

QUARTERLY ISSUES REPORT
WHYY-91FM

FOR THE PERIOD OF OCTOBER 1, 2019 THROUGH DECEMBER 31, 2019

The license of station WHYY-91FM has determined that the following issues were of importance to the Delaware Valley community during the past three months and has aired the following programs to address these issues:

ARTS and CULTURE

The Why

December 3, 2019

15 Minutes

5:45 p.m.

Frequent school lockdowns take a toll on Philly students

Across the Philadelphia School District, lockdowns happen as frequently as every other day. Students hide under their desks or cram into closets and wait for the all-clear. When the lockdowns are lifted, Michaela Winberg of WHYY's Billy Penn explains why they're not really over for many students.

Radio Times

December 6, 2019

60 Minutes

10:00 a.m.

Division of labor

Dividing up the chores equally can be key to a healthy relationship. But, despite the fight for gender equality, studies have shown that women are still doing the bulk of the household duties including childcare, even when they are working outside the home. In same-sex couples, chores are divvied up more equitably. This hour, we look at the division of household labor, the strain unequal duties can put on relationships, and how to divide housework fairly. Our guests are CLAIRE KAMP DUSH, a professor at Ohio State University and DARCY LOCKMAN, a clinical psychologist and the author of All the Rage: Mothers, Fathers and the Myth of Equal Partnership.

AGRICULTURE AND ENVIRONMENT

Fresh Air

One in three tests show Pa. water contamination, state says it's not 'widespread'

December 9, 2019

30 Minutes

1:30 pm

The office of Democratic Gov. Tom Wolf says test results "do not indicate widespread PFAS contamination" in drinking water supplies, though the toxic chemicals are present in about a third of water samples tested.

HEALTH ISSUES

The Pulse

November 29, 2019

60 Minutes

9:00 am

Through good times and bad — how school nursing has evolved over time

Joyce O'Connor entered school nursing over 20 years ago and has a total of 40 years of nursing experience under her belt. Though the day-to-day responsibilities have remained consistent, many aspects of the role have changed.

Radio Times

December 31, 2019

60 Minutes

10:00 a.m.

Reproductive Technology

Ever since the first in vitro fertilization, reproductive technology has generated a lot of controversy and concern. Today there are ethical questions raised around compensated gestational surrogacy, uterus transplants and genetically modified embryos. In their new book, The Pursuit of Parenthood, sisters MARGARET MARSH, a professor of history at Rutgers University, and WANDA RONNER, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Pennsylvania, look at the history and future of reproductive technologies and why women's bodies and having babies raise so many thorny questions.

POLITICS AND GOVERNMENT

Radio Times

October 15, 2019

60 Minutes

10:00 a.m.

Constitutional crisis?

The impeachment inquiry is underway. Trump associates are being subpoenaed to testify, witnesses are being called, and many hearings have begun in an effort to determine if President Trump should be removed from office for his interactions with Ukraine's President. Joining us today is reporter JACQUELINE THOMSEN of The National Law Journal who will tell us about the latest in the inquiry, the legal ins-and-out of impeachment, what constitutes a "constitutional crisis," and what comes next. University of Michigan professor of political science MICHAEL TRAUOGOTT will explain the polling, and which polls you should trust.

Radio Times

Disinformation in the modern age

October 18, 2019

60 Minutes

10:00 a.m.

Sit down with journalist and former State Department staffer RICHARD STENGEL to talk about disinformation, fake news, propaganda in the U.S., Russia, and terrorist organizations – and ways to stop it.

SCIENCE

The Pulse

November 21, 2019

60 Minutes

9:00 a.m.

Your brain on gratitude: How a neuroscientist used his research to heal from grief

Neuroscientist Glenn Fox has dedicated his life to studying gratitude — how it improves our resilience, lowers stress, and boosts overall health. He's an expert on the ability of gratitude to help us through tough times.

All Things Considered

November 25, 2019

60 Minutes

3:00 p.m.

Trenton strikes back at crow invasion with pyrotechnics and lasers

Trenton's multi-year war on crows is far from over, but on a recent Tuesday night, a federal employee tasked with keeping tens of thousands of the cawing birds at bay felt like she'd won a small battle. She uses a tool, a small pyrotechnic gun to disperse a single murder of thousands of crows into smaller, more manageable groups to other parts of the city.