In the third quarter of 2021, KMUW has continued a focus on health issues related to COVID-19 as well as our rebounding economy. While businesses are mostly reopened, there has been a push-and-pull with public health due to the Delta variant in Kansas. Our education coverage continues to be highly important as well, as houses of learning and other organizations grappled with how to have in-person interaction that is also safe...even while many children and other individuals are not vaccinated. Our coverage, as always, spanned radio and web with photos and links on our multiple platforms. We continue our partnership with the Kansas News Service for public radio stations. Our news team is supplemented by Wichita State interns. We also feature in this report the work of our Korva Coleman Diversity in Journalism Intern, Katelynn McIlwain.

KMUW continues to cover topics that our community expresses a desire to understand or has a need to know. We foster dialogue with our area's residents via community projects and listening practices that draw in a variety of voices. KMUW enables the community to ask their own questions about timely subject matter through regular virtual Democracy on Tap civic engagement events. Projects like these, as well as one-on-one conversations, provide staff with input on topics relevant to Wichitans in order to best inform them.
