Monday: The issue on this broadcast was the remembrance of the 2001 September 11 terror attacks on the United States by terrorists flying hijacked airliners into selected targets. The guests were Connecticut Governor Ned Lamont and Lieutenant Governor Susan Bysiewicz. The host was Paul Kretschmer.

Tuesday: The issue on this broadcast was ministry work by Todd Williams, a pastor in Connecticut. He explained how he leads his congregation to reach out to the lost, and his background as a member of a family of pastors. Steve Tuzeneu was the host.

Wednesday: The issue on this broadcast was an activity called the “Dig Deep Women’s Conference.” Organizer Dr. Jaria Aljoe explained how she came to develop this outreach especially for women, how means to grow are at the center of the conference, and how women can benefit from the experience. The host was Anissa Porticelli.

Thursday & Friday: The issue on this broadcast was how a woman steps away from previous career choices and finds satisfaction and a living from opening a small business as a cake maker and decorator. Middletown resident Jessica Hall shared the story on how that transition took place and how her business so far is going. Also the line of products she has developed. The host was Paul Kretschmer.

Saturday: The issue on this broadcast was how the hearing community can do more to relate with sensitivity and respect for those who are hearing impaired. From her home in California, Rachel Zemach spoke through an interpreter about her life experience so far, what she would like the hearing community to know about people like her, and for them not to be intimidated when they encounter the hearing impaired. The host was Paul Kretschmer.
