Covered Wagon Train

Producer: Brian Gevik

Fort Pierre to Deadwood trail 2008 ride took place in July. There were 300 riders on horseback and people driving covered wagons. This trail was first used by Native Americans, followed by the fur trappers, and the Cavalry. During the gold rush the trail was used to haul freight, mining equipment, supplies, and people to Deadwood. This was followed by the settlers and home setters. It is thought that the use of the trail was discontinued in 1908. Riders experienced a once in a lifetime ride that hasn't been ridden in 100 years.
