

WVPT/WVPY Quarterly List of Programming
Providing the Most Significant Treatment of Community Issues
("Issues List")

1st Quarter 2017
01. 2017 –03. 2017

In the past quarter, WVPT continued in its longstanding efforts to provide programming on issues of concern to our community. These issues include those concerning public policy, politics, community current events, health, the economy, and national developments of a local and regional 40 county coverage area.

The programs that provide the most significant treatment of community issues are described below. The remainder of the Issues List consists of:

- each issue addressed by WVPT in the preceding quarter; and
- The titles of the programs that provided the most significant treatment of these issues, as well as a description of each program (including its airdate, the time at which it aired, and the duration of the program).

Program	Day	Time	Description
Living in Virginia	Various days and times throughout the quarter. See schedule list below.		Locally produced program touching on the lifestyle and cultural issues living in the Commonwealth
Road Trip to History	Various days and times through-out the quarter		The "Road Trip to History" series is a spellbinding journey through the communities, history, and events that shaped the heartland of the Shenandoah Valley, as well as the entire Appalachian region.

108 Degrees: Critical Response

108 Degree: Critical Response addresses the dangers of heat illness in high school athletes. The program includes three young victims of heat-related ailments: Kendrick Fincher and Tyler Davenport, who died of heat stroke while practicing football in the summer months, and Will James, who received treatment and survived. Through personal testimonies from families who have been affected by exertional heat stroke and interviews with coaches, certified athletic trainers, kinesiologists and other medical professionals, 108 Degree: Critical Response looks at the seriousness of this condition and its underlying causes, as well as how to treat and prevent it from happening. Nine to Ninety

Every morning after taking a long list of medications, 89-year-old Phyllis Sabatini does her calisthenics and goes on a long walk around the Palm Desert neighborhood where she lives with her husband, daughter, and granddaughter. "Grandmom" may only be 4' 7," but she still stands tall as the head of a close-knit Italian American family struggling to come to terms with the declining health of its aging parents. Phyllis is facing her last chapter with courage and determination, but her 90-year-old husband Joe seems to have given up;he's detached and prefers to sleep most of the day. Phyllis loves her family. She especially relishes the time she spends with her granddaughter, Jacqueline. But she sees how much strain taking care of her and Joe is putting on their family. As she watches her daughter struggle to care for everyone from nine to 90, Phyllis makes a radical decision to move into assisted living. Phyllis Sabatini realizes that leaving home is difficult at any age, but she learns that sometimes, the best way to say "I love you" is to say "goodbye."

African American Museum

It was an emotional affair as the Smithsonian's African American Museum of History and Culture finally opened to the public on September 24, 2016. President Obama gave a lengthy heart-felt speech praising the long fought for and long awaited space that has been 100 years in the making. Countless celebrities including Oprah, Will Smith, and Angela Basset christened the building with inspirational words. Patti Labelle and Stevie Wonder came to mesmerize the crowd with beautiful performances. The film's host, former WNBC-TV Anchor and Correspondent Carol Jenkins, also speaks to several key players who were instrumental in taking the museum from conception to reality. Early in the film, viewers will hear from Lonnie Bunch, the founding director of the museum. He talks about the racism he faced as a child, which led him to pursue a career as a historian. Bunch tells Jenkins that it is his hope that the African American Museum of History and Culture becomes a place that sparks conversation about racism in America and is a catalyst for healing and reconciliation. This special also pays special attention to one of the most fascinating details of the museum: the actual building itself. Dr. Mabel Wilson, Professor of Architecture and African American Studies at Columbia University and one of few black women who is tenured in the field of architecture, sits down with Jenkins to discuss her authorized book on the museum titled Begin With The Past. She explains the important details of the building's facade-a "beautiful bronze colored, three tiered lantern." According to Wilson, it's meant to invoke the craft of cast iron railings and gates that black craftspeople, both freed and enslaved, created in many parts of the south. The building's three-tiered design, fashioned by renowned British Ghanaian Architect David Adjaye, was modeled after wooden sculptures found in Yoruba shrines in Nigeria. This film also touches on the placement of the museum on the National Mall. This is symbolic to the African American experience throughout our history - from early slave auctions in the area, the March On Washington For Jobs and Freedom in 1963, the Million Man March in 1995, and the inauguration of the first African American president in 2009. The film also takes you inside the museum to see precious items like Michael Jackson's performance wear, James Baldwin's passport, and collectibles from several other contemporary artists including Whitney Houston and En Vogue. Overall, this special captures the details, ingenuity, and the history surrounding the Smithsonian's National Museum of African American History and Culture. Viewers will learn more about what went into creating the space that some are calling a gift to the country and a dream come true.

Soft Vengeance: Albie Sachs & The New South Africa

Soft Vengeance, a Peabody-award winning film, documents the amazing story of anti-apartheid activist and lawyer, Albie Sachs, who was imprisoned in solitary confinement and forced into a 24-year exile in which he had his right arm blown off by a car bomb placed by South African security forces in Mozambique. After a year-long recovery, he returned to South Africa to become one of the principal drafters of the new South African constitution and was later appointed by President Nelson Mandela as one of the first 11 judges to the new Constitutional Court. He was the author of the landmark decision upholding same sex marriage. Rejecting revenge, Sachs has become a leading advocate for democracy and reconciliation across the globe. A chilling interview the person responsible for planning the car bomb attack enables viewers to consider anew the role of the reconciliation process in helping South Africa overcome the legacy of apartheid and the challenge of building a new democracy.

Perfect 36: When Women Won The Vote

PERFECT 36: WHEN WOMEN WON THE VOTE chronicles the dramatic vote to ratify this amendment, and the years of debate about women's suffrage that preceded it. On July 17, 1920, Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, arrived to spend a few days in Nashville. She was traveling on the heels of Tennessee Governor A.H. Roberts' announcement of a special session of the state legislature, called at the urging of President Woodrow Wilson. One more state needed to ratify the proposed amendment, and that duty rested solely on the shoulders of Tennessee. Catt's few days dragged into weeks at her headquarters in the Hermitage Hotel, where pro- and anti- suffragists continued to clash in what came to be known as the "War of the Roses." Those in favor sported yellow roses, while those against wore red. On the sweltering day of August 18, 1920, the House convened. After two consecutive 48-48 outcomes to table the resolution, it was put to a vote. The votes were coming in neck and neck. At the last minute, 24-year-old freshman representative Harry Burn recalled a letter from his mother received that morning, urging him to, "be a good boy" and grant women the right to vote. In spite of wearing a red rose, Burn swung his vote, making Tennessee the deciding 36th state to enable passage of the 19th Amendment, and thereby granting women the Constitutional right to vote.
