Monday: The issue on this broadcast was a preview of “God’s Glory is Gathering.” It’s a day long worship and networking experience at the Connecticut Convention Center in Hartford. Organizer Lori Perry was the guest, and the host was Anissa Porticelli.

Tuesday: The issue on this program was about the activities of an agency that helps evangelical Christians connect called Vision New England. It primarily manages programs between churches and between those churches and VNE staff. The guest was Charles Galda, and the host was Steve Tuzeneu.

Wednesday: The issue of this broadcast was the ministry of a Christian music festival in Hartford called, “Lift Every Voice and Sing.” It has been staged for a number of years and draws crowds and choirs from all over Southern New England. The host was Gerry Williams.

Thursday: The issue on these broadcasts was an update on the operations of the Middletown Police Department, as delivered by its recently appointed chief Erik Costa. He brought listeners up to date on law enforcement initiatives and invited public contact with his officers. The host was Steve Tuzeneu.

Friday: The issue on this broadcast was how to maintain a cleaner and healthier home for your family by using air filtering machines to clear away debris in the air too small to see. Christy Glothin was the guest who represented makers of such devices, and the host was Paul Kretschmer.

Saturday: The issue of this broadcast was describing what the average employed person can do to get their finances and activities in order so when they retire, it isn’t a shocking change for all concerned. The title of the discussion was “Afterwork.” Advisor Alex Lippert was the guest, and the host was Paul Kretschmer.
