WHEN THE LIGHT OF THE SUN IS VIRTUALLY COVERED BY THE MOON DURING THE ECLIPSE, IT WILL BE THE EXACT TIME FOR NASA SCIENTISTS TO USE THEIR SOPHISTICATED INSTRUMENTS WITH WHICH THEY WILL COLLECT THE GREATEST NUMBER OF DATA POSSIBLE THAT THE EXTRAORDINARY DARKNESS OF THAT MOMENT WILL PROVIDE THEM AND AT THE SAME TIME THE UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY TO STUDY THE RING OF FIRE WHICH WILL PROVIDE MORE INFORMATION THAN CAN BE OBTAINED DURING AN ORDINARY NIGHT OR DAY. NASA'S INTEREST IS GROWING EXPONENTIALLY BECAUSE THIS YEAR'S SOLAR ECLIPSE COINCIDES WITH A PERIOD IN WHICH THE SUN WILL BE AT ITS MOST ACTIVE MOMENT IN THE LAST TWO DECADES EXPPELLING GIGANTIC FLARES INTO SPACE, AS IF THEY WERE HUGE LOOPS. The total solar eclipse is generating great expectations but many are concerned about the possible effects it could have on their vision. Jorge Muñoz spoke with experts about how the lack of protection could impact a vision irreversibly. Andrea Arteaga, an ophthalmologist, states, "The light enters the eye and condenses on the retina and what we need is a few seconds for the sun to burn and that burn is an irreversible burn in which, most of the time it is right in the center of vision and It is going to be something that is going to affect our central vision for life." She also warns to put on eclipse safety glasses before going outside. "Cameras, binoculars, telescopes, all of that has to have its special filter, if not, maybe one; you damage the equipment, two; You damage your eyes the same way."
