Episode Title: Ripe for Change

Length: 60

Service: PBS

Ripe for Change chronicles the intersection of food and politics in California over the last thirty years. California is at a crossroads in agriculture, fending off overdevelopment and the loss of farming traditions while at the same time embracing innovative visions of sustainability. Revealing interviews with some of California's most prominent farmers, chefs and food thinkers offer an opportunity to consider the complex choices faced by the state of California today.

Episode Title: Remember the Alamo

Length: 60

Air Date: 5/3/2006 10:00 AM DT2A

Service: PBS

Long before the Alamo made heroes of Jim Bowie and Davy Crockett and spawned the well-known battle cry, Jose Antonio Navarro and a group of Tejanos - Mexicans of Texas who had lived there for generations - started the battle for Texas. This program explores the life of the famed Tejano leader and his efforts to protect the sovereignty of his homeland as it passed through the hands of multiple governments.

Episode Title: Golden Gate Bridge

Length: 60

Air Date: 5/3/2006 8:00 PM 502

Service: PBS

On May 27, 1937, 200,000 people thronged to the newly-completed Golden Gate bridge and walked, climbed, skated or cycled across. After 18 years of struggles to complete the bridge, San Francisco's jubilation was unrestrained. Twenty years earlier, choked off at the tip of a peninsula, San Francisco had faced a future of increased congestion and economic strangulation. Though many in the city longed for a bridge connecting San Francisco to the counties to the north, the obstacles to construction were daunting. This program tells the story of a hustler and self-promoter, a man who had never designed or overseen the building of a suspension bridge, who took up the challenge. Joseph Strauss spent thirteen years wrangling with local politicians, arguing with the War Department over designs and fighting lawsuits from bridge opponents before he was able to break ground. By the time the bridge was complete, Strauss, his team of designers and his construction crews had built what has since been called one of the "Seven Wonders of the Modern World."

Episode Title: Annie Oakley

Length: 60

Air Date: 5/8/2006 8:00 & 11:00 PM DT2A

Service: PBS

In 1926, just a few months before her death, Will Rogers described Annie Oakley as "the greatest woman rifle shot the world has ever produced." As the star attraction of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, she thrilled audiences around the world with her daring shooting feats and her act helped fuel turn-of-the-century nostalgia for the vanished, mythical world of the American West. Over time she became an American legend-the loud, brassy, cocksure shooter celebrated in the musical "Annie Get Your Gun." But that legend had little to do with the real Annie Oakley. Although famous as a Western sharpshooter, Oakley lived her entire life east of the Mississippi. A champion in a man's sport, she forever changed ideas about the abilities of women, yet she opposed female suffrage. Her fame and fortune came from her skill with guns, yet she was a Quaker. This probing AMERICAN EXPERIENCE production examines the dramatic life of a uniquely American icon whose complex character manifested many of the paradoxes of the nation.

John Ford is considered by many the greatest American director, the winner of six Academy Awards, more than any director before or since. John Wayne is the actor whom he transformed from a B-western cowboy into a larger-than-life national icon. Their friendship and professional collaboration spanned 50 years, changed each other's lives, changed the movies and, in the process, changed how America saw itself. Their remarkable body of work - including Stagecoach, Fort Apache, She Wore a Yellow Ribbon, Rio Grande, The Searchers, The Horse Soldiers and The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance - is heroic and nostalgic, reflecting all the elements and all the paradoxes in 20th century America: generosity of spirit, abuse of power, a sense of loyalty and a new, restless nationalism.

Episode Title: Wright Brothers' Flying Machine
Length: 60
Service: PBS

Series Title: NOVA
Version: SD-Base
Airdate: 5/7/2006 2:00 PM

"Wright Brothers' Flying Machine"--December 17, 2003, marks the centennial of the world's first powered flight at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. To celebrate this milestone, NOVA presents the definitive documentary on the invention of the airplane. While many shows have retold the Wright brothers' personal story, no program has properly explored the astonishing inventiveness that they applied to the problem of powered flight. NOVA reveals that the popular image of the Wrights as amateur bicycle mechanics who tinkered their way into the sky is a total myth. The program features exhilarating footage of flights by exclusively commissioned replicas that use the same original materials and the only existing Wright engine for the frail craft that first propelled humans toward the clouds. The triumph of powered flight comes alive once more in NOVA's epic documentary.

"Blazing Trails" - After a final round-up, 131 head are culled from the herd for the big cattle drive, the rest held back to re-stock the ranch. After spending 12 solid hours in the saddle on their first day of the drive, the cowboys' spirits flag at the prospect of eight more days on the trail. Robby and his men have a confrontation with an ornery steer that teaches them just how dangerous cowboy work can be. Back at the ranch, the Cooke women are dealing with a massive fly infestation that is driving them nearly insane.

Meet a host of scientists and law enforcement agents who are enlisting crime-solving recruits from the natural world. Watch remarkable real-life case studies reconstructed to reveal the elegant detective work that animals and plants carry out. Flies and their maggots reveal how long a body has lain undiscovered, microscopic pollen can match a killer to the scene of his crime. Sniffer dogs can track distant criminals and detect tiny quantities of gasoline used to mount an arson attack. Even terrorists can be snared by animal crime busters -- maggots found in the aftermath of an explosion can be analyzed for traces of chemicals, giving vital clues as to who carried out the attack.

Meet a host of scientists and law enforcement agents who are enlisting crime-solving recruits from the natural world. Watch remarkable real-life case studies reconstructed to reveal the elegant detective work that animals and plants carry out. Flies and their maggots reveal how long a body has lain undiscovered, microscopic pollen can match a killer to the scene of his crime. Sniffer dogs can track distant criminals and detect tiny quantities of gasoline used to mount an arson attack. Even terrorists can be snared by animal crime busters -- maggots found in the aftermath of an explosion can be analyzed for traces of chemicals, giving vital clues as to who carried out the attack.

"Wright Brothers' Flying Machine"--December 17, 2003, marks the centennial of the world's first powered flight at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. To celebrate this milestone, NOVA presents the definitive documentary on the invention of the airplane. While many shows have retold the Wright brothers' personal story, no program has properly explored the astonishing inventiveness that they applied to the problem of powered flight. NOVA reveals that the popular image of the Wrights as amateur bicycle mechanics who tinkered their way into the sky is a total myth. The program features exhilarating footage of flights by exclusively commissioned replicas that use the same original materials and the only existing Wright engine for the frail craft that first propelled humans toward the clouds. The triumph of powered flight comes alive once more in NOVA's epic documentary.

In 1926, just a few months before her death, Will Rogers described Annie Oakley as "the greatest woman rifle shot the world has ever produced." As the star attraction of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, she thrilled audiences around the world with her daring shooting feats and her act helped fuel turn-of-the-century nostalgia for the vanished, mythical world of the American West. Over time she became an American legend-the loud, brassy, cocksure shooter celebrated in the musical "Annie Get Your Gun." But that legend had little to do with the real Annie Oakley. Although famous as a Western sharpshooter, Oakley lived her entire life east of the Mississippi. A champion in a man's sport, she forever changed ideas about the abilities of women, yet she opposed female suffrage. Her fame and fortune came from her skill with guns, yet she was a Quaker. This probing AMERICAN EXPERIENCE production examines the dramatic life of a uniquely American icon whose complex character manifested many of the paradoxes of the nation.

Nightly Business Report will broadcast a holiday special called, "Work in Progress." Instead of minding machines, as our mothers and fathers did, American workers are now challenged to master increasing sophisticated technologies. It's no longer enough to just follow instructions, "problem solving" is now a job requirement. At the same time, our country is undergoing a dramatic demographic shift from an older workforce, to one dominated by younger, minority workers. Despite this wave of change, the average level of formal education in our workforce is the same as it was 25 years ago. By most measures, income inequality is growing and workers are taking on more economic risk on the job. In many ways, the nation is unprepared for the challenges of the changing workplace.

"Two Days in October"--Based on the book They Marched Into Sunlight by the Pulitzer Prize-winning writer David Maraniss, this AMERICAN EXPERIENCE production tells the story of two turbulent days in October 1967. In Vietnam, a U.S. battalion unwittingly marches into a Viet Cong trap. Sixty-one young men are killed and as many wounded. The ambush prompts some in power to wonder whether the war might be un-winnable. Half a world away, angry students on the campus of the University of Wisconsin protest the presence of Dow Chemical, makers of napalm. The demonstration spirals out of control, marking the first time that a student protest of the war turns violent. Told almost entirely by the people who took part in the harrowing events of those two days - American and Viet Cong soldiers, police officers, relatives of men killed in battle, protesting students, members of a political mime troupe and university administrators - the film opens a window onto a moment that divided a nation and a war that continues to haunt us.

Joseph Goebbels was the Nazi propaganda mastermind who helped launch Hitler's rise to power. A twentieth-century icon of maniacal cruelty, his name is synonymous with cynical, unscrupulous and, at times, successful propaganda. In this AMERICAN EXPERIENCE production Goebbels speaks for himself through the film's only narration: voice-over readings of his personal diaries by actor Kenneth Brannagh. Rare historical footage from German archives traces the life of the second most powerful man in the Third Reich, detailing his initial attraction to the Nazi party and his adoration of Hitler. The film offers a chilling glimpse into Goebbels' brilliant but disturbing mind, revealing how he continually stage managed his life and reinvented himself - from his early days as a radical "popular socialist" to his tragic end. The result is a fascinating psychological portrait of a man who careened extravagantly between self-pity, wild extermination fantasies and political excesses.

Although the financial markets will be closed on Monday, May 29, 2006, for Memorial Day, Nightly Business Report and Nightly Business Report News Brief will be fed as usual. Nightly Business Report will broadcast a holiday special called, "Work in Progress." Instead of minding machines, as our mothers and fathers did, American workers are now challenged to master increasing sophisticated technologies. It's no longer enough to just follow instructions, "problem solving" is now a job requirement. At the same time, our country is undergoing a dramatic demographic shift from an older workforce, to one dominated by younger, minority workers. Despite this wave of change, the average level of formal education in our workforce is the same as it was 25 years ago. By most measures, income inequality is growing and workers are taking on more economic risk on the job. In many ways, the nation is unprepared for the challenges of the changing workplace.

America's aging baby boomers are headed for a shock as they near retirement. In addition to Social Security, the pillars of retirement income for Americans have been either lifetime corporate pensions or employee-contribution plans such as 401ks. But both retirement strategies are in trouble. Buffeted by pension cuts, corporate bankruptcies, and the 2001-2002 stock market crash, most boomers now expect to be working into their retirement years.

America's aging baby boomers are headed for a shock as they near retirement. In addition to Social Security, the pillars of retirement income for Americans have been either lifetime corporate pensions or employee-contribution plans such as 401ks. But both retirement strategies are in trouble. Buffeted by pension cuts, corporate bankruptcies, and the 2001-2002 stock market crash, most boomers now expect to be working into their retirement years.

"Mystery of the Megaflood"--It was the greatest flood of the past two million years, and it posed a giant scientific riddle. A maverick geologist became convinced that near the end of the last ice age, thousand-foot-deep floodwaters had scoured out vast areas of the American northwest. Mainstream scientists scorned his theory, while he searched patiently for answers to what could have triggered such an inconceivably violent event. Finally, a remarkable discovery silenced the skeptics: traces of an enormous ice dam half a mile high, which had blocked a valley in present-day Montana and created an enormous lake behind it. With the help of stunning, realistic animation, NOVA takes viewers back to the Ice Age to reveal what happened when the dam broke, unleashing a titanic flood that swept herds of woolly mammoth and everything else into oblivion.

The towering volcano of Nyiragongo looms over the city of Goma in central Africa, threatening to obliterate a thriving city of more than 400,000 inhabitants. In 2002, rivers of lava poured through the streets and destroyed 40 percent of the city, forcing tens of thousands to flee. A year later, with ominous gas clouds billowing over the crater rim, volcanologist Jacques Durieux leads a team of specialists to try to figure out the volcano's inner secrets - when and why it is likely to erupt next. Durieux and his team clamber down into the crater to lower test instruments into the boiling lava below.

Not everyone who came in contact with the Black Plague bacteria, which ravaged medieval Europe, died. Geneticist Steven O'Brien is trying to find out why some survived when so many others perished. His investigation takes him to a little town in England that was hit by the plague in 1665. Using historical records, town archives and modern forensic techniques, O'Brien turns the town into a medical case study that reveals some startling information about the disease. After proving that the scourge in the town really was plague and not some other disease, he discovers that the people who managed to survive were blessed with a genetic mutation that made them immune to the effects of the bacteria. Even more startling, that same genetic mutation has now been proven to give some people immunity to the most deadly disease of the modern age -- AIDS. This program tells the story of the survivors of the devastating plague and takes viewers on a journey of investigation into the world of a deadly pandemic.

Born Ray Charles Robinson in Albany, Georgia, the legendary singer/composer/pianist Ray Charles virtually invented soul music. Bringing together the rhythms and styles of gospel, blues, country and jazz, Ray Charles has created some of the most sophisticated yet spontaneous music ever made. Using performance clips, archival footage and interviews with the singer's friends and associates, this film charts Charles' career from the early years to his big breakthrough in 1959, to his rise to international stardom. This program also deals with the difficulties Charles had to overcome in life, paying tribute to a strong and talented man while celebrating his music.

This film focuses not just on Cole's celebrity, but on the Civil Rights movement and how this performer uniquely broke through major racial barriers in the entertainment industry - he was the first black American to have his own national radio show, in 1948, and he was the first black American to have his own television show, in 1956. His musical origins were as a young Chicago jazz pianist but he became known as - and accepted as, even in those turbulent times - a melodious, smooth singer of such popular songs as Mona Lisa, Too Young, It's Only a Paper Moon, Unforgettable and the Christmas season perennial Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire. With open access to the Cole family - including, of course, his daughter Natalie - and his record label (EMI) archives, a picture of great courage is painted.

In 1912, amateur fossil hunter Charles Dawson made the shattering claim that he'd discovered the bones of a primitive human in a gravel pit at Piltdown, Sussex. Believing this was the long-sought evidence of the "missing link" between apes and mankind, British scientists were suddenly at the forefront of the worldwide quest for human origins. It took 40 years for the shocking truth to emerge: the Piltdown man was not a scientific treasure but a fiendishly elaborate hoax. Since this unmasking, suspicion has fallen not only on Dawson but on a host of possible conspirators, including Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes. NOVA reviews the gallery of suspects and the twists and turns of the bizarre, unsolved story of science's greatest fraud, which still teases and tantalizes investigators.

"Mystery of the Megaflood"--It was the greatest flood of the past two million years, and it posed a giant scientific riddle. A maverick geologist became convinced that near the end of the last ice age, thousand-foot-deep floodwaters had scoured out vast areas of the American northwest. Mainstream scientists scorned his theory, while he searched patiently for answers to what could have triggered such an inconceivably violent event. Finally, a remarkable discovery silenced the skeptics: traces of an enormous ice dam half a mile high, which had blocked a valley in present-day Montana and created an enormous lake behind it. With the help of stunning, realistic animation, NOVA takes viewers back to the Ice Age to reveal what happened when the dam broke, unleashing a titanic flood that swept herds of woolly mammoth and everything else into oblivion.

An estimated half-million women are trafficked annually for the purpose of sexual slavery. The women are kidnapped -- or lured by traffickers who prey on their dreams of employment abroad - then they are "exported" to Europe, the Middle East, the United States and elsewhere, where they are sold to pimps, drugged, terrorized, locked in brothels and raped repeatedly. In Eastern Europe, since the fall of communism, sex trafficking has become the fastest growing form of organized crime, with Moldova and Ukraine widely seen as the centers of the global trade in women and girls. FRONTLINE presents a unique hidden camera look at this world of sexual slavery, talking with traffickers and their victims, and exposing the government indifference that allows the abuses to continue virtually unchecked. "Sex Slaves" also follows the remarkable journey of one man determined to find his trafficked wife by posing as a trafficker himself to buy back her freedom.

"Two Days in October"--Based on the book They Marched Into Sunlight by the Pulitzer Prize-winning writer David Maraniss, this AMERICAN EXPERIENCE production tells the story of two turbulent days in October 1967. In Vietnam, a U.S. battalion unwittingly marches into a Viet Cong trap. Sixty-one young men are killed and as many wounded. The ambush prompts some in power to wonder whether the war might be un-winnable. Half a world away, angry students on the campus of the University of Wisconsin protest the presence of Dow Chemical, makers of napalm. The demonstration spirals out of control, marking the first time that a student protest of the war turns violent. Told almost entirely by the people who took part in the harrowing events of those two days - American and Viet Cong soldiers, police officers, relatives of men killed in battle, protesting students, members of a political mime troupe and university administrators - the film opens a window onto a moment that divided a nation and a war that continues to haunt us.

Joseph Goebbels was the Nazi propaganda mastermind who helped launch Hitler's rise to power. A twentieth-century icon of maniacal cruelty, his name is synonymous with cynical, unscrupulous and, at times, successful propaganda. In this AMERICAN EXPERIENCE production Goebbels speaks for himself through the film's only narration: voice-over readings of his personal diaries by actor Kenneth Brannagh. Rare historical footage from German archives traces the life of the second most powerful man in the Third Reich, detailing his initial attraction to the Nazi party and his adoration of Hitler. The film offers a chilling glimpse into Goebbels' brilliant but disturbing mind, revealing how he continually stage managed his life and reinvented himself - from his early days as a radical "popular socialist" to his tragic end. The result is a fascinating psychological portrait of a man who careened extravagantly between self-pity, wild extermination fantasies and political excesses.

In 1932, a remarkable event occurred in Washington, D.C. In the darkest days of the Depression, unemployed World War I veterans marched on Washington, looking for an advance on the bonus compensation promised to them years earlier. After camping throughout Washington for two months, the veterans were driven out by force, as rising military figures General Douglas MacArthur, Major Dwight Eisenhower and Major George Patton cleared out the "Bonus Army" and burned their camps. By the time the clashes were over, two marchers and two children were dead, and the Bonus Army incident had become a political liability for President Hebert Hoover.
