The clubs serve nearly 1,500 youth each day between the ages of 6-18. - One of the key factors influencing the adoption of electric vehicles is the availability of public charging. At each charging station there are one or more ‘charging ports’ and typically the limitation on the number of vehicles that can charge simultaneously at a given station is equal to the number of charging ports. Think of ports like ‘gas station nozzles’ and that will give an idea about a station’s charging capacity. In the US, there are 54,000 stations with a total of 134,000 charging ports, an average of 2.5 charging ports per station. Government and Federal funding in the U.S. is accelerating for buildout of fast charging networks.

One of the key factors influencing the adoption of electric vehicles is the availability of public charging. At each charging station there are one or more 'charging ports' and typically the limitation on the number of vehicles that can charge simultaneously at a given station is equal to the number of charging ports. Think of ports like 'gas station nozzles' and that will give an idea about a station's charging capacity. In the US, there are 54,000 stations with a total of 134,000 charging ports, an average of 2.5 charging ports per station. Government and Federal funding in the U.S. is accelerating for buildout of fast charging networks.

Deadly drug overdoses are on the rise in Nevada, with more than 1,000 deaths last year, according to the CDC. This trend is being driven by the growing number of counterfeit pills laced with fentanyl. An alarming amount of these deadly pills are being bought by teenagers and young adults on Snapchat, TikTok and other social media apps. The Partnership for Safe Medicines, founded in 2003, is a not for profit focused entirely on researching the danger of counterfeit drugs in America and educating the public about how to stay safe from them. Their goal is for all consumers to be aware that counterfeit medicines do exist, they are not safe and together we can take action to avoid them.
