LONGFORM NEWS/INFORMATION PROGRAMS

“America: Changed Forever” – Saturdays at 4 p.m.

January 28th – Host Jeff Pegues and CBS News Immigration Reporter Camilo Montoya-Galvez discuss the rationale behind President Biden's change in immigration strategy. After promising to expand asylum, President Biden is now moving to limit access amid record border arrivals. CBS News Business Analyst Jill Schlesinger discusses her new book, “The Great Money Reset”, which chronicles how Americans are rethinking and rearranging their lives as we emerge from the pandemic. And Washington Post Chief Movie Critic Ann Hornaday, discusses some of the surprising upsets in the recent Oscar nominations.

February 4th - In the wake of the death of Tyre Nichols, host Jeff Pegues has an exclusive interview with the Chair of the Congressional Black Caucus, Rep. Steven Horsford who discusses his meeting with President Biden regarding police reform. Chuck Wexler, a veteran of the Boston Police Department who now serves as Executive Director of the Police Executive Research Forum, a national membership organization of police executives. Wexler outlines the steps necessary for police departments to engage in meaningful reforms to drastically reduce the amount of police violence in the United States.

“The Takeout with Major Garrett” – Saturdays at 6 p.m.

January 28th - Major sits down with Colorado’s Democratic Governor Jared Polis at the statehouse in Denver. Polis gives his take on the classified documents saga, his presidential aspirations, 2024, Colorado’s permissive drug policy, housing shortages and immigration reform

February 4th - Major has lunch with Lonnie Bunch III, the 14th Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and the first African American to serve as head of the Smithsonian, at Sweet Home Cafe inside the National Museum of African American History and Culture in Washington, D.C. They discuss the "significant" return of visitation to Smithsonian museums post-COVID, the "enormous heaviness" of the Emmett Till exhibit inside the NMAAHC and GOP Governor Ron DeSantis' crusade against "wokeness" in Florida high schools.

March 25th - Major will sit down with Stacey Plaskett, the non-voting delegate to the U.S. House of Representatives from the United States Virgin Islands' at-large congressional district, in her office on Capitol Hill. They discuss Plaskett's role as ranking member on the House Judiciary Committee's new subcommittee investigating the "weaponization" of the federal government. She recently called the work of the Republican-led subcommittee "a political stunt."

"60 Minutes" – Sundays at 6 p.m.

January 15th - If nuclear fusion becomes commercial power one day, it could mean endless and carbon-free energy for the world. Scott Pelley reports on a recent breakthrough that could herald the beginning of a new era for clean energy. The U.S. government has moved to seize more than $1 billion in sanctioned Russian assets since the start of the war in Ukraine. Sharyn Alfonsi meets with the officials following an international trail that leads to the island of Cyprus. Rick Rubin is one of the most successful and respected music producers of all time, although he claims to have no technical ability and says he knows nothing about music. Anderson Cooper reports.

January 22nd - In 1904, Andrew Carnegie donated millions of dollars to recognize heroes in the U.S. and Canada. Scott Pelley meets some of the recipients of the Carnegie Hero medal and finds out what neuroscience is revealing about their brains. Russia's attack on Ukraine is affecting every industry, including ballet companies in both countries. Jon Wertheim speaks with dance exiles and hears the difficulties they have faced. Freeride skiing is no easy feat. Instead of following runs that avoid obstacles, you ski towards obstacles. 15-year-old Jacob Smith is a freerider and is legally blind. Sharyn Alfonsi meets Smith to learn how he completes these treacherous runs.

January 29th – A former member of SEAL Team 6, Mark Owen, recounts the raid that killed the world's most wanted man: Osama bin Laden. Owen, now retired, says the SEALs trained for the mission using a full-size replica of the bin Laden compound, and that a dress rehearsal was held for military top brass. And Owen refutes charges that he's trying to make a political statement with his book, "No Easy Day." Scott Pelley reports. This episode originally aired in September 2012.

February 5th - With the International Monetary Fund out this week with new projections on the global economy, Lesley Stahl interviews IMF managing director Kristalina Georgieva. Former Manhattan special assistant DA Mark Pomerantz speaks after he abruptly resigned a year ago. He says DA Alvin Bragg halted the grand jury probe of former President Donald Trump on the case Pomerantz developed. Bill Whitaker reports. Jon Wertheim sits down with all four members of the rock band Red Hot Chili Peppers, currently on their biggest tour ever.

February 12th - Anderson Cooper investigates the brutal past of Canada's "residential school system." Leslie Stahl talks with the Miller family, who purchased a large house for family celebrations. Little did they know that property had a secret.

February 19th - Last week, Russia launched its 14th attack on Ukraine's energy grid. Scott Pelley reports from Ukraine – on how the population is surviving these assaults and living without light, heat and water. As the war touches every Ukrainian home with blackouts across the country, its people remain resilient, defiant, and united. Following the invasion of Ukraine, Finland, which shares a border with Russia, announced it would apply for NATO membership - ending seven decades of Finnish military neutrality. Sharyn Alfonsi profiles the Prime Minister of Finland, Sanna Marin, who called for her country to join the alliance, at the prime minister's official residence in Helsinki. The achievements of historically significant Black Americans are at risk of going unpreserved, as important figures die without documenting their stories for future generations. Bill Whitaker explores how one organization is trying to prevent that by creating an expansive digital archive of first-person accounts of the Black experience.

February 26th - One year after Russia's invasion of Ukraine, Holly Williams is in Kherson, the first major Ukrainian city and only regional capital captured by the Russian Army. Residents of Kherson endured a brutal occupation until the Ukrainian army forced the Russians to retreat. After U.S. troops withdrew from Afghanistan and the country fell to the Taliban, Afghan girls have been barred from school beyond 6th grade. Lesley Stahl travels to meet a group of Afghan girls who are continuing their education in an unlikely place, the African nation of Rwanda. The girls are students of a school called SOLA, led by a remarkable Afghan woman whose commitment to educating girls began under the first Taliban regime, when she attended a secret school disguised as a boy.

March 5th - Thousands of Ukrainians are being held captive by Russia as prisoners of war, and, according to the UN, many are being tortured. Scott Pelley interviewed three women soldiers who were recently released including a military doctor who was pregnant during captivity. The soldiers share their harrowing, heart breaking and heroic stories of life in prison as well as the first moments of freedom. Lesley Stahl explores the potential benefits and threats of AI-powered chatbots. Stahl meets with Microsoft's Brad Smith to learn more about their newly launched AI search engine and chatbot, Bing. Anderson Cooper profiles David Byrne, the lead singer and songwriter of Talking Heads, the influential post-punk rock band of the late 1970s and 80s. The band broke up more than thirty years ago, and ever since, Byrne has been on his own eclectic journey blurring the boundaries of music, theater, and art. At 70, he's as creative, energetic, and unusual as ever.

March 12th - It is widely known dogs evolved from wolves, but how did they become so friendly? Anderson Cooper meets with an evolutionary biologist and geneticist to find out. Sharyn Alfonsi visits the Wyoming Honor Farm, a state-run minimum-security prison in the middle of horse country doing its part to help with the wild horse population through a program where inmates train the horses.

March 26th - Experimental artificial limbs allow amputees a sense of touch. Scott Pelley shows the advanced technology. Why were live spiders, cockroaches and a funeral wreath sent to the home of a Massachusetts couple that published a newsletter about eBay? Sharyn Alfonsi reports. Witty, blunt, and provocative: Charles Barkley's unique style as a basketball commentator seems cancel-proof. Jon Wertheim asks Barkley about his candid style.

"Weekend Roundup" – Saturdays at 5 p.m.

January 28th – host Allison Keyes gets the latest on fallout from the death of Tyre Nichols after an alleged beating by Memphis police from CBS's Jeff Pegues, who also discusses mass shootings in the wake of the attacks in California. We'll get more details on those classified documents turning up in the homes of the president, a former president and former vice president. In the Kaleidoscope, a look at how the Asian-American community is doing in the wake of the latest mass shootings in the nation.

February 4th - host Allison Keyes gets the latest on the Chinese spy balloon flying over the US. CBS News Meteorologist David Parkinson reports on the weather crises facing some 82 million Americans. CBS's Nikole Killion reports on the effort to enact police reform in the wake of the brutal beating of a Black man who later died. In the Kaleidoscope, a discussion about the controversy over an Advanced Placement African American Studies curriculum, as scholars and lawmakers furiously debate its merits.

Face the Nation – Sundays at 6:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

January 1st - This week on "Face the Nation with Margaret Brennan," we want to look forward, offering the outlook ahead on the economy, foreign policy, and the environment, taking advantage of at least one quiet Sunday here in Washington before the new Congress convenes later this week.

January 8th - "Face the Nation" recaps a hectic week on Captol Hill that resulted in Rep. Kevin McCarthy (R-CA) becoming Speaker of the House after making concessions to far-right members of the House GOP. Also, moderator Margaret Brennan speaks with Independent Sen. Angus King of Maine and Ukrainian Ambassador to the United States Oksana Markarova about what else Ukraine needs to fend off the ongoing attacks by Russian forces.

January 15th - we examine the scandals roiling Washington, including the discovery of documents marked classified at President Biden's residence and former office and the controversy swirling around newly elected GOP Rep. George Santos, and hear from Reps. Daniel Goldman and Chris Stewart.

January 22nd - Face the Nation reports on breaking news from Monterey Park, California after a suspected gunman left ten dead and ten more wounded after firing on a crowd in a "ballroom dance location" shortly after Lunar New Year events ended in the area. The suspected gunman was still on the loose as of Sunday afternoon, with known motive known. Also: Face the Nation interviews Rep. Mike Turner (R-OH) and Sen. Tim Kaine (D-VA) about the latest documents found at President Biden's Wilmington, Delaware home.

January 29th - Face the Nation sits down exclusively with Speaker Kevin McCarthy to discuss the debt ceiling and George Santos, plus explores policing in America with Val Demings. Also: A bipartisan interview on the future of U.S. intelligence with Sens. Mark Warner (D-VA) and Marco Rubio (R-FL).

February 5th - Margaret Brennan sits down with Senators Ted Cruz (R-TX) and Cory Booker (D-NJ) to discuss the Chinese spy balloon that was shot down off the coast of South Carolina, and the potential national security implications of this week's events. Plus: a conversation with Vice Chairman of IBM Gary Cohn and a panel with the newest members of the House of Representatives.

February 12th - Margaret Brennan and Face the Nation report on the unidentified "high-altitude objects" discovered and shot down this week by the United States. Montana Senator Jon Tester (D) and Texas Rep. Michael McCaul (R) comment on the Biden administration's handling of the issue over the last week, and discuss the potential military and diplomatic fallout over the Chinese spy balloon. Plus, a panel of governors from around the country on crime, abortion and the opioid and fentanyl crisis.

February 19th - Margaret Brennan spoke with Secretary of State Antony Blinken about China potentially providing lethal aid to Russia in its war against Ukraine. She also spoke with Polish Prime Minister Mateusz Morawiecki, and Russia expert Fiona Hill, and former U.S. Ambassador to Russia, John Sullivan. Also: a conversation about wealth inequality with Bernie Sanders, and a conversation on mental health with Dr. Joshua Gordon of The National Institute of Mental Health.

February 26th - Margaret sits down with CIA Director Bill Burns at the one-year mark of the Ukraine war to discuss China potentially supplying Russia with weaponry. She also speaks with former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, and the chairs of the new House Select Committee on China, Reps. Mike Gallagher and Raja Krishnamoorthi

March 5th - former Maryland Gov. Larry Hogan tells us he will not seek the Republican nomination for president in 2024, plus we talk to Sen. Joe Manchin of West Virginia.

March 12th - Face the Nation moderator Margaret Brennan speaks exclusively with Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen about the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank, and what that means for a potential federal bailout, and involvement in ensuring depositors are made whole. Brennan also interviewed Rep. Ro Khanna (D-CA), who represents most of Silicon Valley, and Chris Krebs, cybersecurity expert. Plus, Brennan interviews Democratic Governor of New Jersey Phil Murphy and Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee Rep. Mike McCaul (R-TX).

March 19th - Face the Nation moderator Margaret Brennan tackles the ongoing banking crisis in the U.S. with interviews with vocal banking critic Sen. Elizabeth Warren, (D-MA), Chairman of the House Financial Services Committee Rep. Patrick McHenry, and former top economic adviser in the Trump administration Gary Cohn. Brennan also interviews tech watchers Kara Swisher and Scott Galloway about the implications of the SVB collapse in the tech world, and to preview this week's testimony on Capitol Hill from TikTok's CEO. Plus, a conversation about Russia and China with former Trump national security advisor and retired general H.R. McMaster.

March 26th - Face the Nation moderator Margaret Brennan interviews Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA) about the future of TikTok in the U.S. after this week's testimony by the social media company's CEO to Congress. Brennan also speaks with CBS correspondent Robert Costa, CBS legal contributor Rikki Kleiman, and former NYPD Police Commissioner Bill Bratton about the looming grand jury decision and Manhattan DA investigation that could result in an indictment of former President Trump for a hush money payment to porn star Stormy Daniels. Also, a conversation on the continued fallout from the Silicon Valley Bank collapse with president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, Neel Kashkari.

Eye on Veterans – Sundays at 5 p.m.

January 15th - The US Small Business Administration has many programs to help veterans start their own business. We talk with SBA Administrator and White House Cabinet member Isabella Guzman (Gooze'mon) about why veteran entrepreneurs need to see what's available. Army Special Forces veteran and investigative reporter Jack Murphy recently broke a story about Special Forces soldiers involved in a drug and human trafficking operation at Ft. Bragg in North Carolina.

January 29th - How do we combat disinformation in today's media? We asked Navy veteran, journalist and co-founder of Military Veterans in Journalism, Zack Baddorf. Baddorf was a Navy journalist who worked to counter terrorist campaigns which fueled recruitment for groups like ISIS, and the Taliban. This year Military Veterans in Journalism is seeking veterans for investigative reporter positions that will uncover dangerous disinformation campaigns in American media. Married couple and Army veterans Garnet and Zaimis Brooks went from the Army to successful franchise owners. They talk about how they did it and how to start operating a Stretch Zone franchise.

February 5th - Former Army Special Forces, Delta Operator and bestselling author Brad Taylor is back with The Devil's Ransom. This high-octane combat adventure is the latest in the Pike Logan series, where Logan, (a Special Operations vet whose team works on the highest classified missions) is tracking down cyber terrorists who attacked a commercial spacecraft in flight, all while trying to avoid being taken out by Taliban and Russian mercenaries searching for an ancient treasure stolen from Afghanistan.

February 26th - Toby Harnden is a Royal Navy veteran, global journalist, and award-winning author. We discuss his book “First Casualty: The CIA’s mission to avenge 9/11”. We hear how CIA officers and Special Forces are dropped into the mountains of northern Afghanistan on October 17, 2001. They are Team Alpha, an eclectic band of linguists, tribal experts, and elite warriors: the first Americans to operate inside Taliban territory.

March 5th - Today we’re talking about an incredible new podcast “City of Tents Veterans Row” with Anna Scott, an investigative reporter with KCRW in Los Angeles. She has covered LA’s homelessness for years and in this series, she documented a veteran homeless encampment directly across the street from the wealthy Brentwood neighborhood, and shockingly right outside the gates of a massive VA Health care facility.

March 12th - Today we’re taking another hard look at Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy (HBOT). Many experts agree, HBOT yields incredible results when treating wounds, yet the VA does not offer it to veterans who suffered concussions, TBIs, blast injuries or are currently dealing with PTSD and chronic pain. Dr Robert Beckman, Exec Director of TreatNow.org is one of the nation’s fiercest promoters of this FDA approved wound treatment. Today we hear his claims that HBOT plays a crucial role in healing brain injuries and ultimately reducing veteran suicide.
