Tourism an important tool to rural Iowa	News	10/2/2020	7, 8, 12, 5	:90	Dakota City, IA – The regional tourism industry president is urging the rural regions of the Iowa to push back against larger city take overs. During the most recent meeting of the Humboldt County Board of Supervisors they heard from the President of the Western Iowa Tourism Region Andy Milam. During is allotted time of the agenda he spoke passionately about the value of tourism in Iowa, especially in the rural areas. He says tourism is important to areas like Humboldt because it creates interest from nonresidents in the area. When a visitor comes to a small city like Humboldt and stays for a short while it can create further interest to return to the area or even a desire to move to the area. Milam says when a city focus a lot on its economic development by doing large scale downtown revitalization projects or building new facilities like a recreation center it can help create further interest. However if nonresidents don't see them they don't serve their full purpose of bringing people in. He says that there are two types of entities in the industry for Iowa. The first is known as a Convention Based Bureau (CBB), which are the larger cities that can host larger events. The second type is the attraction based, which is the smaller more rural areas and Humboldt with attractions like the Frank Gotch statue falls in this category. Milam has two primary concerns he wanted to bring to the supervisors attention. The first is that all of Iowa is bad at promoting tourism. The state currently ranks 42 in the country in tourism, which is really out of 48 states because two don't promote tourism at all. The second issue is that the CBB's are attempting to take over the industry in the state. He says that despite 74 of Iowa's county's being opposed the larger cities are attempting to form a new Iowa tourism organization known as the Iowa Travel Industry Partners (ITIP). Under this group all tourism funds would get controlled and distributed by the larger cities. He says rural Iowa will be the losers under this system. Milam says the eastern region has already approved ITIP but the central and western regions are strongly opposed. He will continue to talk with the states head of tourism and work with local economic developers to improve the value of tourism in the rural communities. The supervisors expressed their appreciation for Milam bringing the issues to their attention and asked he keep them informed going forward.

She says the company ServePro will be going to every polling place in the county on Wednesday, Nov. 4 to perform the service. The auditor told the board she really wanted to make sure they returned to the polling places to peak cleanliness. A lot of cities have been generous enough to allow the county to use locations in the city for no cost. She says "the least we could do" is return it in as good of, if not better, condition than before the election. Rice also says there has been a few changes in polling locations. There is no longer a polling place in Thor and Thor residents will have to come to Dakota City to vote at the VFW. In Bode the polling place is not going to be at City Hall but instead it is now at the community center. In the City of Humboldt those who normally vote at City Hall will go to the community center, located in the old Senior Center. The quote from ServePro for the cleaning and sanitation of the polling locations is for $1,743.80. The cost for the service will be completely covered by grants received by the Humboldt County Auditors Office. All polling places in Humboldt County will open up at 7 am tomorrow, Tuesday, and be open until 9 pm.

The virus continues to impact everyone's lives and is putting a significant strain on the hospital. She says the staff is still fighting every day for the people of Humboldt County but encourages the community to continue to do their part. "Please understand how important this is and the role that you play in helping us slow the spread" Sleiter says. This including wearing a mask or face covering, washing and/or sanitizing hands frequently, staying home when sick and practicing social distancing by limiting the size of groups and activities. Sleiter writes that they are doing their part for every patient and to be there when they are need but they can't do it alone. Local schools looking for community members to help out and become a substitute	News	11/16/2020	7, 8, 12, 5	2:00	Humboldt, IA – The Humboldt Community School District is looking for the community to step up in a big way to help fill a big need. These are trying times for the schools as they work to navigate the uncertain climates caused by COVID-19. The ongoing pandemic has created many shortages and for schools this includes substitutes. Superintendent of Schools Jim Murray says this is a need for Humboldt CSD and that it is easier for community members to become a sub this year. "We are in dire need of substitutes" he says. This is at all levels from the class room, to bus drivers, cooks, custodians and associates. Murray says that Iowa Governor Kim Reynolds has loosened the restrictions to become a sub. One big one is that someone with 60 hours of college credit or an associate's degree now qualifies an individual to get their sub authorization license. The superintendent confirms that there is a lot of opportunity for different groups to substitute. He says "Certainly we'd welcome back any retired staff members from the Humboldt Community School District or surrounding districts." The age for someone to be substitute eligible has been lowered from 21 to 20 this year. Para educators can also substitute as teachers this year. Murray says that the governor has also lifted the time restrictions that used to be set at 30 days. He doesn't anticipate subs needing to work for more than 30 days. Murray says that any subs who walk into the schools will be given opportunity to succeed. "Of course it's a great environment to work in." Subs will get a chance to directly impact the lives of students. "In these COVID times it's kind of all hands on deck" the superintendent says in hopes that members of the community will come in to help them out. He says there is always support from the administrative team and staff to help give substitutes the chance to succeed. The Humboldt CSD encourages any community who is interested in becoming a substitute for the school year to look into doing so. Murray confirms that recently retired educators can substitute this year without risking their retirement benefits. The Humboldt and Twin Rivers schools continue to assure that anyone who comes into their halls will be kept safe during these uncertain times. Their number one priority has and always will be the students.
City officials remind community of winter parking ordinance	News	11/19/2020	7, 8, 12, 5	2:00	Humboldt, IA – The snow is approaching and the City of Humboldt is preparing for the winter parking ordinance to go into effect. On Dec. 1 code of ordinance pertaining winter parking will go into effect in the City of Humboldt. City Administrator Travis Goedken reminds the public that when the ordinance is in effect parking on any city streets is prohibited between the hours of 3-7 am whether it is snowing or not. Additionally the ordinance allows the city to take extra measures in case the streets need to be car free at any time during the day. Goedken says the city has an "additional provision" where they can call a "snow emergency." He says they try to give as much notice as possible when calling for a snow emergency based on forecasts. When the city calls for a snow emergency parking is prohibited on city streets at all times. In the case of a sudden snow fall that requires an emergency to be called residents are given four hours to move their cars. The city administrator reminds the community that they are also responsible for keeping their sidewalks clear. "Residents are required to remove snow and ice from their sidewalk within 24 hours after the snow or ice ends" Goedken says. For commercial businesses the limit is 12 hours. The city administrators warns that failure to remove the snow and ice during the allotted time will result in city billing as a result of them providing the service. For removing snow and ice Goedken says that residents may use salt or ice-melt though warns it harms the concrete sidewalks. For the downtown area he warns against using corrosive materials. "That brand new concrete, it's extremely important that salt not go on that." The city administrator says that concrete going through its first winter is very "susceptible to damage." The concrete needs the time to fully cure. He also requests that the businesses with concrete that was done over a year ago still use sand provided by the city. "Salt is a corrosive environment. We want this sidewalk to last as long as possible." With the hazardous winter weather approaching with the coming season the City of Humboldt wants to assure they can keep everyone safe. This is why the ask for clear roads to clean and everyone to do their part to assure walking space is clear of ice. The winter parking ordinance goes into effect on Dec. 1 and will last until March 31, 2021.

The theaters General Manager Sarah VanOrd talks about the auction with KHBT. The auction can be found on 32auctions.com/humotatheater. VanOrd says that the theater has over 80 items available for bid. The majority of the items up for bid are donated by some of the local businesses who are looking to support the Humota. She says she knows times are tough for a lot of people across the board. "We're very grateful that so many people were willing to step up and help us out" the general manager says. VanOrd says that about a year ago the community fought to revive the local theater and they are very grateful for their efforts. "Of course, we didn't see a pandemic coming" she says. As a whole the theater industry is struggling due to the lack of new content being produced. "Our whole industry is barely staying afloat." The Humota is a nonprofit. VanOrd says they rely heavily on the community to "rally" with them. The local public can help them "weather the storm" so they can "come back stronger than ever" once things return to normal. The efforts are just about the physical theater itself but also the people who work there. VanOrd says she during "these hard times" it can be very difficult to find a job. "Especially a job you like" when students can balance their school day with employment. "Where you can actually kind of hang out, watch movies, talk about the different films coming out and things like that" says the general manager. She knows the kids that work there enjoy coming to work, especially during the stressful times. The Humota's online fundraiser opened today and will open until Dec. 14. West River Meats returning to Rutland in 2021	News	12/3/2020	7, 8, 12, 5	2:00	Rutland, IA – After more than five years a meat locker is returning to Rutland as construction continues to be underway. In February of 2015 Thul's West River Meats was brought down by a fire. At the time the decision was against rebuilding. Instead they decided to build a catering business and restaurant. West River Meats will be making a comeback and Don Thul talks with KHBT about the revival of the meat locker. West River Meats will be returning to Rutland as a 60' by 40' extension joins the current 24' by 40' building that houses Thul's West River Catering. Thul says that the extension will consists of the harvest floor, pre-chill cooler and carcass cooler. The part that was West River Catering will be the sausage kitchen and further processing room. There they will make all of their value added products. Five years ago the decision was to not rebuild but Thul says that present circumstances has led to a change in the thought process of the producers and consumers. He says that when the COVID-19 pandemic causes packing plants to shut down it caused a lot of problems. For the producer they struggled to get their livestock to the market. It caused "adverse situations for the consumer due to supply and demand" results in meat prices to double or triple. Thul predicts there will be a "boom" in small locker plants and people getting their meat directly from producers. Don Thul has 18 years of experience working for Iowa Beef Processor. He says that while the big packaging plants do everything to assure the product is safe, mistakes can happen when a large number of people are involved in the process. "So now what you're going to see is you're going to see the livestock come directly from the farmer to the processor" says Thul. He says West River Meats will have four employees plus himself packaging a product for a specific individual. "So instead of numerous people working on your meat, you're going to have just us five people in the meat locker." Thul says that the plan was to have West River Meat open by Dec. 15 but they were delayed due to weather. Now he plans to open on or around the first of the year. Producers who are interested in partnering with West River Meat are encouraged to contact Don Thul at 515-368-3022.

Humboldt County misses on BUILD grant, will still do impact studies	News	12/15/2020	7, 8, 12, 5	:60	By: Donovan W. Mann – donovanm@977thebolt.com Dakota City, IA – The Humboldt County Board of Supervisors are approving studies to be done to better the odds of getting grant funding for a potential Murray Bridge project. As previously reported by KHBT the county applied for federal funding to help fund a project with the bridge located in Avery Township. County Engineer Ben Loots confirms to KHBT that the project was not selected for this year's funding opportunity. Part of the process was studies needed to be done to get proper conservation and environmental clearances. Loots told the board of supervisors during recent discussions that to have the project done it will be required because they project effects wetlands. The engineer informed that board that it was recommended to him that they have the studies done whether they get the grant or not. Because the initial study doesn't have an expiration date it can be done now and updated later. The supervisors also pointed out that the cost of the study could be significantly more expensive down the road. Following the discussions the supervisor agreed that it was best to go ahead and have the studies done. The grant in question is the Better Utilizing Investments to Leverage Development (BUILD) grant.
