The National Weather Service confirmed it was an EF-1 tornado that touched down near Rome leaving neighborhoods in shambles. The path of destruction stretched more than three miles wide with 50 to 100 homes damaged. That includes one house where a 73 year old woman died after suffering a heart attack when a tree fell on the home.

2/24/12 5,6pm 2:30
It's been a busy day for the FOX5 Storm Team. We tracked heavy rain and tornado warnings throughout the morning. And we're in for another big change tonight as the temperature plunges. Troup County took the first hit as the storms moved into Georgia. High winds and heavy rains battered areas both North and South of Lagrange.

2/24/12 5pm 2:30
Trees are down in several counties East of Atlanta where a lot of rain fell today. Two different storms brought high winds and damage from Covington to Greenville.

In Paulding County, Poole Elementary School suffered major damage. Cleanup crews are on campus picking up debris after part of the school's roof was ripped off by the storms.

3/5/12 5,6,10,11pm 2:30
Crews with the Georgia Emergency Management Agency are still assessing the damage from Friday's storms. At least 30 homes were destroyed and nearly 200 more were damaged when three tornadoes touched down in Haralson, Paulding, Cobb, Lowndes, and Lanier Counties.

It has been a terrible day for some residents of Paulding County where more than a hundred homes were damaged in a storm. The county's airport is now facing millions of dollars in cleanup costs. And an elementary school lost part of its roof.

Now that the tornadoes have passed, its time for cleanup. Many storm victims say they've already been approached by contractors quoting them prices to clean up the mess. But as FOX5 reports, homeowners need to exercise caution.

3/9/12 5,6,10pm 2:00

Yet again mother nature has dispelled the myth that tornadoes don't hit mountains. You remember what a powerful tornado did to Ringgold in the North Georgia mountains last Spring. Well, in the mountains of North Carolina a tornado touched down a week ago tonight.

3/9/12 5,10pm 2:45

It's hard not to love the not-so-wintery weather lately. But the warm temperatures have left a lot of plants pretty confused. They're churning out pollen like it's May, not March. And Springtime allergy sufferers are feeling it.

3/10/12 6,10pm 2:30

Residents in parts of Paulding County cleaning up after last week's tornado, got some much needed help from their neighbors today. More than 300 volunteers pitched in to help homeowners clear debris from that powerful storm.

Fleas, mosquitoes & ticks, oh my! The warm winter means mosquitoes, fleas and ticks will be more plentiful than usual this summer. Vets say if you haven't already started treating your pets, do it right now.

It's hard to complain about these 80 degree days in the middle of March. But if you have a pet, watch out. Veterinarians say they've seen pets covered in fleas for months now.

With this pretty weather many people are out and about at the park. And some of them are playing a bit too hard. Two days later you're paying for it with back pain, muscle aches, and bodies that feel twice as old as they are.

3/27/12 GDA 3:00

The warm weather has everyone outside again gardening, doing home repairs, playing softball, biking, and running. And with the increase of activity comes a whole lot of pain. There are some simple exercises and stretches that could save you some pain.

3/29/12 10,11pm 2:30

There may be a downside to all the beautiful Spring weather we've been having. March is typically our wettest month but it's been dry and that could mean trouble for water levels at Lake Lanier.
