Breast Cancer Awareness Month in October ----- Help Assistance for Puerto Rico after Hurricane Maria	Florida Exclusivo	According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the risk of breast cancer increases with age. Mammograms are the best way to find breast cancer early, when treatment is more effective. Women should talk with their health care provider about individual risk factors and the frequency of receiving mammograms. ----- It has been almost a month since Puerto Rico was hit by a devastating hurricane, yet millions of Americans are still suffering a humanitarian crisis. While Donald Trump quickly helped Florida Texas and Louisiana, Puerto Ricans were told their federal assistance was only temporary even though millions of people lost their homes and could face months without electricity. Thousand are heading to Florida.	Mirna Chamorro Spokesperson for Florida Health Department ----- Francisco Pelayo Director of Hispanic Media and Regional Press Secretary DNC	10/21/2017	1hr.
Latinos suffer from asthma in greater proportion than the rest of the population ----- Florida is a heavily Puerto Rican community, donations are pouring in from people worried about family on the Caribbean island ravaged by Hurricane Maria.	Florida Exclusivo	Many Americans live in places where it is dangerous to breathe. About 40% of the population more than 126 million people lives in areas that do not meet minimum air quality standards set by the federal government.----- Puerto Ricans are Americans and the federal help and funds are getting to the Island in a slowly matter. Many donations are poring from Florida. What are the needs, how can Floridians help?	Richard L. "Ricky" Revez Director of the American Law Institute and a Law Professor and Dean Emeritus at the New York University School of Law ----- Carlos Guzman President of National Puerto Rican Leadership Counsel Education Fund Inc. and Jimmy Torres President of Iniciativa and Coordinator of CASA	10/28/2017	1 hr.

Help with disaster unemployment assistance due to hurricane Irma. What to Expect After You Apply, How to Appeal a FEMA Decision, Beware of Fraud and Price Gouging and deadlines dates.

Puerto Ricans are fleeing their hurricane ravaged island and are pouring into the U.S. mainland. Many are bound for Florida, which is already home to more than a million Puerto Ricans, or nearly a fifth of the 5.4 million living in the 50 states. Local officials and volunteers are already scrambling to help thousands of new arrivals find new homes, jobs and schools.

Millions of Americans provide their services as caregivers to relatives or friends who need help taking care of themselves, helping with daily tasks such as personal care, housework and medication administration. However, Hispanic caregivers spend most of their time caring for their loved ones, with more than 80 hours of dedicated service per month - almost twice as many hours as white.

In the aftermath of Hurricane Irma and Maria many pets joined the ranks of strays, precariously living on Florida and Puerto Rico's streets. Some owners who evacuated left their pets behind during the storm, and surviving animals confused, hungry, and traumatized either were trapped or wandered away from their homes.
