This show includes hits like "Jesus Is Just Alright" and "Listen To The Music" — with a fantastic new arrangement featuring horns.

Tune in for your tickets to see The Doobie Brothers Live at the Swiftel Center in Brookings, Wednesday, October 2. Tickets ($240/pair) in a special reserved section. Hear "China Grove" front and center!

VANISHED SOUTH DAKOTA

TOWNS OF YESTERDAY

AIRS AUGUST 19, 7PM/6MT ON SDPB1

SDPB's newest documentary visits remnants of once-thriving towns to discover what led to the birth, boom, and demise of former communities throughout the state.

Stephanie Rissler.

"I love old barns and buildings and this is one of my favorites near Winner. As storm clouds were moving through the area the sun set, which warmed the skies and saturated the colors of the grass and sky."

When she's not discussing public affairs with South Dakotans Thursday nights at the FOCUS desk, SDPB producer Stephanie Rissler is typically traveling on and off the state's beaten tracks. Interviewing local residents for reports and documentaries throughout her 20 years with SDPB, Rissler noticed a theme: folks wanted to talk about the places they knew growing up. Rissler shares the process and surprises from her latest project.

Katy Beem: "How did Vanished come about?"

Stephanie Rissler: "While working on several different documentaries throughout my time with SDPB, I often interviewed South Dakotans who talked about old towns they grew up in. Some smaller than they are today or have completely disappeared. I told myself that someday I'd like to go back and do a story on some of these 'vanished towns.' It started with a Dakota Life segment in 2016, focusing on the towns of Okobojo, Light Cap, Misco, Crandall and DeVoe. We received such positive feedback from viewers with additional suggestions from those who reached out that we decided the topic warranted a full hour documentary."

KB: "How many miles do you estimate you've logged for this project?"

SR: "Thousands and counting!"
Though not all portions of the state are included in the documentary, we've traveled to every corner looking for remnants and stories."

KB: "How is reporting on a project like this? The history must be fascinating, yet how many discussing the ends of life for towns also be bittersweet?"

SR: "Change is inevitable. I never felt sad with the stories we heard or places we visited. I felt honored to have been given the opportunity to look for these old places, people and stories. A few locations felt cold and the history seemed so distant and hard to find, such as Texas Town in Union County, Ardmore in Fall River County. Other vanished locations still felt alive with historical signs and old buildings welcoming us and giving some sort of glimpse into their past. The hardest part is the fact checking. Many stories have been passed down from generation to generation and they don't always match with other families or historians. That has been the biggest challenge."

KB: "Audiences of 100 and more have been at the preview screenings. Why do you think the screenings have been so popular? Why is this project hitting such a nerve?"

SR: "Audiences have been extremely supportive and positive. All the screenings have provided opportunities to hear from folks who were connected to some of these towns. Many attendees provided additional facts or corrections, which has helped with our biggest challenges of fact-checking so many stories. The screenings also allowed attendees to share additional towns for our growing list of vanished towns. I think people have connected with Vanished South Dakota because so many want to hold on to a piece of their past. We all know times will forever change and nothing will stay the same. But being able to talk about ‘yesterday’ and remember what ‘yesterday’ used to look like is a warm feeling for many. This documentary has brought to the surface memories in folks they forgot they had. Many also want to share the history and stories they know, but have never really known how to do that – other than oral stories within their own communities and families. Vanished is providing a vehicle for folks to share and remember the past for a much bigger audience. South Dakotans appreciate that. “

KB: “What are your favorite stories?”

SR: “The story of Texas Town is one of my favorites. While the history behind African American slaves escaping the Civil War and finding freedom and a life along the Missouri River in Union County is vague and historians know little about the facts behind Texas Town, it’s one of my favorites. The towns of Terry and Trojan in Lawrence County were mining towns and their history is so interesting. Terry was a huge community with close to 1200 people. Calamity Jane died there and without Terry, Deadwood would not have been the major mining town it became. Trojan, although a mining town, reinvented itself a couple of times. And the town of Harding/Nashville in Harding county has a fun story about Teddy Roosevelt traveling and staying in the area and no one knew who he was.”

KB: “What has been most surprising about this project to you professionally?”

SR: “This project has changed my life, in a way. I’ve always enjoyed travel and the great outdoors. This project has given me a new respect for travel and a new lens to look through life with. I find myself taking as many backroads as I can, looking for humps across the landscape where a railroad once lived. Documenting deteriorating homesteads so I can go back and dig up history on them. Small town South Dakota has become my favorite place to be and visiting with the locals about their lives growing up is one of my favorite things to do, on the job or not. Even more exciting, my kids are enjoying the travels and discussions with the locals, as they’ve asked me to take them to a few of these vanished locations. If we encourage our youth to explore history, document it and share the facts with others, preservation of ‘yesterday,’ will be more accessible into the future.”

KB: “What are the ‘less glamorous’ details about the project people might not know? Hours spent shooting in the field? Contending with rattlesnakes and/or wasps? Hours spent editing? Logistical issues that folks who don’t do this for a living may be surprised by?”

SR: “We did have a few scary moments with rattlesnakes, mean dogs, deer, and rough roads and scary terrain. Many of our video shoots took us away from home for weeks at a time – which meant for long work days and little sleep. Our goal is to not only gather the stories, but we like to match it with great video and oftentimes the weather didn’t cooperate. We worked in extremely hot days, very windy days, snow, rain and sleet. Even so, I don’t ever remember us complaining – just appreciating those days that were perfect. Capturing what those towns look like today is the easy part – finding the old photos of what towns looked like a hundred years ago, that has been the difficult part. But, if those who homesteaded across this great state could do what they did, we can certainly keep looking for the perfect photo to help tell their stories.

We’ve come across so many more Vanished locations since starting this project. Locations that won’t make it into this documentary, as there

SDPB August Listings

On Masterpiece
Grantchester, it's 1956, and there's a new vicar in town: Will Davenport, a firebrand who embraces the future and shocks Grantchester. But throughout the upheaval, Geordie knows one constant remains: a vicar can sometimes be a detective's best friend. When Will asks for Geordie's help with a family matter, Geordie is surprised to discover where Will really grew up: a house filled with secrets and lies.

Arian Sheets, Curator of Stringed Instruments, National Music Museum.

In conjunction with the premiere of Ken Burns' Country Music documentary, SDPB and the National Music Museum (NMM) are partnering to showcase South Dakota's own rich heritage and connections to country music.

Fabled instruments once owned and played by Johnny Cash, June Carter Cash, Marty Stuart and Earl Scruggs emerge from the National Music Museum's unrivaled collection to be played by some of South Dakota's finest country music musicians.

Join SDPB and the NMM for three incredible events at three locations across South Dakota. Learn the backstories of these priceless instruments from Arian Sheets, NMM's Curator of Stringed Instruments. See a sneak peek of Ken Burns' Country Music. Then sit back and listen to hometown artists play a piece of country music history.

Chris Gage Saturday, Sept. 7, 7pm Ramkota Ampitheatre #2, Pierre

Chris Gage, a guitarist and songwriter born and bred in Pierre, is an alum of Hee Haw and Roy Clark's band, and a founding member of The Red Willow Band. Now a musician and studio owner in Austin, Texas, Gage returns to his hometown to play the 1969 Martin D-28 guitar customized for country artist Merle Travis and passed down, respectively, to Marty Stuart, Johnny Cash, and Travis' son Thom Bresh.

Boyd Bristow & Kaija & Brian Bonde Tuesday, Sept. 10, 7pm SDPB Sioux Falls Studios, Sioux Falls

Guitarist/songwriter Boyd Bristow and Kaija and Brian Bonde, of "Always, Patsy Cline," and Americana/bluegrass group East of Westerville, with Johnny Cash's 1971 "Bon Aqua" Martin D-28 guitar, which Cash used while writing songs during the last 30 years of his life at his farm near Bon Aqua, Tennessee. Also featuring June Carter Cash's 1967 Gibson "Hummingbird" guitar – one of Carter Cash's favorites and named for the delicate hummingbird on the pickguard.

Jami Lynn Friday, Sept. 13, 7pm SDPB Black Hills Studio, Rapid City

Jami Lynn, Americana banjoist/songwriter, plays the 1980 Gibson RB-250 banjo given to Johnny Cash by Earl Scruggs, penciled with "To my friend, Johnny" on the head.

On Rick Steves: Fascism in Europe, Rick Steves travels back a century to learn how fascism rose and then fell in Europe — taking millions of people with it. He traces fascism's history from its roots in the turbulent aftermath of World War I, when masses of angry people rose up, to the rise of charismatic leaders who manipulated that anger, and the totalitarian societies they built.

On Operation Maneater: Polar Bear, Mark Evans travels to the shores of Canada's Hudson Bay, where polar bears are causing havoc in isolated communities. He arrives in the town of Churchill hours after an attack has left two people seriously injured and a bear dead. He joins the Polar Bear Alert team as they transport a captured bear by helicopter to a release site outside town. In the Inuit town of Arviat, Evans works with wildlife officers to test an aerial drone early warning system, a military grade ultra-loud speaker to deter bears, and a controversial experiment to place meat out on the tundra to keep bears away from town.

Friends of SDPB Welcomes New Staff

Friends of SDPB is pleased to announce the additions of new team members Meg Hentges and Adam Davenport.

Meg Hentges

Meg Hentges joins us as the new Sound Vision Campaign Coordinator. Meg works with Visionary Society and Legacy Society members. She'll especially focus on the efforts of Friends of SDPB's Sound Vision Campaign.

Born and raised in Madison, SD, Meg is a graduate of SDSU. Prior to joining Friends of SDPB, Meg worked for area nonprofits, including the American Cancer Society, Dow Rummel Village, and most recently, Volunteers of America: Dakotas. "I've considered myself a public radio 'junkie' for several years," says Meg. "I enjoy staying informed on news and current events. I especially love the arts and culture public broadcasting offers. My husband is a mega fan of Ask This Old House. My children love everything PBS KIDS, from Daniel Tiger, to Wild Kratts and Pinkalicious.

Meg has enjoyed interacting with like-minded folks who appreciate public broadcasting. "I've enjoyed learning why and how much our supporters love and feel connected to SDPB," says Meg. "I can remember seeing the SDPB booth at the South Dakota Festival of Books nearly 10 years ago and thinking, 'that would be an incredible organization to work for!' I feel privileged to have the opportunity to be a part of this vital South Dakota resource. I especially look forward to getting to know SDPB supporters across our great state."

Meg lives in Sioux Falls with her husband, Bryan, and sons Hank and Walt.

Adam Davenport

Adam Davenport joins Friends of SDPB as the Chief Information Officer, where he oversees the member database, processes donations, and coordinates member mailings. "If you contact Friends to change your address, make a pledge, update your member payment information, it's likely that I will be working with you," says Adam.

Adam says he's thrilled to be a part of the Friends of SDPB team. "My wife and I enjoy listening to public radio. We're avid fans of NPR's Wait, Wait Don't Tell Me and Planet Money. I always have SDPB Radio on in the car and it's one of my primary sources for news."

Adam and his wife live in Sioux Falls.

are so many. Folks have been kind to share what they know. They've sent photographs, provided great feedback and more. I know there are so many more stories to tell and I wish I had more time to tell all those stories that deserve to be told. Vanished South Dakota: Towns of Yesterday has created a community and a place through our Facebook page. I encourage folks to continue to turn there with their stories, images and suggestions. My hope is that we've just scratched the surface with this project and we can do more projects like it moving forward. Big Family: The Story of Bluegrass Music

SDPB1: Friday, August 30, 8pm (7 MT)

Tune in for a deep dive into bluegrass — its origins, the pioneers who shaped its sound, and its worldwide appeal. Narrated by actor and bluegrass enthusiast Ed Helms, the film traces the genre's history — outlining how Scots-Irish and African-American influences led Bill Monroe to develop the distinct musical genre to its foothold in popular culture through television and movies.

Big Family begins by exploring the life of Bill Monroe, who moved, along with his brothers, from the tiny town of Rosine, Ky., to Chicago, to find work, just as many others did during the 1930s. Monroe got his start on WLS, at the time the largest radio station in Chicago. When Monroe moved from Chicago to Nashville, he became a hit on the Grand Ole Opry stage and solidified his place in music history as the "Father of Bluegrass."

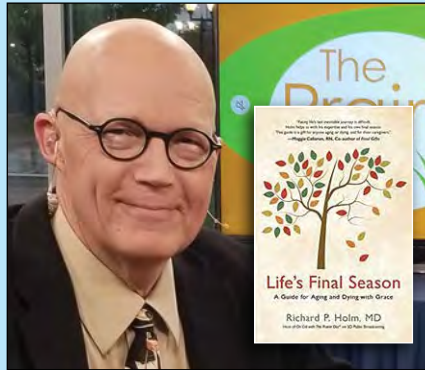

More than 50 musicians appear in the film, including Alison Brown, Dale Ann Bradley, Sam Bush, JD Crowe, Bela Fleck, Laurie Lewis, Del McCoury, Bobby Osborne, Ricky Skaggs, Chris Thile, and many more.

Frankie Drake Mysteries Season 2

Set in 1920s Toronto, in the age of flyboys, gangsters, rum-runners, and speakeasies; the series follows the adventures of Frankie Drake (Lauren Lee Smith) and her partner Trudy Clarke (Chantel Riley) at Drake Private Detectives, the city's only all-female detective agency. Frankie and her team find themselves solving cases the police can't, and other detective agencies won't. In the second season, cases will take Frankie and her team of gal pals across prohibition-era Toronto, from renowned museums and high fashion houses, to dance halls and baseball leagues. Available August 12.

Line of Separation

After the fall of the Third Reich, the small town of Tannbach is cruelly divided down the middle in the battle between East and West regimes and the town's inhabitants suffer the consequences. A gripping historical drama exploring the devastating and sobering effects that decades of conflict had on the close-knit German communities after the second world war. Available August 1.

Passport is available for $5/month. Visit SDPB.org/passport for details.

Nearly a billion miles from the Sun lies perhaps the most captivating and beloved planet: Saturn. Over the past 40 years, a handful of space probes has given us glimpses of this gas giant, relaying tantalizing discoveries like a massive hexagonal jet-stream that caps its north pole. NOVA The Planets: Saturn takes you inside NASA's Cassini's epic journey as it makes its most stunning discovery yet: geysers of ice and gas on the moon Enceladus show that it could have all the ingredients for life. But to protect it, Cassini's team must make a bittersweet decision.

SDPB1: Wednesday, August 7, 8pm (7 MT)

SDPB2: Thursday, August 8, 6 & 11pm (5 & 10 MT)

To Catch a Comet details the complexities and challenges of the 10-year, four-million-mile journey of the European Space Agency's (ESA) spacecraft Rosetta as it chased down and landed on the Comet 67P/Churyumov-Gerasimenko in a history-making feat.

Friends of SDPB Introduces SDPB Legacy Society

"I have always found SDPB to be the media service which expands South Dakotans' perspectives and enriches our lives," says Tamara Pier, Friends of SDPB Board of Directors and Legacy Society member. "I am now grateful to help sustain its future with a legacy gift."

In July 2019, SDPB transitioned from the previously named "Heritage Circle" to the SDPB Legacy Society.

The SDPB Legacy Society is composed of generous and forward-thinking donors who will support SDPB's long-term success through a planned gift.

Becoming a Legacy Society member helps ensure that SDPB will remain South Dakota's most trusted news and entertainment outlet for generations to come.

Joining the SDPB Legacy Society is simple. Moreover, one need not be a millionaire to be a part of the SDPB legacy. Planned gifts can be provided in several ways, including bequests, beneficiary designations, and charitable remainder trusts. Each option gives SDPB supporters the opportunity to leave a mark on this vital community resource.

We invite you to join Tamara Pier and other Legacy Society members by including a gift to SDPB in your estate plans or with a gift to our endowment. To show our appreciation, you will receive an invitation to our annual SDPB Legacy Society induction event in October 2019, as well as invitations to select SDPB events and screenings.

Additionally, you will be recognized in SDPB Magazine, and be provided with a lifetime subscription to the monthly publication.

We are pleased to announce that Legacy Society members will be honored with an artisan-made sculpture, appropriately named "Generations" as a symbol of the impact you will have on the future of SDPB.

Become an SDPB Legacy Society member today to ensure "Generations" is an original bronze sculpture from artist Cameron Stalheim, creator of USD's "Legacy" mascot sculpture and Sioux Falls Sculpture Walk "Persist" sculpture.

trustworthy journalism and compelling entertainment tomorrow.
