Maine Adaptive & Special Surfers #289

Friday, March 31, 2017

Maine is home to numerous venues for outdoor enjoyment. Our forests, woods, and waters provide opportunities for not only connecting with nature but also for social, physical, and sometimes competitive pursuits. Today we speak with leaders of two organizations that make these pursuits available to Mainers of all levels of physical capability. Barbara Schneider is the executive director at Maine Adaptive Sports and Recreation (<https://www.maineadaptive.org>), and Mark Stevens is a board member. Nanci Boutet is the executive director at Special Surfers (<http://www.specialsurfer.org>) in Kennebunk.

Cleaner Homes & Beds for All #290

Friday, April 7, 2017

Is it possible to take a good thing and make it even better? Today we speak with three entrepreneurs who are taking a unique approach to helping people have happier homes. Joe Walsh is the founder and CEO of Green Clean Maine

(<http://www.greencleanmaine.com>), an innovative, environmentally friendly home cleaning company; Amy and Allie Smith offer an "earn-a-bed" program through their nonprofit, Healthy Homeworks (<http://www.healthyhomeworks.org>).

Joe Walsh

(<http://themainemag.com/radio/radio-guests/joe-walsh/>)

Joe Walsh is the founder and CEO of Green Clean Maine (<http://www.greencleanmaine.com>), an environmentally friendly home cleaning company serving greater Portland since 2007. He is a 2016 graduate of the Maine Center for Entrepreneurial (<http://www.mced.biz>)'s Top Gun program and the Goldman Sachs 10,000 Small Businesses program at Babson College and has consulted nationally for service-based businesses. He moved to Maine from his native Rhode Island in 2006, drawn by Portland's independent spirit, affordable housing, lively food and brewing scene, and the proximity of outdoor recreation options (skiing, hiking, and boating are three favorites). He lives in the East Deering neighborhood with his wife, Kate, and their black lab, Cleo.
