Tornado Damage Reported in Coweta

Date: 10/12/21 9am

Duration: 1:30

Julia Gorman

Several homes and a school were damaged after an EF-1 tornado tore through Coweta. No injuries or deaths were reported in the storm, but lots of damage were left behind. Members of the Coweta High School football and baseball teams helped with the cleanup process. Debris was found along fields near the high school. School administrators decided to extend fall break to continue to cleanup and make repairs on campus. City officials also warned residents of scammers coming in, offering to make repairs following the storm.

Date: 10/22/21 9am

Duration: :20

Michelle Linn

Surveillance video from Mission Intermediate School in Coweta shows the moment that the EF-1 tornado approached the building. The video shows debris moving through the hallways. Crews continue to make repairs on the campus, weeks after the tornado.

Strong Storms Arrive in Green Country

Date: 10/26/21 6:30pm

Duration: 3:00

James Aydelott

It has been warm this week, but a cold front is bringing the chance of severe weather to Green Country this evening. Strong storms are expected, along with high winds and the possibility of hail. The storms are expected to linger into the morning commute. Make sure to bring in any plants or outdoor items that can fly away during the storm.

November Weather Outlook

Date: 11/1/21 6:30pm

Duration: 3:00

James Aydelott

Fall has arrived, and usually we're experiencing cooler temperatures by now. However, we are expecting to see higher than average temperatures for the next few weeks. You can expect highs in the upper 70s or lower 60s for the next few days. We may even break some records as we move towards the end of the year. It's a stark contrast from this time last year, as we experienced lower temperatures and even some snow and ice into early December.

Ending Daylight Savings Time

Date: 11/5/21 6:30pm

Duration: 2:00

James Aydelott

Daylight Savings comes to an end this weekend. This means that sunrises will be delayed in the morning and the sunset will be rushed, giving us a shorter day. The shortest day of the year is expected to fall next month, just a few days before Christmas. Despite the shorter days, we are expecting to have warmer temperatures with plenty of sunshine over the next few days.

Tulsa Prepares for Overnight Freeze Warning

Date: 11/18/21 6:30pm

Duration: :45

James Aydelott

Green Country is expecting its first Freeze Warning of the Fall tonight. Temperatures could reach the high 20s, so many people will need to take precautions. Pets need to come inside, along with delicate plants. Be mindful of pipes in your home and outside. The cooler temperatures are expected to linger for several days.

Green Country Resident Gathers Donations, Funds to Help Tornado Victims

Date: 12/13/21 6:30pm

Duration: :55

Shae Rozzi

Parts of Arkansas, Tennessee, Missouri, and Kentucky have been devastated by massive tornadoes and severe storms. One man who currently lives in the Coweta area posted a message on Facebook, asking anyone in his community to donate items that he can take when he visits family in Tennessee later this month. The post exploded, resulting in hundreds of donations and funds to help those in need, just days after the storms rocked the region.

Tulsa County Woman Inspired to Help Tornado Victims, Gathers Donations

Date: 12/23/21 6:30pm

Duration: 1:20

Tanya Modersitzki

A pair of Tulsa women say they were inspired by God to help people impacted by December's devastating tornadoes in Arkansas, Tennessee, Missouri, and Kentucky. Minyon Durrah and Lauren Volpe collected toiletries, baby items, and clothing to take to tornado victims. The pair also gathered toys for donations, since it is close to Christmas. They ask Tulsans to donate what they can to the American Red Cross.

Preparing for a Warm New Year's Eve

Date: 12/28/21 6:30pm

Duration: :45

Laura Mock

Temperatures continue to stay warm during the last week of 2021. There will be plenty of sunshine during the day, leading to breezy, unseasonable warmth. However, we can expect a massive drop in temperature once we enter 2022, thanks to a cold front arriving from Canada. So, enjoy the warm weather while you can!
