Topic:

Today on Insight, John and Josh Rosenstern discuss the current US debt that continues to mount as our six trillion dollars a year in spending doesn't slow down, with 33-trillion dollars in current debt. It costs the United States 879-billion dollars in interest, annually, to maintain our debt with treasury bonds. Brother John says this will only rise, because some of these loans were at zero-percent interest rates will soon be refinanced at 5.99 percent. With more non-taxpaying illegals coming across America's southern border, their needs will mount and be met at the hands of those Americans who do pay taxes.
