumble bee survey are in the works. Adee’s wishlist includes beneficial plant selection on hunting and Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) land. Bachmann says neighboring states do more with roadside pollinator habitat initiatives. She’d like to reach a point where insects like the Rusty Patched Bumble Bee and American Burying Beetle, the only insect currently on the Critically Endangered Species List, generate interest and action.

“Right now the biggest incentive is self-interest, obviously,” says Adee. “But the more you look at the positives of maintaining landscapes that produce more nectar and pollen for our beneficial insects, and the value of our beneficial insects to us and agriculture, the more we realize we need them.”

Nature My Garden of a Thousand Bees premieres Wednesday, Oct. 20, at 7pm (6 MT) on SDPB1 and SDPB.org
