

In the fourth quarter of 2021, KMUW continued a focus on health issues related to the pandemic as well as our economy and tech sector. This quarter, we also emphasized coverage of local elections and government, as local school board positions and city council positions were battled over, and many elected officials unseated. Education was a big focus this quarter as well, as children in our listening area struggled to make up for lost time. Our coverage, as always, spanned radio and web with photos and links on our multiple platforms. We continue our partnership with the Kansas News Service for public radio stations. Our news team is supplemented by Wichita State interns. We also feature in this report the work of our new part-time reporter, Daniel Caudill.

KMUW continues to cover topics that our community expresses a desire to understand or has a need to know about. We foster dialogue with our area's residents via community projects and listening practices that attract a variety of voices. KMUW enables the community to ask their own questions about timely subject matter through regular virtual Engage ICT: Democracy on Tap civic engagement events. Projects like these, as well as one-on-one conversations, provide staff with input on topics relevant to Wichitans in order to best inform them.
