THIS WEEK, SURGEON GENERAL CALLED IT A MAJOR PUBLIC HEALTH PROBLEM THAT REQUIRES IMMEDIATE ACTION. LIKE WHAT? CARRY AN UMBRELLA, MORE SKIN SCREEN? DR. SLUCARE DERMATOLOGIST DR. SCOTT FOSKO MAY OFFER SOME INSIGHT...GOOD MORNING...THOUGHTS ON THIS LATEST ATTENTION? Nearly 5 million people are treated for skin cancer each year. STORY THIS WEEK ABOUT VITAMIN D WE NEED TO GET MORE SUN....HUMMMMHOW MUCH OF THIS IS GENES...? I KNOW ROOFERS AND LANDSCAPERS CAN'T GET THEM TO WEAR SUNSCREEN...ATHLETES DON'T LIKE IT GETS IN THE EYES AND BURNS....The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has set five goals for communities to decrease the risk of skin cancer, such as providing shade at parks, schools and other public spaces, and reducing indoor tanning. A dermatologist himself, Lushniak said it's important for parents to teach their children about sun safety, just as they would dental care and eating healthily. "We have to change the social norms about tanning," he said. "Tanned skin is damaged skin, and we need to shatter the myth that tanned skin is a sign of health."

It's not clear from the study whether the longer lifespan is directly caused by running. The researchers were only able to prove a strong link between running and living longer. There could be other reasons that runners live longer. It could be that healthy people are the ones who choose to run, noted the study's authors. The investigators did try to control the data to account for such factors though. GOOD NEWS FOR RUNNERS. WHETHER YOU ARE A 15 MINUTE MILER OR AN ELITE MARATHONER, RESEARCHERS SAY RUNNING IN GENERAL CAN BE GOOD FOR YOUR HEALTH.

MATT HARDECKE/AMENDMENT ONE PROPONENT "As an American farmer, I believe it is my right that the size of my cattle herd should only be limited by my ability and my dreams..not government regulation." BOB BAKER/AMENDMENT ONE OPPONENT: "The real supporters are of this are the big corporate farm, the big industrial type farms because they don't want any regulations on their CAFOs..their confined animal feeding operations and some of our small rural counties do have some really strict health regulations." BETSEY BRUCE/MARYLAND HEIGHTS : " There are family farmers on both sides of this issue as well as corporations and a national animal rights group that have put money into it." MATT HARDECKE : "You always follow the money and the money.. . Three hundred seventy five thousand has come from outside the state. I think they've raised 30,000 in side the state Whereas all the money for the pro side, Missouri Farmers Care has been raised from Missouri and Missouri farmers."

Story: Obama Options In Iraq and Syria

Date: 8/22/14 11am, 6pm, 9pm

Synopsis: WASHINGTON (AP) -- At the heart of President Barack Obama's quandary over the Islamic State militants is their haven in Syria. The president may continue helping Iraqi forces try to reverse the group's land grabs in northern Iraq by providing more arms and American military advisers and by using U.S. warplanes to support Iraqi ground operations. But what if the militants pull back, even partially, into Syria and regroup, as Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel on Thursday predicted they would, followed by a renewed offensive?"In a sense, you're just sort of back to where you were" before they swept into Iraq, said Robert Ford, a former U.S. ambassador to Syria who quit in February in disillusionment over Obama's unwillingness to arm moderate Syrian rebels."I don't see how you can contain the Islamic State over the medium term if you don't address their base of operations in Syria," he said in an interview before an intensified round of U.S. airstrikes this week helped Kurdish and Iraqi forces recapture a Tigris River dam near Mosul that had fallen under control of Islamic State militants.

Date: 8/8/14 4am, 6am, 8am, 11am, 6pm, 9pm, 10pm

Synopsis: ST. LOUIS • A judge has ordered the city police department to pick up the ACLU's $100,000 legal tab in the fight for access to disciplinary records related to the World Series Ticket scandal. The order, like everything else in the multiyear legal battle, has been appealed. And the majority of the documents at the center of the scuffle remain locked up, also awaiting a decision by a higher court. The battle is over disciplinary records of officers who used Cardinals tickets seized from scalpers during the 2006 World Series. In his ruling Wednesday, Circuit Judge Robert Dierker pointed out that a trial court judge before him already ordered the department to turn over the records in 2010, citing the state's sunshine law. But legal maneuvering nonetheless kept them out of the hands of the American Civil Liberties Union, which sued for access not long after the scandal broke.

THIS IS THE EMERGENCY OPERATION CENTER, 14 DIFFERENT PODS WILL BE STAFFED BY FIRE, POLICE, HEALTH OFFICIALS AND REPRESENTATIVES FROM EVERY COUNTY DEPARTMENT WHEN SOMETHING LIKE A TORNADO ROLLS THROUGH A NEIGHBORHOOD. IT REPLACES THE OLD CENTER THAT WAS BUILT DURING THE COLD WAR IN THE LATE 50'S AND IS NO LONGER BIG ENOUGH OR USEFUL. Mark Diedrich/Emergency Management Specialist says: It became more and more difficult to bring in new technology to that existing space. JUST DOWN THE HALL IS THE STILL UNDER CONSTRUCTION 911 DISPATCHING CENTER. IT WILL OPEN BY THE END OF THE YEAR. OUTSIDE, CREWS ARE WORKING ON THE TOWER INSTALLING SPECIAL EQUIPMENT FOR DISPATCHERS WHO ARE NOW WORKING OUT OF CLAYTON, THE EOC WAS IN CHESTERFIELD. NOW THE TWO WILL ONLY BE FEET AWAY FROM EACH OTHER. Mark Diedrich says: Every second we save gathering information and dissemination is what most likely is going to save a life.

Story: Alzheimers Eye Test

Date: 7/14/14 6am, 8am, 11am, 6pm

Synopsis: Simple regular eye tests could be used to identify Alzheimer's disease at a very early stage, new research suggests.Early trials of two different techniques show that a key biomarker for the disease can be identified in the retina and lens of the eye.Both methods were able to distinguish between healthy volunteers and those likely to be suffering from Alzheimer's patients with a high level of accuracy.Experts said the findings could be a 'game changer' in treatment of the condition.So far attempts to find drugs to halt progression of Alzheimer`s disease have failed because patients receiving treatment already suffered too much damage to the brain. Many scientists believe that successful prevention or treatment of disease hinges on identifying cases long before any symptoms show.Although the research is still at an early stage, further work could see such tests used as a first step in identifying individuals with Alzheimer's.After an initial eye test, more expensive and costly procedures such as PET (positron emission tomography) scans or spinal fluid analysis would be used to confirm the disease.Researchers said the tests could be used as part of regular eye checks by opticians.
