

The Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce hopes a new resource will address workforce shortages in northwest Arkansas. Last Friday the Chamber released a new, 64-page career guide for the region. Steve Clark, president and CEO of the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce, says this is just the beginning.

NEWS16 0:14 “...for shadowing experiences.”

The new guide features jobs and desired skills for 28 Northwest Arkansas companies. Clark estimates 16,000 students in Washington County will have access to these resources. The Arkansas Economic Development Commission and Governor Asa Hutchinson have challenged cities across the state to find strategies for developing a more competitive workforce.