Segment One—Prehistoric Art/Stone Mosaics

There are many signs of prehistoric settlement and occupation scattered around the state. Stone circles, effigy mounds, and other man-made structures built by the area's first occupants provide some insight into what might have been important to those people.

Producer: Chad Andersen

Segment Two—Mitchell's Prehistoric Village

How an ancient Indian village is being explored and interpreted. The village was a thriving community along Firesteel about a thousand years ago. The present facility features a covered dig arena and various amenities for those who come to watch the work and learn from the artifacts.

Producer: Joshua Gates

Segment Three—Our State Parks – Blood Run Nature Area

A profile of Blood Run Nature Area, the newest property in the South Dakota State Parks system. Blood Run is the site of an old Indian village that thrived between 1400 and 1700 A.D.

Producer: Brian Gevik

Segment Four—The Turner County Fair

Why some say the oldest county fair in the state is also still the best. The annual event in Parker has been held almost every year since 1885.

Producer: Brian Gevik

FORMAT: DAKOTA LIFE is half-hour, monthly magazine style program. The program features 3 segments per show, each featuring different people and places from across the state. Each half-hour program is themed and the segments all revolve around a central idea. The program is hosted by Larry Rohrer, who transitions between the segments with additional information for the viewers and informs where and how they can learn more about each segment.

Segment One—Dust Bowl Memories

Those old enough to recall the dirty thirties talk about surviving the Dust Bowl experience of drought and economic depression.

Producer: Brian Gevik

Segment Two—Lessons of the Dust Bowl

At the height of the drought that led to the nation's worst farm crisis, the Federal government established an agency to help farmers better understand the principles of soil, water, and other natural resource conservation measures. These principles, once widely adopted, changed agriculture in the United States for the better, and the work continues.

Producer: Brian Gevik

Segment Three—Forestburg Melons

Watermelons can grow in extremely dry conditions and in marginal soils. It just so happens that the micro-climate and the fields around Forestburg are perfect for melons, and Forestburg-area farmers have gained a regional reputation for growing some of the best melons anywhere.

Producer: Chad Andersen

Segment One—The Super Swords of SDSM&T

Metallurgical engineering students at the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology are attempting to make a samurai-style sword from scratch. They're finding that it's not easy, but they have an authentic antique sword to use as a model. The old sword was donated to the school by an alumnus. That sword, by the way, was appraised during the the Rapid City edition of 'Antiques

Roadshow'

Producer: Charles Michael Ray

Segment Two—ABANA Blacksmith's Conference

A national conference put on by the Artist Blacksmith Association of North America came to Rapid City. This is a look at what some of the blacksmith's produce.

Producer: Charles Michael Ray

Segment Three—Pouring the PCJ2 Nugget

The largest Black Hills gold nugget still known to exist was cloned at a Hill City foundry. The original nugget, found by prospector Potato Creek Johnny, now has a sister nugget, the Potato Creek Johnny 2 nugget. The second nugget is being auctioned off for charity.

Producer: Charles Michael Ray

Segment Four—The Trail of Governors

A series of bronze statues is being created and cast in honor of South Dakota governors. The first three were dedicated at a Capitol building ceremony in Pierre.

Producer: Stephanie Rissler

Segment Five—Our State Parks: Palisades

A profile of a small state park on Split Rock Creek near Garretson. Palisades is the only place to rock climb on State land on the eastern side of the state.
