Description: The U.S. Supreme Court handed down a victory for religious liberty this week. In a 7-2 decision, the justices ruled that the government cannot deny general services to churches and other religious organizations on the basis of their viewpoint. The Court also decided to take up the case of Masterpiece Cake Shop, whose owners were sued for not designing a cake for a same-sex wedding. It's another important case to watch. Listeners are urged to think deeply about what it means to be a Christian in America and take some time to learn about the Christian thought that influenced America's founding.

Date: 7/3/2017

Station: FM

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Pro-Life

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Those who oppose abortion will probably hear this argument some time, "Unless you're adopting unwanted kids or helping feed, clothe, and educate them, you've no right to force women to go through with their pregnancies." While pro-lifers should adopt, feed, clothe and educate these children, this does not make it alright to end a human life, even if it is inconvenient, unwanted or unaffordable. It's not okay to kill them, any more than it's okay to kill inconvenient, unwanted, or unaffordable toddlers.

Date: 7/4/2017

Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint

Issue: Patriotism and Unity

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

He encourages them to rebel against rebellion for its own sake and resist resistance for its own sake. Reflecting back upon his own experience of anti-patriotic collegiate indoctrination and an awakening of love of country in himself after 9/11, he says, "We must dare to express our love of this country and its promises if we ever hope to solve our problems."

Date: 7/6/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint

Issue: Sanctity of Life

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: John Stonestreet decries the decision that the British High Court made in allowing doctors at Britain's Great Ormond Street Hospital to take young Charlie Gard off life support. Charlie has a rare and life threatening disorder called Mitochondrial DNA Depletion Syndrome and is unconscious and unable to breathe by himself. His parents raised a million and a half dollars in private donations to take him to America for an experimental treatment in an effort to exhaust every possibility to help him. World reaction is on the side of the parents, but the hospital is refusing to let them travel with him or even die at home with his parents. In Stonestreet's words, "They've effectively asserted ownership over this little boy and his life. This is unambiguously wrong."

Date: 7/6/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Life and Human Dignity

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: A publicly-funded ad in Ontario, Canada shows a woman happily scrolling on her smart phone and sipping a latte, when her little girl sneaks up and shoots a spit-wad in her ear. As the girl laughs and runs away, the mom types "birth control" into the search engine. John Stonestreet wonders at the message this is sending to this part of Canada which is facing a problem with its economy and government entitlements because more people are dying than being born. It begs the questions, "Why would Ontario spend tax dollars advertising childlessness?"

Date: 7/6/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Focus on the Family

Issue: Communication in Marriage

Time Aired: 7:00 AM

Duration: 30:00

Description: Dr. David Clark shares the typical communication styles of men and women and helps listeners learn better communication skills with their spouses. He demonstrates how men can be more intentional in initiating conversations and how couples can better navigate conflict.

Date: 7/7/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Family Talk

Issue: Marriage and Self Esteem

Time Aired: 1:00 PM

Duration: 27:00

Description: After the honeymoon is over, reality sets in, and the burdens of everyday life can cause discouragement and self-doubt to creep into any marriage. Dr. Dobson sits down with Dr. Dennis Rainey to discuss how listeners can raise their mate's self-esteem.

Date: 7/7/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Christians and Death

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: John Stonestreet reminds listeners that death is an enemy, though a defeated one, and not part of God's original design. Many times it seems "celebrations of life" are attempting to avoid the grieving process altogether. Jesus responded with tears at the death of Lazarus, even though he was going to raise him to life again. "Traditional Christian burial rites acknowledge grief and pain, while looking through them to Jesus's words as he wept: 'I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live.'"

Date: 7/8/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Washington Watch Weekend

Issue: Freedom

Time Aired: 12:30 PM

Duration: 30:00

Description: Human rights attorney, Virginia Prodan, joins the program to share her story of growing up in communist Romania and why Americans cannot take freedom for granted.

Date: 7/8/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: Government Sovereignty Boundaries

Time Aired: 12:00 PM

Duration: 25:00

Description: Subjects discussed are Charlie Gard, the child whom doctors say has an irreversibly terminal disease in the UK and whose parents wish to pay for an experimental treatment but the government is refusing to allow. Also, parents in Canada are fighting having a gender on their child's birth certificate even though there is an obvious gender. The discussion concludes with the statistic of 431 people who were euthanized without consent in the Netherlands. America's willingness to step into this realm is a slippery slope that can start with the right to die and lead to the obligation to die.

Date: 7/10/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Focus on the Family

Issue: Gender Differences

Time Aired: 7:00 AM; 7:00 PM

Duration: 30:00

Description: Dr. Walt Larimore and his wife, Barb, talk about how God designed the unique differences between men and women for our benefit. By understanding how God has wired people, men and women can look at life through their spouse's lens and see more clearly from their vantage point as a husband or wife.

Date: 7/10/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Human Dignity

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: The obsession of Americans with their pets accompanies a historic delay in marriage, childbearing, abortion and assisted suicide. Joh Stonestreet observes that our world is coming very close to G. K. Chesterton's words, ". . . Wherever there is animal worship, there's human sacrifice."

Date: 7/11/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: FamilyLife Today

Issue: Marriage

Time Aired: 7:30 PM

Duration: 30:00

Description: Dennis and Barbara Rainey share marriage principles from their 44 years together and encourage listeners to never use the "D-Word" in marriage.

Date: 7/11/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint

Issue: LGBTQ Issues and Religious Freedom

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: Jack Phillips, owner of the Masterpiece Cake Shop, is a brave man. Because he refused to decorate a cake for a same-sex wedding ceremony, he was hauled before the Colorado Civil Rights Commission. He was fined, and faces financial ruin. But he's still standing fast. And the Supreme Court has agreed to take up his case. Even braver may have been his decision to appear before the hosts of the daytime TV show, "The View." These women presumed to know what Jesus would have done in this situation, declaring that he "obviously" would have made this couple a cake, after all, "Jesus can turn water into wine. He can do whatever He wants." Phillips thoughtful response to this all was this reply, "I don't believe He would have because that would have contradicted the rest of the biblical teaching."

Date: 7/12/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: FamilyLife Today

Issue: Being a Stepdad

Time Aired: 7:30 PM

Duration: 30:00

Description: Statistics show that 16% of all men will be stepdads. Ron Deal, director of FamilyLife Belnded, talks to men about the realities of being a stepdad.

Date: 7/12/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint

Issue: Life and Human Dignity

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: The parent of a Canadian newborn not only wants to make a crucial life decision for him or her, but also force the government to recognize that decision. The case made international news when this baby received what his or her mother is calling the first ever "genderless" document issued by any government. John Stonestreet outlines why he believes this child's parent has overstepped the "sphere of sovereignty" and stepped into abuse by insisting the government violate its responsibility to recognize reality. He ends by saying, "The bad ideas of adults in any sphere of authority often have small victims."

Date: 7/12/2017 Station: FM
Program Name: Family Talk
Issue: Protecting Kids from Negative Cultural Influenc
Time Aired: 1:00 PM
Duration: 27:00
Description: Dr. Dobson sits down with author and speaker Rebecca Hagelin to outline how moms and dads can truly protect their kids from the negative aspects of our culture.

Date: 7/13/2017 Station: FM
Program Name: Breakpoint
Issue: Christian Response to Drug Addiction
Time Aired: 10:25 AM
Duration: 3:59
Description: Eric Metaxas tells the story of two women and their children at the New Life Home in Manchester, New Hampshire, who are receiving help for their addictions and getting their lives back on track, When more than 20 million Americans have some kind of substance-abuse problem, but just 10 percent are receiving any treatment, we must see that the problem isn't primarily chemical, in the composition of the drugs themselves. It's a manifestation of a "terrible hopelessness settling over a large part of America," in the words of John Stonestreet. The New Life Home is doing its part to restore hope.

Date: 7/13/2017 Station: FM
Program Name: Focus on the Family

Program Name: The Point
Issue: Life and Human Dignity
Time Aired: 12:45 PM
Duration: :60
Description: Stanford Law's Henry Greeley predicts that 20 years from now couples will be able to visit a clinic, give a few skin cells, and head out for a latte. Days later they will return and select the embryo with the right sex, hair color, etc. to their choosing. John Stonestreet concludes by saying, "Instead of being the outcome of a loving and life-long union of men and women, children are increasingly becoming just another consumer item."

Date: 7/14/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint

Issue: Sanctity of Life

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: John Stonestreet shares Chuck Colson's thoughts about who decides who should live and who should die. Mr. Colson cites the words of ethicist, Peter Singer, who said the "death of a teenager is a greater tragedy than the death of an 85-year-old, and this should be reflected in our priorities." Colson says, "As abhorrent as Singer's ideas are, they're coldly consistent with utilitarian thinking that now dominates medical ethics." Because humans are made in the image of God they all have dignity. He suggests that we leave decisions to the family and doctors, as it is today.

Date: 7/15/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: Breakpoint This Week

Issue: Gay Marriage

Time Aired: 12:00 PM

Duration: 25:00

Description: Eugene Peterson, author of "The Message," went public embracing homosexual relationships and same-sex "marriage," and then retracted his comments the next day. In the words of John Stonestreet, "Peterson's reasoning in both cases illustrates an authority problem and confusion over sexuality and Christian anthropology in the evangelical church." Pressure continues to mount upon evangelicals to "conform to an increasingly secular culture. . ." Mr. Stonestreet shares that those who don't succumb to this pressure risk the treatment that the Alliance Defending Freedom has received from the Southern Poverty Law Center who have labeled them as an "anti-LGBT hate group."

Date:	7/17/2017	Station:	FM
Program Name:	The Point
Issue:	The Marriage Institution
Time Aired:	12:45 PM
Duration:	:60
Description:	ABC's "Good Morning America" reports on the trend of engaged couples taking "earlymoons." These romantic getaways happen before the wedding to help the bride and groom unwind, reconnect, and "remember why they're getting married in the first place." John Stonestreet says, ". . .the problem in our culture isn't that some couples forget why they're getting married, but that our culture has forgotten what marriage is in the first place. Trips that take fornication for granted for unmarried couples just shows that we see marriage as a mere label to attach to any relationship we want." He asks the question, ". . .what if marriage isn't just a label?" He warns that if this is so, we had better stop flouting it as there are very likely serious consequences.
Date:	7/17/2017	Station:	FM

Date: 7/18/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: The Point

Issue: LGBT

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Last week, ABC and NBC copied and pasted a label from the Southern Poverty Law Center and ran it as a headline on their website. "Jeff Sessions Addresses anti-LGBT Hate Group." The group they were referring to wasn't the Klan or doesn't have any history of violence. It was the Alliance Defending Freedom, a premier legal organization defending religious liberty. In fact, ADF just won their seventh case in seven years at the Supreme Court! John Stonestreet is not surprised that this group would call ADF "a hate group" as he feels they have strayed from their roots and become an extremist organization. But he believes a major mainstream media outlet like ABC or NBC should be ashamed to use that terminology for a respected legal organization.

Date: 7/18/2017 Station: FM

Date: 7/18/2017 Station: FM

Program Name: BreakPoint

Issue: Homosexuality and Evangelicals

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: Eugene Peterson recently seemed to embrace so-called same-sex "marriage." when he said in an interview that he didn't consider homosexuality wrong and would, if asked, officiate a same-sex "marriage." "I know a lot of people who are gay and lesbian," Peterson said, "and they seem to have as good a spiritual life as I do." He then retracted his statement and said, "To clarify, I affirm the biblical view of marriage: one man to one woman. I affirm a biblical view of everything." One has to wonder where Eugene Peterson falls on this issue on any given day. As Tim Keller wrote, if you change your mind about homosexuality because you meet a friendly and intelligent gay person, your views probably weren't based on a biblical theology of marriage to begin with. Feelings are no substitute for an informed Christian worldview.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Abortion Legislation

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Hawaii is trying to force pro-life crisis pregnancy centers to post signs for "comprehensive planning services," which include abortion with phone numbers and websites to abortion clinics. People at the Alliance Defending Freedom are suing the state on behalf of the Calvary Chapel of Pearl Harbor Pregnancy Center. They are NOT, it should be noted, requiring abortion clinics to do the same for pro-life women's centers. John Stonestreet reports, "Hawaii's attack on conscience and free speech is outrageous, and courts have already struck down similar laws in several cities and states. The Supreme Court is currently considering a similar ADF case against California." He believes pro-abortion legislators are doing this sort of thing because they can't win in the court of public opinion any more.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Technology and Parenting

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: A Denver physician, Tim Farnum, noted that when his "formerly energetic" boys got smartphones, they became reclusive. They threw tantrums similar to "withdrawals of a crack addict" when he attempted to take them away. After research, Farnum learned that, "Too much technology too soon can impair brain development, hinder social skills and trigger an unhealthy reliance on the neurotransmitter dopamine, a high similar to what drug and alcohol addicts feel." So Farnum started a ballot initiative to ban the sale of cellphones to kids under 13. Mr. Stonestreet encourages listeners not to wait until there is a ballot initiative, but to take control of their kids' technology right away.

Program Name: BreakPoint

Issue: European Cultural Trends

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: Eric Metaxas quotes Douglas Murray from his best-seller, "The Strange Death of Europe: Immigration, Identity, Islam." This professing Atheist tells readers, that "...even the mass movement of millions of people into Europe would not sound such a final note for the continent were it not for the fact that (coincidentally or otherwise) at the same time Europe lost faith in its beliefs, traditions and legitimacy." Metaxas paraphrases his ideas and says, "In other words, it is mass Islamic immigration plus Europe's spiritual exhaustion—my words not his—that threaten to put an end to European civilization."

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Radical student groups spent the next few weeks, in the professor's words, as "lawless bands roaming the campus unimpeded . . .there were assaults. There were batteries. People were kidnapped and imprisoned, including faculty members and administrators." Administrators caved to every one of the rogue, violent students' demands. A "progressive" radio station in Berkeley, California, has rescinded its invitation to atheist superstar Richard Dawkins to speak on the beauty of science. Why? Because Dawkins had "offended and hurt" people on Twitter. But they were not referring to his slander of Christians. He was banned from Berkeley for his statements about Islam. Mr. Stonestreet wonders if soon the only thing folks will be listening to is silence.

Mr. Colson remarked that though it is uncertain what will be found in the future, "the biblical narratives about life during the time of Samson, Saul, David, and Solomon are clearly rooted in the history of that era."

Issue: Gender Identity

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: What do you do when a transgender friend wants you to refer to them with the opposite gender pronouns? Tom Gilson at The Stream suggests an answer such as this: "I understand that you have convictions about yourself, which is why you're asking me to call you by a different pronoun. But I have convictions, too. And for me to go along with your request would violate those convictions, and therefore my identity. So how can we work this out together?" Gentleness goes a long way, and John Stonestreet reminds listeners that truth and love are not in conflict. He reminds them to speak the truth, but remember everyone is made in the image of God.

Program Name: BreakPoint

Issue: Religious Freedom

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: In the Fall, the Supreme Court will hear the case of Masterpiece Cakeshop v. Colorado Civil Rights Commission. When Jack Phillips refused to decorate a cake for a same-sex marriage because of faith based convictions, the commission "ordered Jack and his staff to design cakes for same-sex wedding celebrations, go through a 're-education' program, implement new policies to comply with the commission's order, and file quarterly 'compliance' reports for two years to show that Jack has completely eliminated his religious beliefs from his business." Justice Anthony Kennedy will likely be the swing vote in this case. While he has ruled on the side of religious institutions recently, for nearly 30 years now, he has ruled that anti-sodomy laws, anti-discrimination laws that exclude gays, denying gays the right to marry--all of these things amount to "animus" against homosexuals and deprive them of dignity. John Stonestreet urges listeners to make their voices heard and be part of the protest about this vitally important issue of religious freedom.

One of the pairs had two "male" ends of the seatbelts, another had two "female" ends, and the final pair had a "male and a female" end. Apparently they are unaware that in reality only one pair of seatbelts would click and thereby save your life. Rates are growing coast to coast, in rural and urban areas, among the poor and the rich, the young and the old. What in the world is going on, and what do we do about it? In his article, Kheriaty, director of the Medical Ethics Program at Cal-Irvine, describes a witch's brew of factors behind this epidemic of death--ones we've talked about for years on BreakPoint: social fragmentation, an overall decrease in religious involvement, utilitarianism, and--yes--the growth of assisted suicide laws. He boils it down to one word: Despair. John Stonestreet challenges the Church to step up and invite despairing people into the folds.

He believes one of the causes for this as the trend of valuing people for their usefulness. John Stonestreet goes on to say humans have value not because of what they produce or do, but because of being made in God's image. And secondly, he quotes Chuck Colson: "Human beings are of such inconceivable worth that God sacrificed His own Son to save us from sin—not only the sin of underestimating each other's worth but also of 'fall[ing] short of the glory of God.'" There is no such thing as a "mere mortal".

Description: John Stonestreet quotes New Testament scholar, N.T. Wright, in his letter to the editor of the Times of London. "The confusion about gender identity," he writes, "is a modern, and now internet-fuelled, form of the ancient philosophy of Gnosticism. The Gnostic, one who 'knows,' has discovered the secret of 'who I really am', behind the deceptive outward appearance . . . This involves denying the goodness, or even the ultimate reality, of the natural world." Mr. Stonestreet points out that this is a bad idea with consequences, the likely victims being "vulnerable and impressionable youngsters who, as confused adults, will pay the price for their elders' fashionable fantasies."

Issue: Homosexuality and Christians

Time Aired: 10:25 AM

Duration: 3:59

Description: John Stonestreet provides strong evidence why he believes theology that accepts homosexuality is outside of Christian orthodoxy. He explains that some say that adding traditional marriage to the Nicene Creed list of non-negotiable Christian doctrines distracts from the life and work of Jesus and reduces Christianity to a set of morals, being selective and maybe even a little obsessive. Mr. Stonestreet believes that by responding to the homosexual error some Christians have embraced, evangelicals and Catholics aren't being selective or obsessive at all but doing precisely what the authors of the church's creeds were doing when they defended truth against the popular errors of their day.

According to two national surveys, those glued to screens at least three hours a day were 28 percent more likely to suffer sleep deprivation." Program Name: BreakPoint
Issue: Transgender Issues
Time Aired: 10:25 AM
Duration: 3:59
Description: A discussion by Chuck Colson is re-visited where he speaks of the history of a respected psychiatrist, Dr. Paul McHugh, who researched the sex-reassignment operations done by Johns Hopkins and concluded that this procedure was merely "cooperating with a mental illness." He and his colleague, Jon Meyer, found that most men did not regret their surgery, but in every other respect they had "much the same problems with relationships, work and emotions as before." After much research, Mr. Colson says they concluded: "Given that there's no evidence that sex reassignment surgery helps either adults or children, why did doctors recommend it in the first place? The answer is that psychiatrists were enamored of the feminist theory that sexual identity was determined, not by biology, but by cultural conditioning. Psychiatrists went along with this despite the fact that animal research had long shown that male sexual behavior is directly derived from exposure to testosterone in utero. And so today, the transgendered movement is firmly protected by rigid codes of political correctness. You're a bigot if you say that a person is made a certain way and can't change his gender."

This rebellion was chronicled by the Jewish historian Flavius Josephus, again confirming the historicity of the Bible and showing that Christianity, unlike other faiths, is "rooted in real human history."

Description: The headline of a recent story in USA Today reads "Faith groups provide the bulk of disaster recovery, in coordination with FEMA." The author mentioned Seventh Day Adventists, The Convoy of Hope and Samaritan's Purse as he went on to say, ". . .these groups don't 'merely' supplement government relief efforts. In many instances, they are the government response." John Stonestreet gives an explanation for this kind of charity. "They believe deeply in God, and that people are made in His image. That God has been very kind and generous to them, and asks of His people, if I might use the summary of all Christian dogma offered by Jesus Christ Himself, that they love God with all they have and love their neighbors as themselves." He goes on to stress that if our faith were more acceptable to senators like Diane Feinstein, it would only be "hearable in the privacy of our own thoughts and houses of worship," and "Florida's road to recovery would be a lot longer."

John Stonestreet asks why Americans are so obsessed with it. Program Name: The Point

Issue: Freedom of Religion/Conscience

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Kentucky t-shirt designer Blaine Adamson does not refuse to serve gay customers. As he wrote recently at Alliance Defending Freedom, he never has. But when asked to design and print shirts for a gay pride parade, he declined, offering to refer his customers elsewhere. They sued, and a county human rights commission found Adamson guilty of discrimination. Adamson and his business, Hands On Originals have won reversals by two higher courts. Now, the Gay and Lesbian Services Organization has asked the Kentucky Supreme Court to get involved. This battle, and others like it will greatly depend on what the U.S. Supreme Court decides in the Masterpiece Cake Shop case. Adamson is a powerful illustration that Christian business owners aren't refusing to serve gay people. It's a false narrative. What they're refusing is to use their artistic talents to convey messages that conflict with their beliefs. It's a freedom we have in a country whose Constitution protects both speech and religion.

Program Name: The Point

Issue: Freedom of Religion/Speech/Conscience

Time Aired: 12:45 PM

Duration: :60

Description: Recently, the Southern Poverty Law Center--an organization that once did good work identifying hate groups like the KKK and Neo-Nazis--has turned its sights on Christian organizations. Alliance Defending Freedom, the Family Research Council, and others have all been named to SPLC's list of "hate groups" because they oppose same-sex marriage. This has consequences. When a lone gunman attempted a mass shooting at FRC in 2012 and was narrowly stopped by a security guard, he admitted he did it because of this "hate group" designation. Thankfully, someone is holding the SPLC accountable, at last. The FBI has removed the organization from its recommended resources, and a new website, SPLCExposed.com, has a running feed of headlines, many of which are appropriately critical of the watchdog group. John Stonestreet points out that disagreement shouldn't be labeled "hate."
