WTVN
Quarterly Issues/Programs List

WTVN provides its listeners with programming and public service announcements that address issues of concern to our local community. Among the issues determined to be of most concern to the community during the preceding calendar quarter were:

- 2018 Year-End Review: This special edition shared clips from previous 2018 programs covering the issues of education, employment, housing, neighborhood development, race relations/diversity, health and wellness and the arts.
- Blood donation: Staff and volunteers from the American Red Cross discussed the importance of blood donations and offered information on the qualifications to be a blood donor.
- Childhood cancer research: Alan Shutz, Development Director for the American Cancer Society, talked about how the vast majority of children with cancer recover. He said that a lot of research, care and funding are still needed. He offered information to help listeners engage.
- Community involvement: In this special presentation for the Christmas holiday, area school children were interviewed about how they are using the holiday break to serve their community by volunteering with several local non-profit organizations and community centers.
- Consumer news: Thomas Moore of the Better Business Bureau talked about how consumers can watch out for fraudulent vehicle sales claims, which he said has been on the rise in Ohio for the past year. He gave detailed information about scams that hijack trustworthy brands and vehicle protection programs.
- Heart health: Krista Barber, Communications Director for the American Heart Association, talked about how heart-healthy eating can help protect your family from cardiovascular disease, which she said is linked to excess body weight and other risk factors.
- Helping kids in need: Cheryl Miller-Collins talked about the Kids In Need Foundation, and how it gives teachers from low-income schools a chance to collect free school supplies for their students.
- Living with diabetes: This special edition took a closer look at what it means to have diabetes and provided information, tools and resources to help manage and or reduce an individual's risk of developing the disease.

- Ohio home ownership: Representatives from the Ohio Homeowners Council talked about how people still believe in the value of home ownership, even with the current ups and downs of the housing market.
- Ohio opioid crisis: Dr. David Wells of Columbus Urgent Care talked about the mental heaviness of the current opioid crisis and its effect on family members not directly involved with the drug use. Wells said he will host a series of community forums at area churches to address the issue.
- Prescription drug abuse prevention: Officials from the Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America discussed how one in five teens has abused prescription drugs. They offered information to parents to help their teens by talking and listening to them regularly and getting directly involved in their everyday world.
- Reading's importance to children: Lori Smith of the Ohio Department of Education discussed how helping youngsters learn to love reading maybe easier and more important than many parents realize. She offered information about nonprofit organizations and corporations which are working together to support education.
- Safe driving: Allison Weller of the Ohio Safety Council talked about the recent uptick in distracted driving accidents and steps we can all take to create awareness and promote prevention.
