Subject: CSU-Pueblo News Release: Testing Electric Cars

Summary: In conjunction with a variety of "green" discussions being held nationally this week, Colorado State University-Pueblo is previewing two environmentally-friendly electric vehicles over the next week that may provide maintenance to the campus and grounds rather than traditional trucks from the state fleet.

PHOTO CUTLINES: CSU-Pueblo Director of Facilities Craig Cason shows off the two electric vehicles being tested over the next week for possible use by the campus facilities crews. The University is testing a 2007 GEM el two-passenger electric motorcar with flatbed and a 2007 Zenn, equipped with front-wheel drive, brisk acceleration, and a regulated maximum speed of 25 mph (40 km/h).
