Slug: PRESIDENT RACE

Today U.S. Senator Marco Rubio announced his plans to run for President in 2016, following in the footsteps of fellow Republicans Senator Ted Cruz and Rand Paul. One name not in that mix, at least not yet, is Governor Scott Walker. News 19's Caroline Hecker explains what Governor Walker needs to do to stay competitive against heavyweights like Hillary Clinton and Marco Rubio in a potential run for presidency.

Slug: POT POLITICS

A Wisconsin State Representative has introduced a bill calling for the legalization of marijuana . Representative Melissa Sargent says a legal marijuana industry would lead to new revenues for the state through taxes and permit fees. But assembly republicans, who are in the majority, have safety concerns about legalizing pot. They say they'll monitor statistics emerging from Colorado, where marijuana is now legal. And if those stats show there is no public safety risk, republicans could be open to the idea down the road. Sargent says the bill will contain stiff penalties for those caught with large amounts of pot and selling it illegally. Governor Walker says he is not interested in signing any bill that legalizes marijuana.

Slug: LAND BUYS

Another proposal in the Governor's budget calls for a thirteen year suspension of the state's purchase of land for use in parks, recreation and conservation. It's the same program that helped La Crosse area groups buy bluff land for conservation, which prevents development of the land. Under Walker's proposal funding would be frozen until 2028. Mississippi Valley Conservancy says most of the land they buy is purchased with stewardship dollars. Walker's proposal to freeze land stewardship funding would prevent them from expanding in the future. The Mississippi Valley Conservancy preserves six thousand acres of land with the stewardship money. Four thousand of those are open to the public.

Slug: CAMERAS

A new camera surveillance system project in downtown La Crosse is nearing completion as the La Crosse City Vision Foundation will select a contractor to install surveillance cameras throughout downtown La Crosse. La Crosse police say they've always wanted a surveillance system like this in downtown La Crosse but haven't had the funding to make it happen. That is until the La Crosse City Vision Foundation stepped up and so far has raised nearly 450 thousand dollars to buy and install the system. The Vision Foundation says the idea for an intricate camera system downtown has been in the works for several years following the 2012 double homicide of Paul and A.J. Peetras at May's Photo on Main Street. Since then the group has raised enough money to buy and install 35 cameras which will be placed on light poles around downtown and will monitor sidewalks, alleys, parking lots and parking ramp activity, and hopefully help speed up criminal investigations. The police department says the camera system will be passive meaning it will use it to review incidents that occur, rather than have an officer watching the video from the cameras 24/7. Mike Kiel, a board member of the La Crosse City Vision Foundation, says the cameras will not be used for traffic control, meaning they will not be used by police to catch speeders or people running red lights in downtown. The cameras will be placed as far north as Vine Street and extend down to Cass Street. Yearly maintenance and upkeep of the cameras will be funded by the police department.

Slug: SPEED-LIMIT

The State Senate has approved a bill that would allow Wisconsin transportation officials to raise the speed limit on some roads to 70 mph. The bill would permit the DOT to raise the limit on roads they deem fit. The Senate passed the measure on a voice vote today. It goes to the State Assembly next. Both Houses must pass an identical bill before it can go to Scott Walker for his signature. No word if the Governor supports the measure.

A Federal Judge refused to issue an injunction today that would have allowed Shirley Abrahamson to remain as the State's Chief Justice. U.S. District Judge James Peterson says he didn't see any harm if Justice Patience Roggensack serves as Chief Justice while he decides the case. Voters amended the state constitution last month. That vote allowed Justices to choose a Chief rather than giving the job to the longest serving Justice. Abrahamson has filed a federal lawsuit alleging her rights would be violated if she were demoted before her current term ends in 2019.

Today is the final day of the 2015 Minnesota Legislative session. This morning, the House did pass an education bill that includes 400 million dollars in new money for education. But the bill does not include the universal pre-school program that the Governor wants. The bill now goes to the Senate. Governor Dayton has threatened to veto the bill if pre-k is not funded. The republican House Speaker said this is the only bill Dayton is getting. Dayton says if lawmakers can't send him a budget he'll sign before the deadline, they can meet in a special session on the capitol lawn under a tent. That's because the capitol is undergoing a massive renovation that will make the House and Senate chambers inaccessible starting next week.

What started as a noise dispute leads to a heated moment at last night's city council meeting. At issue? Whether Stolpa's Stein Haus on Jay Street could continue operating its outdoor beer garden. Neighbors and a city council member outside of the downtown district say the bar is too loud. The owner says he's gone above and beyond to both accommodate neighbors and serve his customers. The license was ultimately renewed for the year, and the downtown council member says there was really no threat to that. But some of those involved say this debate is just an example of the larger issue of balancing living and working downtown. News 19 reached out to one of the neighbors who filed the complaint against the Stein Haus seeking comment. That person did not return our call.

Slug: MN SEX OFFEND

A federal judge has struck down Minnesota's controversial sex offender treatment program. The judge ruled Wednesday that it is unconstitutional for the state to lock up civilly committed sex offenders indefinitely. The judge added the program fails to regularly assess offenders' risk levels and provide access to alternative treatment. People who are ordered into the program get sent to one of two treatment facilities after serving prison sentences. The program came under fire for rarely letting people out. As a result, more than seven hundred people have sued the state in a class-action lawsuit. Wednesday's ruling doesn't mean the offenders will be getting out now and the judge didn't mandate any change to the program yet. However, he did propose a series of reforms to be discussed at a hearing in August.

Slug: WALKER GUNS

As speculation surrounding his possible run for the White House grows, Governor Scott Walker signs two gun bills into law. One ends the state's forty-eight-hour waiting period on handgun purchases. The other allows retired officers to carry guns on school property. Governor Walker signed the legislation this afternoon at the Milwaukee County Sheriff's Office. He defended the timing in the wake of the deadly shooting in Charleston, South Carolina that killed nine people. The Governor also weighed in on the debate over whether the confederate flag should be removed from South Carolina's state capitol. He says he supports Governor Nikki Haley's call for its removal.

La Crosse police say officers arrested a man in the act of an armed burglary on the north side this morning. Police say a resident at 315 9th Street North called 911 to report he awoke in his bedroom to find a man standing over him holding a flashlight. The caller said the suspect had left his apartment and was outside trying to access other apartments in the area. Police arrived at 317 9th Street North around 3:30 a.m. and found the front door to the apartment open. Officers entered the apartment and found a man hiding behind a corner wall in one of the bedrooms. They say he was holding a flashlight and a large knife. Police arrested 20-year old Adonis Dixon. During a search, officers found two iPods and a small bag of meth on Dixon. Dixon has been charged with burglary, burglary-armed with a dangerous weapon, and possession of meth.

An update now on a story we brought you last December when a Wisconsin woman was killed in a workplace accident in Fountain City. The bar where the woman worked now faces a fine for a safety violation. Twenty one year old Brooke Baures from Barron County Wisconsin was a student at Winona State University. She died last December at the Wing Dam Saloon and Grill where she worked. Police believe her head was inside a food elevator when she pushed the button to send it to the floor below. She died of head injuries. Now the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, or OSHA, is citing the bar for a safety violation classified as 'serious'. OSHA says the food elevator should have been equipped with locks to prevent it from moving when employees reached into it. The bar has since removed the elevator. The citation carries a seven thousand dollar fine. The bar has 15 days to contest the citation and fines.

Wisconsin has the highest rate of drunken driving in the nation. The most recent data shows alcohol related crashes took the lives of 223 people in Wisconsin in 2012 leaving nearly 3,000 people injured, prompting lawmakers in Madison to say enough is enough. They are proposing stricter regulations when it comes to operating under the influence. Wisconsin is the only state that doesn't criminalize a first offense OWI. Lawmakers in Madison are working to change that. Representative Terese Berceau's bill would criminalize first-time drunk driving, increase the current fine of $300 to $500 and impose up to 30 days in jail. Officer Brooke Privet with the La Crosse police says criminal charges should be based on blood alcohol level. Changes may be made. Right now the bill is being re-drafted. Representative Berceau says one change she would like to add to the bill would revoke an OWI criminal offense from a person's record if they maintained a clean record for 5 years.

Slug: METH

The use of methamphetamine is on the rise in La Crosse County with a three hundred sixty percent increase in meth related arrests this past year alone. And the way the drug is made may be alarming for the entire community. Meth isn't only dangerous to the user, the task force says it can be devastating to the entire community. The La Crosse Fire Department says portable meth labs are the problem. In the last three years the shake n' bake method, as it's called, has accounts for twenty percent of the department's calls. Because meth is made primarily out of house hold ingredients, it's easy for users to make it on their own and the containers used to make the meth are being tossed away in dumpsters and rental homes only to be found later by someone else. Schott says these can be highly toxic chemicals. Any type of ingestion or inhalation can cause long term damage. Cleaning up portable meth labs can be a challenge too. Schott's team is trained to neutralize and dispose of the chemicals, but it doesn't come without a price. Disposing of a battery used to make meth can cost up to $6,000. The department says they hold the users accountable. That disposal fee goes straight to the homeowner. Schott says they stepped up their training methods to make sure their team is equipped to handle highly toxic situations. The task force says this is a call to action. They don't want you to do anything in particular except keep your eyes open for these signs that someone is making meth. The heroin and other illicit task force meets monthly to try to combat drug use in the La Crosse area.

This year they were done May First and recent showers are helping seeds sprout. Wisconsin crop reports say eighty four percent of the corn crop is rated either good or excellent. But Eau Claire County Extension says corn prices are about as low as they can possibly go and keeping those extra kernels in the market may not improve the situation for farmers. Farmers got nearly seven dollars a bushel between 2012 and 2013. This year they are predicted to get just above three dollars.

Summer means strawberry season is underway at Jolivette Family Farms in West Salem. Jolivette opened its pick-your-own strawberry fields last Monday. They expect to have more than a thousand visitors before the season ends on the Fourth of July. Jolivette has fifteen acres of growing strawberries and say their crop this year is good. One La Crosse woman says there's just something about berries picked from the field that makes them special. "This is my third picking, and I've got about five bags in my freezer. I like to have enough for all winter. Yeah, they're real tasty. I don't know what makes the difference. I guess 'cause they're just fresh, huh?" In August Jolivette's features raspberry picking.

Across the river in La Crescent, apples are also off to a solid start this growing season. Fruit Acres in La Crescent says that for the first time in years their apple crop is on schedule. They look for leaf buds to break in April and flowers to bloom around Mother's Day, with apples coming in after the bloom. Fruit Acres will start harvesting the third week in July and will continue harvesting through October. The orchard's General Manager says Minnesota doesn't grow the most apples but makes up for it with variety. "We're growing some of these wonderfully new, unique varieties such as Honeycrisps and Sweet Tango. And many people don't know that those varieties were actually developed by the University of Minnesota up at their horticultural research station, and they were developed for our climate." Yates says the biggest weather threats to apples during the growing season are wind and hail.

The area in which we live is known as the Driftless Region, named because the glaciers in the ice age never reached here, leading to unique geological formations. There's a high concentration of family farms in the Driftless Region, with more than 180 in Vernon County alone. One local business in Viroqua is taking advantage of what this area has to offer. Doors open at 11 o'clock and the Driftless Cafe is already swarming. Almost everything on their menu is from local family farms. Luke and his wife Ruthie Zahm decided to take advantage of everything the region offers and it's purpose. Luke says "Is to better Viroqua". Last year alone the cafe invested 100 thousand dollars into small family farms just like Toril Fischer's. Both the Zahms and their farmers agree it comes full circle. The Zahms buy from over 30 family farms in the area.

Wisconsin's Dairyland is on the decrease with the lowest number of farms recorded in over a century. The National Agricultural Statistics Service says the state dropped below 10 thousand dairy farms. The state's smallest dairy farms with less than 49 cows are spiraling down toward the 3,000 mark. But local farms haven't given up on the industry just yet. Todd Sevais's farm has been in the family for 135 years. He and his brother Jeff took over the farm in 1991. With about 300 dairy cattle, Sevais says he's proud they are able to sustain their farm, despite challenges in the industry. As to why some farms aren't able to make it, he says it all comes down to expenses, land, machinery and other equipment continues to go up in price. He also says it seems the next generation doesn't have the same interests. Sevais says that's not the case for his family. They plan to hold on to the farm between his nephews and his son. He's certain his farm will carry on despite the falling number of farms. A spokesman for the Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board thinks the state's dairy industry is thriving, as Wisconsin's milk production rose to a record 27.8 billion pounds in 2014.

Tickets to see President Obama during his upcoming visit to La Crosse went on sale to the UWL community this afternoon at 2pm, and the line was anything but short. The line is already extremely long for tickets for the general public starting in about an hour. We were here earlier around 1:45pm, about 15 minutes before tickets were handed out to UWL students, and we were amazed at how long the line already was. By two o'clock there must have been at least a thousand people waiting in line for tickets to see President Obama. The line started right outside the Cartwright Center and extended all the way to Centinell Hall. Many of the students we spoke to in line say they never expected the line to be that long, hoping they're one of the lucky ones to get a ticket. Around 2:25pm or so, less than half an hour after tickets started being handed out, people still in line were told the University was sold out of their allotment for UWL students and staff and to get a ticket they either had to wait in line until the 6 p.m. hand out or leave and come back. Organizers say they were not told by the White House how many tickets they were given, but when they're out, they're out. Safe to say if you plan on getting tickets tonight, get here early. You can't show up at 5:45pm and think you'll be first in line! Sushi, soft cheeses, champagne; the list of things to avoid when you are pregnant is extensive to say the least. But now the nation's top obstetrics group is adding another item to that list. And it may surprise you. Pot and pregnancy; for many of us, it's little surprise that they don't mix. But surprising findings from the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists estimate that as many as half of women who smoke pot before getting pregnant continue to do so during pregnancy. All told, this may account for as many as five percent of all pregnancies. It's a situation that has led the physician group to issue today a special recommendation to pregnant women. If you're expecting, don't smoke marijuana. Obstetricians are sounding the alarm because marijuana may have a harmful effect on the developing brain. Studies show exposure to pot in the womb may be tied to an increased risk of miscarriage as well as lower test scores, poor attention and behavioral problems in childhood. The best time to quit? They say before getting pregnant. Failing that, as soon as you find out you are pregnant. It's a simple step that could make a big difference in your child's future.

Slug: CARE PLANNING A

US Senator Tammy Baldwin is introducing new legislation to give people with serious illnesses the freedom to make more informed choices about their care. In addition, it works to make sure those decisions are honored. It's called "The Care Planning Act" and it models a program founded at Gundersen Health System twenty years ago. The respecting choices program is a design that helps patients and families plan for future health care decisions, preparing for a time when the patient might be unable to do so. The program make that conversation easier determining exactly what the patient wants. Founded nearly a quarter century ago, the program is now globally renowned. That time comes with price. That is what Medicare would take care of. Baldwin says the worst outcome imaginable; to have treatment not match a patient's wishes. The care planning act would reimburse healthcare professionals for engaging in voluntary discussions about end of life care. Gundersen says ninety percent of La Crosse area residents already have a written care plan in place.

A program that's been around for nearly twenty years within the La Crosse School District may come to an end as soon as 2016. SAGE, or Student Achievement Guarantee in Education, is a program designed to provide extra funding for school districts with a high number of low income students. But just last week the State Senate approved a bill that would phase out the SAGE program. Superintendent Nelson says the SAGE program serves a valuable purpose within elementary schools in the district, requiring kindergarten through third grade classes to have no more than 18 students per teacher but by adding more options and flexibility. Nelson says school districts will be able to reduce the achievement gap even more. Currently, the SAGE program brings the La Crosse School District around 2 million dollars a year in funding and to conform to the program's strict guidelines the district uses some of that money to hire more teachers to keep class sizes small. But Nelson says giving districts options in addition to small classrooms like one on one tutoring and coaching teachers will give districts more flexibility. And if SAGE does get phased out one teacher says small classroom sizes must remain a part of the equation.

Intelligence officials say it jeopardizes the country's safety. But one Senator is holding firm to his promise to shut down the NSA's controversial program. The US Senate called in to work on a weekend, but still missed the deadline to keep key parts of US Patriot Act from expiring. It means, right now, the NSA is not allowed to collect phone records in bulk, and the FBI is not allowed to use roving wiretaps to monitor a suspect as they change phones, among other measures. Kentucky Senator Rand Paul refused to allow a final vote on a measure that would extend, then reform, NSA's once-secret mass collection of American's phone records. Civil liberty groups cheered Paul's resistance. But intelligence officials warn any lapse in the program puts the nation at risk, with Al Qaeda and ISIS actively plotting against the west, looking for any cracks in our security systems. A new camera surveillance system project in downtown La Crosse is nearing completion as the La Crosse City Vision Foundation will select a contractor to install surveillance cameras throughout downtown La Crosse. La Crosse police say they've always wanted a surveillance system like this in downtown La Crosse but haven't had the funding to make it happen. That is until the La Crosse City Vision Foundation stepped up and so far has raised nearly 450 thousand dollars to buy and install the system. The Vision Foundation says the idea for an intricate camera system downtown has been in the works for several years following the 2012 double homicide of Paul and A.J. Peetras at May's Photo on Main Street. Since then the group has raised enough money to buy and install 35 cameras which will be placed on light poles around downtown and will monitor sidewalks, alleys, parking lots and parking ramp activity. Hopefully it will help speed up criminal investigations. The police department says the camera system will be passive, meaning it will use it to review incidents that occur rather than have an officer watching the video from the cameras. Mike Kiel, a board member of the La Crosse City Vision Foundation, says the cameras will not be used for traffic control, meaning they will not be used by police to catch speeders or people running red lights in downtown. The cameras will be placed as far north as Vine Street and extend down to Cass Street. Yearly maintenance and upkeep of the cameras will be funded by the police department.

Slug: FIRE

La Crosse firefighters got the call around 9:40 this morning. A fire in an apartment unit in the 1900 block of South 7th Street. A neighbor saw smoke coming from one of the apartments and called it in. The first crew arrived within three minutes. La Crosse Fire Dept says approximately 24 residents were displaced by the fire. Division Chief Tom Wallerich says an eight-year-old boy was playing with a lighter near a couch and that caused the fire. Wallerich says the boy's mother was home at the time. No residents were injured but the apartment sustained severe damage. The Red Cross is helping displaced residents find a place to stay. One firefighter received a minor injury at the scene.

An autopsy will be conducted today on a body found in Black River Falls. Investigators with the Jackson County Sheriff's office are calling the victim's death suspicious. The sheriff's office received an emergency 911 call just before 11 a.m. Sunday morning for a unconscious and not responsive victim. That person was at an area known as the dog park on Vaud-reuil Road. When authorities and rescue workers arrived on scene they discovered the person was dead. Sheriff Waldera says in a statement released Sunday night "initial observation at the scene showed that the death is suspicious in nature." Sheriff Waldera says this is an isolated incident and the public is not in any danger. The victim's identity is not being released. An autopsy will be conducted today in Madison.

The call came in about four thirty to the house at 2204 Kane Street. It caused no major damage. No one was home at the time. A neighbor saw the smoke and called 911, then put his own safety on the line to go into the burning house to make sure no one was inside. He suffered smoke inhalation and needed hospital treatment. The La Crosse Fire Department says the cause is suspicious and is under investigation. Firefighters declined to say what caused them to be suspicious about the origin of the fire. On a side note, we can feel secure in the knowledge that the La Crosse Fire Department is among the best in the Midwest. The La Crosse extrication team earned first place in one contest and second in another at a competition last weekend in Illinois. Teams competed in rescue scenarios involving victims trapped in vehicles.

Slug: ABDUCT10

The ordeal began in Milwaukee County this morning after a man abducted a woman early this morning in Mukwanago, and tonight police identified the suspect as 24 year old Mitchell Owens. Police say the twenty one-year old woman was taking a break from her job at Walmart. Surveillance video shows a car drive up, and a man with a gun forcing her into his car. Sometime later the woman's boyfriend started receiving text messages that led him to believe that she was in trouble. Police tracked the pair using her cell phone, which led them to Eau Claire. Around ten this morning the car was spotted at an Eau Claire Kwik Trip. Shortly after that the woman was able to escape from the car. She is safe and with law enforcement tonight. The man jumped back behind the wheel and led police on a chase that hit one-hundred miles an hour. That chase ended in a crash, and the man ran off. Authorities say the woman identified her abductor, and that the two of them are acquaintances. The search for the man is focused in the Town of Seymour. Police aren't allowing people to go back into their homes in the neighborhood where the man is believed to be hiding. Sheriff Ron Cramer says it's up to the suspect as to what happens next. Again the suspect is identified as Mitchell Owens. Police aren't clarifying the relationship between him and the victim.

The manhunt for a fugitive convicted of murder is over. Police shot and captured escaped inmate David Sweat today less than 50 miles from the prison he escaped on June 6. Authorities say he's alive and being treated at a hospital. New York State Police encountered David Sweat about two miles from the Canadian border Sunday. Authorities say the encounter ended with the escaped inmate being shot twice in an open field in the town of Constable. No officers were injured in the operation. Officials took him to Alice Hyde Medical Center in Malone, New York for treatment. Sweat and fellow inmate Richard Matt escaped from Clinton Correctional facility more than three weeks ago. Matt was shot and killed by police Friday. Sunday area residents were relieved it was finally all over. Prosecutors say two prison employees provided Matt and Sweat with tools to help them escape. The capture of Sweat brings this prison break drama, the first in Clinton Correctional facility's history, to a close. Authorities say New York State Police Sergeant Jay Cook is the officer who spotted and shot David Sweat. According to hospital officials, Sweat is being transported to Albany Medical Center for further treatment.

TO CATCH A FAKE

David Muir heads a year-long "20/20" investigation, with rare access on the ground and behind the scenes with Homeland Security, Customs and Border Protection, FBI, ICE, Interpol, LAPD, and the LA Sheriff's department as they battle the tidal wave of counterfeits entering our country and being sold online, in stores, and on the streets. From the back streets of Los Angeles, to the suburbs of Kansas and the ports of Miami, "20/20" travels to 24 cities spanning three continents. David Muir reports.

Friday, May 22, 2015

WHO'S FREELOADING

- Workers Comp: "20/20" uncovers scores of people accused of faking injuries to claim disability and workers compensation benefits – costing taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars. From the 22 year-old beauty pageant contestant seen strutting down the stage in high heels (even while she is collecting disability for a fractured toe) to the New York Port Authority Police Officer who had to turn in his badge after being caught on Youtube fronting a heavy metal band, these accused con artists are all caught in the act on tape, trying to cash in on false claims. Cecilia Vega rides shotgun with two private eyes hired to crack down on the suspects. (OAD: 10/24/15)
- Bogus Broker: Shannon Lee is accused of illegally claiming ownership of vacant homes -- selling some, renting others, and letting her alleged partner in crime live in another (Shannon was also living in one). But police say it all came crashing down when she snatched the home of a police department employee. Gio Benitez is there as the law came knocking. (OAD: 10/24/15)
- Wedding Crashers: If you are bold enough, you can have all the food and drink you can handle. Paula Faris with the risks some people are willing to take for a thrill and a meal. (OAD: 10/24/15)
- Federal agents rigged up a Social Security office with hidden cameras to catch Lawrence Popp as he came in to be assessed by a local benefits administrator; making bold, categorical claims about his inability to drive or read because of blindness, moments before he hit the freeway as he headed home. Rebecca Jarvis reports on one man caught on camera defrauding social security. (OAD: 1/9/15)

SWEETHEART SWINDLE

"20/20" takes viewers inside an all-time classic con, right out of a Hollywood script – a game of deceit and double dealing starring a mild-mannered millionaire who went looking for love in all the wrong places. Ralph Raines, a quiet and socially awkward heir to a $15 million fortune built by his father, was a simple man living alone on his family's tree farm in Oregon. Ralph had little use for money; what he really wanted was a family – a loving wife, a child of his own.

Among his hobbies -- an interest in the occult. So he thought it was good fortune when a psychic reader named Rachel Lee came to town. Over time, Ralph will reveal everything about his desperate desire for companionship... and his family's money. That was the beginning of an intricate, decade-long scam hatched by Rachel Lee. Before the feds could bust the scam wide open, there would be millions spent on expensive homes and cars, first-class trips around the world, and the mysterious child who Ralph believed was his son.

THE WOLFPACK

Tucked away in Manhattan’s Lower East Side, a family with seven children lived together in a small apartment for more than a decade, but almost no one knew they existed. The children, one daughter and six sons, were raised in four small rooms, homeschooled by their mother and trapped by their father, who allowed them to leave the apartment they shared only for rare, closely supervised outings. Until one day in January 2010, when one son, Mukunda, a middle child who was 15 at the time, found the courage to break free. The story of the Angulo family was revealed through a new documentary, “The Wolfpack,” focusing on the six brothers. Elizabeth Vargas reports.

- America's foster care system can be a lifeline for approximately 400,000 kids who need a place to call home. But sometimes the people who volunteer to take these kids in do it for the wrong reasons. What will happen when diners at a restaurant witness a foster mom treating her foster son differently from her biological daughter? Clearly the mom is in it just for the money.

- What happens when a young white woman with an urban style is told by a sales person at a clothing store that she should not try to dress the part of a black woman? How will other customers react?
- Recently a video went viral, showing a father pushing his six year old son down a 12 foot skateboard ramp. In this “What Would You Do?” scenario, a father is pushing his young son to go down a ramp, even though the boy is uncomfortable. The boy pleads with his dad, and tells him that he is just not ready - but the father will not take no for an answer. How will bystanders react?
- A mother and son are having a conversation at a toy store – she had promised him one toy, but now she can’t afford it. The mom apologizes and tells her son that times are hard, and says she will try to get it for him another time. What will other customers do?
- An unhygienic ice cream store employee touches and (and even tastes!) your ice cream, right in front of you. The worker is coughing and sneezing, using dirty utensils and even dropping items on the ground, and still tries to serve them. How will customers react?

- At a nail salon, our actor faces rude behavior from a worker because she has vitiligo, a non-contagious condition that causes the skin to lose pigment. The nail tech refuses to touch the woman for fear that she could “catch” the disease. How will witnesses react? Chantelle Winnie, a model with vitiligo, joins us on set to witness and participate in this scenario.
- A group of three teenage boys are at a restaurant when two of them pull out bottles of an over-the-counter cough syrup, pushing the third boy to chug a large amount to get high (often called “Robotripping.”) The third boy is hesitant to try. How will fellow diners react?
- While at a restaurant, a mom and dad announce to their son that they are getting divorced. The parents begin to blame each other, and then blame their child – exactly what experts say not to do. How will witnesses react?
- A guy breaks up with his girlfriend while sitting on a park bench, near some strangers. He departs, leaving the girlfriend with her head in her hands, distraught. As she sits there crying, how will strangers react? Will reactions change when the girl breaks up with her boyfriend?
- When customers arrive to pick up their cakes at a local bakery, they discover that our baker ignored their orders in favor of her own outlandish ideas. How will customers react?

Friday, June 19, 2015

- A Latino day laborer who was working in a wine vineyard’s fields decides he would like to sit on an outdoor patio to enjoy his lunch. That patio is used by the vineyard’s customers and some of them are vocal about not liking that he is there. How will other paying customers react?
- A Chicago chef tweeted he was considering a “baby ban” after a baby would not stop crying in his upscale restaurant. So how will customers react when a couple brings their crying baby to a nice restaurant?
- What would you do if you see a man fake a fall while at a grocery store? Our actor fakes his fall right in front of other customers, making sure it looks realistic before complaining to management. How will onlookers react?
- A woman at a coffee shop is using a table as her personal office. She shreds, prints and answers all her phone calls on speaker. Will customers say anything?
- While at a clothing boutique, a mother lets her kids behave out of control, running wild, and destroying merchandise while she shops. How will fellow shoppers react?

Friday, June 26, 2015

- Thanks in part to Caitlyn Jenner and Laverne Cox, we are hearing more about those who are transgender than we ever have before. From reports and interviews, we have learned that many who are transgender identify being in the “wrong body” at a young age. “What Would You Do?” is at a hair salon where a young girl tells her mother that she wants her hair cut short because she feels like a boy on the inside. How will bystanders react?
- A mom coaches her clearly musically gifted son through playing the guitar, yet nothing the child does is good enough. How will bystanders react?
- A couple plans a romantic dinner at a nice restaurant but they instead encounter an overly flirtatious server. The server is an actor as is the target of the server’s affection. What response will this flirting illicit from the target’s significant other? “What Would You Do?” hidden cameras will be rolling while we test one of the most basic human instincts – jealousy.
- Three teenage girls come into an ice cream shop together and one is a little bigger than the other two. The thinner two criticize their “friend” and tell her she really should order low-fat frozen yogurt because if she wants to continue hanging out with them she better not get any fatter. How will other customers react?
