Do I Have Diabetes Campaign

New update for DACA

Florida Exclusivo

The Florida Department of Health is urging parents to prepare their children now for this upcoming school year. Parents may visit their child's medical provider or the health department to obtain their required vaccines and school physicals for school entry and help keep their children safe from vaccine preventable diseases. The Department is also reminding parents about the importance of keeping their children's smile healthy by having their teeth checked before the new school year.

The ADA, AMA and CDC partnered with the Ad Council campaign to raise awareness about pre-diabetes uses animal videos to encourage Americans to know their risk. Many people regularly spend a minute looking at pictures and videos of cute animals online, so they can also use that minute to find out about their health.

As a candidate, Donald Trump promised to revoke DACA, which was created in 2012, along with a 2014 executive order that also sought to shield undocumented immigrants from deportation. However, the government has left DACA untouched, and the agency has continued to renew work permits and issue new ones through the program.

Activists around the nation rallied to protect the DACA immigration program. The Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) is an immigration policy created by the Obama administration in June 2012 to allow certain undocumented immigrants who entered the country as minors, to receive a renewable two-year permit to stay in the country and eligibility for a work permit.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) just issued an incredibly dangerous order for a two year delay on methane pollution standards that keep families around these areas healthy.
