DEADWOOD PIONEER

A FACE FROM THE PAST

Premieres Monday, May 22, 9pm (8 MT) on SDPB-TV

After the discovery of remains in Deadwood, forensics experts and historians worked together to discover his history and lay him to rest at last.

Thank you to our sponsors:

Deadwood Pioneer: A Face from the Past

A compelling new documentary reveals the history of a young pioneer and puts a face on Deadwood's hard-scrabble beginnings.

In the five years since skeletal remains were uncovered in Deadwood's Presidential Neighborhood, historians and scientists have worked avidly to compile a social and genetic background on the individual unearthed during a construction project.

Deadwood Pioneer: A Face from the Past features forensic experts, South Dakota state archeologists and Deadwood historic preservation officials who have pieced together the short life of "Jackson" – so named for his proximity to the intersection of Jackson and Taylor streets, near the original mining camp of Ingleside.

Forensics and DNA sequencing tell us "Jackson" probably had brown eyes, light red hair, and was a descendant of Western Europeans. Dental analysis attests he was a habitual smokeless tobacco user who chewed on the right side of his mouth. His coffin and spent cartridges found in his coat-pockets indicate money spent on a burial with a three-round salute. A decorous funeral and pricey dental work suggest affluent connections.

"Jackson" presumably ventured to the Black Hills to seek fortune in the 1870s gold rush. He died in his mid-20s and was buried in Deadwood's original cemetery alongside 100 other pioneers, including James "Wild Bill" Hickok. When the cemetery was relocated to the hills above Deadwood in 1878, "Jackson" was left behind in an unmarked grave. His remains were reinterred at Deadwood's Mount Moriah Cemetery in a 2016 ceremony.

A fascinating blend of science and history, Deadwood Pioneer: A Face from the Past premieres Monday, May 22 at 9pm (8 MT) on SDPB1.

This program is made possible, in part, with support from the City of Deadwood; Deadwood Historic Preservation; the South Dakota Dental Foundation, and the Friends of SDPB.

Victorian Slum House

Tune in for the latest immersive, living-history event on SDPB.

Victorian Slum House, the fascinating new five-part series from PBS, takes viewers back to the British slums of the 1800s, where a group of modern day families, couples and individuals recreate life in London's East End as their forbearers once lived between 1860-1900.

Faced with the virtually impossible task of earning enough money to pay the rent and put food on the table, the participants experience first-hand the tough living and working conditions endured by the millions that made up the urban poor in Victorian Britain. It's an eye-opening experience for the participants as they each confront the harsh realities of the past and together lay the groundwork for welfare reform in the 20th Century.

SDPB1: Tuesdays, May 2, 9, 16, 23 & 30, 7pm (6 MT)

SDPB2: Sundays, May 7, 14, 21 & 28, 8pm (7 MT)

LADY KILLER

DOWNTON ABBEY STAR PLAYS
REAL-LIFE VICTORIAN-ERA SERIAL KILLER

A macabre old nursery rhyme goes, “Mary Ann Cotton, she’s dead and forgotten / Lying in bed with her bones all rotten.” This month, Joanne Froggatt, who stole the hearts of millions of viewers as Anna, the loving and resilient lady’s maid on Downton Abbey, stars in a much different role in a spine-tingling two-part drama. Dispensing death from the spout of a warm teapot, Froggatt plays the notorious real-life serial killer Mary Ann Cotton, in Masterpiece: Dark Angel.

Eleven of Mary Ann Cotton's 13 children died under mysterious circumstances.

Directed by Emmy award-winner Brian Percival (Downton Abbey) and inspired by the book Mary Ann Cotton: Britain's First Female Serial Killer by criminologist David Wilson, Dark Angel dramatizes the events that drew a troubled woman ever deeper into a career of casual murder. Meanwhile, her loved ones and friends, who were also her victims, never suspected a thing.

Born in northeast England in 1832 and a child of the coal fields, Cotton grew up in poverty with the dream of escaping the hard life of a miner's family. She eventually became a Sunday school teacher and a nurse. She married four times and gave birth to 13 children. However, three of her husbands died and only two of her children led long lives. It's likely these family members succumbed to a dirty secret of suspicious deaths in the 19th century: arsenic, which is tasteless and easily disguised in a cup of tea.

Initially, Cotton was not a suspect. For authorities at the time, the problem was that arsenic poisoning, if done skillfully, mimicked the symptoms of two of the major public health scourges of the day: typhoid fever and cholera. The passing of a child or husband after a week of severe stomach pains, convulsions, and other portents of disease was all too common – and even less surprising when several members of the same household succumbed.

Cotton tempted fate by taking out modest insurance policies on her victims whenever possible, but she inadvertently hit on the major success strategies of a serial killer: keep moving, be charming, and exude self-confidence. As with others in this line of criminality, her body count can never be certain. The current best estimate is at least thirteen, ranking her far above her Victorian male counterpart, Jack the Ripper.

Female serial killers are such a rarity that their motivations tend to be more puzzling and heavily scrutinized than those of men. While there was little sympathy for Cotton during her lifetime, those bringing her gruesome deeds to life suggest she was driven primarily by money. Actress Froggatt has said of playing the dark role, “You have to get into the mindset. She definitely ends up going down the line of psychopathy. But it's that age-old question of nature or nurture. Would this woman have done these terrible things if she was in a different time and a different situation? Who knows?”

Penn State psychology professor Marissa Harrison, who has profiled female serial killers, said in a Washington Post interview that the distinctions between female and male serial killers are in alignment with evolutionary psychology. Victims of females tend to be family members and the killings are typically motivated by money or power, while the victims of men are often strangers whose murders are characterized by sexual violence.

“It struck me that women would kill for resources, which was their primary drive in the ancestral environment, and men kill for sex,” said Harrison. “Female serial killers gather and male serial killers hunt. That was very interesting to me, as an evolutionary psychologist, that it reflects kind of ancestral tendencies.”

“It's not just this horrible person doing horrible things, because that's not really interesting to watch,” actress Froggatt says of Dark Angel. “Whereas, you ask – why? She's nearly got to where she wants to get. Why is she doing this? And that's what really drew me, because she's a fascinating character to play.”

Masterpiece: Dark Angel premieres Sunday, May 21, at 8pm (7 MT) on SDPB1.

Another Downton Abbey alum graces Masterpiece in a real-life role this month. Tim Pigott-Smith, the pompous, high-society obstetrician who attended Downton's ill-fated Lady Sybil, stars in Masterpiece: *King Charles III as Prince Charles after he's ascended the throne.

Part political thriller, part family drama, and a timely examination of contemporary Britain, the program imagines Prince Charles after the Queen's death. Charles immediately finds himself wrestling his conscience over a bill to sign into law. With the future of the monarchy under threat, protests on the streets, and his family in disarray, Charles must grapple with his own identity and purpose and decide whether the British crown still has any real power in the 21st century.

This adaptation retains the daring verse of the original Tony-nominated play while fully realizing on-screen Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace, and the restless streets of London.

Masterpiece: King Charles III premieres Sunday, May 14, 8pm (7 MT) on SDPB1.

Big House Boy is the story of Dr. Malcom Jameson of Yankton and his recollections of growing up in and around the warden's house on the South Dakota State Penitentiary campus in Sioux Falls. Jameson's grandfather, George, was warden from 1920-1933 and his father, G. Norton, was warden from 1938-1963. Jameson's early memories were greatly impacted by his family's association with the institution, including when his grandfather was taken hostage during a 1922 prison break and left tied up in a church in Crooks, SD.

Independent Lens Forever Pure tells the story of Beitar Jerusalem F.C., the most popular and controversial soccer team in Israel and the only club in the Israeli Premier League never to have signed an Arab player. Recently a secretive transfer deal by the owner, Russian-Israeli oligarch Arcadi Gaydamak, brought two Muslim players from Chechnya. The deal inspired the most racist campaign in Israeli sports — in which the new players were taunted by their own fans with chants of “death to Arabs” — that sent the club spiraling out of control. Forever Pure traces one tumultuous season of this famed club, as a story of Israeli society, personal identity, politics, and money clashing on and off the football pitch.

Using high-speed camera techniques, Nature The Gathering Swarms captures and explains the awesome, world-wide displays of animals coming together in inconceivable numbers – sometimes in the millions, billions, and even trillions. When swarms gather, a kind of super-organism is created in which individual intelligence is superseded by a collective consciousness that shares information and moves with a single purpose for the benefit of all. This behavior applies to a number of creatures that form these great gatherings for a variety of reasons: to breed, migrate, find food, and even to protect themselves.

Nature Touching the Wild chronicles Joe Hutto's seven-year journey of bonding with a wild mule deer herd. Hutto came to appreciate the animals' profound intelligence, particularly during displays of curiosity, but this human predator also learns to see the world from the point of view of prey – and it's an experience that will ultimately rock him to his very core; sharing their world so personally finally takes a toll that sends him back to his own kind.

Federal Funding and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting

Here is a quick guide about public media and the federal funds appropriated to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB). For more information, please visit SDPB.org/funding.

What is the CPB's role in public broadcasting?

CPB's role in public media is to shield public media stations from political influence and to deliver federal support that does not affect a station's ability to operate independently. The CPB is distinct from both National Public Radio (NPR) and the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS). It is not a broadcaster, but a private corporation created by Congress in 1967 that distributes money in the form of "community service grants" (CSGs) to noncommercial public television and radio stations that provide significant public service programming to their communities. CSGs help stations expand the quality and scope of their work, whether in educational, news, public affairs or other programming—all of which represent an immeasurable value to the American people. Stations must each year meet a variety of legal, managerial, staffing and operational criteria to qualify for CSG funding.

Why does public broadcasting need federal funding?

In general, public broadcasting's mission is to ensure universal access to high-quality, non-commercial programming that educates, informs, enlightens and enriches the public, with a particular focus on the needs of underserved audiences, including children and people in need. In many rural areas, public broadcasting is the only source of free local, national and international news, public affairs and cultural programming. Without funding, many stations would likely be unable to continue to provide local communities with this programming.

Federal funding is essential to the funding mix that supports public broadcasting, providing money for basic operations for many local stations. On average, stations leverage each $1 of federal funding to raise over $6 from local sources — a tremendous return on the taxpayer investment.

How much funding is appropriated to the CPB?

Annual funding for the CPB has been level at $445 million for several years. That amounts to about $1.35 per American per year and that represents 0.01 percent (one one-hundredth of one percent) of the federal budget.

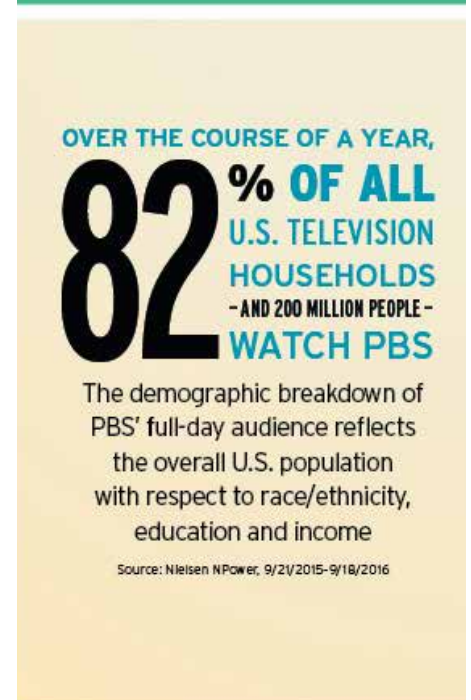

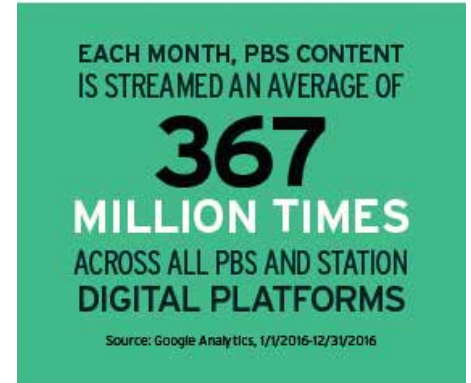

How much CPB funding does SDPB receive?

This year, approximately 22 percent of SDPB's budgeted revenue will come from the CPB.

How can I show my support for public broadcasting?

A strong, diverse base of grassroots advocates is essential to ensuring the retention of federal funding. One entity formed to unify that support is Protect My Public Media a collaboration of local public radio, and TV stations, program producers and distributors, listeners and viewers who support a strong public media in the United States.

Share your testimonial at ProtectMyPublicMedia.org — they will be used as a resource when meeting with policy makers in the coming months.

Dakota Life in May

In May, Dakota Life takes viewers for a ride – via karts, cars, horses and spelunkers in South Dakota.

We speed off to Brookings to follow kart racer Landon Schott of Aberdeen as he prepares to race at the University Plains Speedway in Brookings. Established in 1983, the speedway is regarded as one of the best racing tracks in the nation. High banking and a clay track, which is easier to pack, make for a smooth and speedy ride for drivers. Kart racing is typically a family affair, with multiple generations cheering from the stands. We'll also meet Doug Norgaard, president of the South Dakota Kart Association, Dean McMartin, long-time kart racing announcer, and drivers Sam Gibson from Harrisburg and Maguire DeJong from Montezuma, Iowa.

We also ride to Fort Pierre to learn about the annual Stirling Ranch Rodeo. A fundraiser for cancer patients and their families, the family-oriented event honors the memory of Highmore rancher Dick Stirling and the ethic of taking care of one another in tough times. Unlike a professional rodeo performance, ranch rodeos focus on real-life skills used by cowgirls and cowboys on a working ranch: sorting cattle, gathering strays, and range-doctoring livestock. In 2016, Stirling Ranch Rodeo organizers distributed $17,000 in assistance to 40 cancer patients and their families. The 2017 event marks the 20th year for the event.

Next, we venture into Persistence Cave in Wind Cave National Park. For over a decade, compliance paperwork, poison ivy and rattlesnakes prevented excavation of the 2004 discovery. But "Persistence Cave" has paid off for park staff. Recent excavations have revealed thousands of years of Black Hills history.

And we meet Aberdeen metalworker Bob Lamont who builds hot rods in his spare time. Lamont's next project is not about how fast he can get where he's going, but about how far he can go.

The latest episode of Dakota Life premieres Thursday, May 4, at 8pm (7 MT) and rebroadcasts Sunday, May 7, at 1pm (Noon MT).

A decade of trial and error has finally resulted in the excavation of the aptly named "Persistence Cave."

Riders prepare to compete at the Stirling Ranch Rodeo in Fort Pierre.

Bob Lamont builds hot rods in his spare time in Aberdeen.

World Café's New Host

Talia Schlanger has taken over World Café hosting duties from David Dye, who retired last month. Dye will continue in a part-time capacity as a regular contributor.

Schlanger has been a contributing host and producer of World Café. Formerly, she hosted a popular music radio show on CBC, Canada's public broadcaster, and was the on-camera host for CBC Music: Backstage Pass. Some of her favorite music interviews include St. Vincent, Tanya Tagaq, John Fogerty, Barenaked Ladies and Grimes.

The two-hour daily program features a signature mix of artist interviews with in-studio performances by both established and emerging artists, and a curated music selection that encompasses singer-songwriters, classic rock, indie rock, Americana, alt-country, blues, world music, R&B and soul. As the nation's most listened-to public radio music program, its impact on the careers and audience awareness of thousands of artists is immeasurable.

World Café airs on SDPB Radio weeknights at 11pm, 10 MT.

Special Preview: Ken Burns' The Vietnam War

As part of Memorial Day programming, SDPB provides a preview of The Vietnam War, Ken Burns' latest epic documentary project debuting on SDPB in September.

In an immersive narrative, filmmakers Burns and Lynn Novick will tell the epic story of the Vietnam War as it has never-before been told on film, featuring testimony from nearly 100 witnesses, including many Americans who fought in the war and others who opposed it, as well as Vietnamese combatants and civilians from both the winning and losing sides. This preview provides a glimpse of the 10-part, 18-hour documentary.

SDPB1: Sunday, May 28, 8:30pm (7:30 MT)

Tune in to SDPB TV, Radio and Digital for local interviews, screenings, and events throughout South Dakota this summer in conjunction with Burns' The Vietnam War – including The Wall That Heals, a replica of Washington's Vietnam War memorial, which will be on display in Chamberlain, August 10-13.

Independent Lens: Farmer/Veteran

Home from three combat tours in Iraq, Alex Sutton forges a new identity as a farmer, hatching chicks and raising goats on 43 acres in rural North Carolina. He dives into life on the farm with his new love Jessica, but cannot shake the lingering traumas of war. The stories he tells about his battlefield experiences seem unmoored from reality as he oscillates between states of heightened awareness and "feeling zombified" from a cocktail of prescriptions meant to keep him stable. For the viewer, as for Alex, what to believe about his past is uncertain. The farm becomes a terrain to unearth what is buried, what it really means to be "the perfect soldier," and where to go from here.

SD Focus in May

SDPB's distinguished policies and discussion program takes a look at issues currently impacting South Dakota.

Thursday, May 11, 8pm (7 MT): Water Fight

The South Dakota Supreme Court recently weighed in on "non-meandered waters" – lakes that form when public waters flood private lands, often in northeastern pot-and-kettle terrain. Many of the lakes have become angling hotspots and are at the center of an on-going dispute between landowners and outdoor enthusiasts. We'll discuss property rights, public access and the economic issues at stake.

Thursday, May 18, 8pm (7 MT): Aging Actively

We visit the Center for Active Generations in Sioux Falls and explore positive aging and quality-of-life enhancement for elderly adults.

Thursday, May 25, 8pm (7 MT): Battling Aquatic Invasive Species

Professionals from the SD Game, Fish and Parks Department and others join host Stephanie Rissler to discuss new Aquatic Invasive Species (AIS) rules to prevent the spread of invasive species between lakes. Experts will explain the impact of invasive species on South Dakota's lakes, how they are transported, and what boaters can watch out for to help keep the species under control.

Food for Thought

This month, new programs explore and celebrate food and ground-breaking chefs.

Food: Delicious Science

Hosts James Wong and Michael Mosley travel the world to present the physics, chemistry and biology that lie hidden in every bite of food we eat. This fascinating three-part series explores the deep evolutionary roots of human reactions and cravings for food and offers a new way of thinking about our relationship to the modern diet.
